EX-CONVICT GETS LIFE TERM FOR ABELN MURDER

Frank Kennedy's Penalty Fixed on Theory Pal Would Escape Gallows Because He Aided State.

TWO NOTES HELP IN HIS CONVICTION

Message to Charles Douthitt in Jail Said "You Know You're Trying to Put Rope Around My Neck."

Life imprisonment was the punishment fixed by a jury in Circuit Judge Russell's court yesterday for Frank Kennedy, two-time ex-convict found guilty of the murder of Charles J. Abeln in a holdup 13 months ago, in which Mrs. Abeln was shot to death.

The State produced two notes, alleged to have been written by Kennedy to Charles Douthitt, fellow defendant, who was chief witness for the prosecution, while both were in jail. The first message said the writer had heard "you have signed up" (turned State's evidence), and asked for confirmation, explaining, "You know it's the rope you are trying to put around my neck." The note also asked for information on the attitude of Prentice J. Trimble, charged as an accessory, who also turned State's witness.

Assistant Circuit Attorney William B. Flynn had asked for the death penalty. He told reporters that the jury affixed a lesser punishment because they felt that Douthitt was equally guilty and was going to receive as a reward for turning State's evidence, some lighter punishment than the gallows Flynn asked for Kennedy.

His informant, the prosecutor said, was Fred Link, the jury foreman, a clerk, of 1505 Seventh boulevard. Link told him, Flynn said, that the first ballot was unanimous for conviction, eight for life imprisonment and four for hanging. Link was one of the four, the prosecutor quoted him as saying.

To reporters the foreman declined to discuss the finding, saying: "The verdict speaks for itself and we have agreed not to discuss it."

Douthitt Sentence Pending.

Douthitt's testimony was that Kennedy persuaded him to participate in the holdup, but that Kennedy fired the shots, while he, Douthitt, ran away. It is customary when one of a group of defendants turns State's evidence and pleads guilty, to reward him with a lesser punishment than that meted out to his associates in crime. Douthitt pleaded guilty before taking the witness stand, but sentence has not been passed upon him.

Circuit Attorney Miller told the Post-Dispatch that "in all probability Kennedy would be tried also for the murder of Mrs. Abeln in a further effort to secure the death penalty.

"I have not conferred with my assistant, Mr. Flynn," he said, "but I shall do so and in all probability we will come to the conclusion to try this defendant again."

The indictment against Kennedy for the murder of Mrs. Abeln, as well as the charges against his codefendant, Arthur Schnelt, also an ex-convict, who was likewise indicted for the murder of Abeln and his wife, have been continued until the February term of court and will be re-set next month.

Details of Crime.

Mr. and Mrs. Abeln were shot Dec. 22, 1933, when they left one of Abeln's cigar stores at 3928 South Broadway, carrying $2000 in receipts, and walked toward their automobile, parked on Alberta street, east of Broadway.

Douthitt testified that he and Kennedy were to hold them up and that Schnelt was to wait nearby in an automobile in which they would escape. However, he said, Abeln drew a pistol, he (Douthitt) ran, Kennedy fired eight shots at the pair and then ran also. When they reached the rendezvous point, Schnelt had gone, the witness said.

The Kennedy jury heard the closing testimony Friday afternoon, and the arguments of counsel Friday night. They deliberated from 9:34 until midnight and resumed yesterday morning. When court convened at 10 a. m. they signified their readiness and marched in with the verdict.

Kennedy's defense was a categorical denial of every one of Douthitt's statements about the holdup and killing, and of the corroborative testimony of Trimble, who said he hid the pistol Kennedy used and the license plates from

Story of Missionaries' Flight From Their Stations to Escape Retreating Chinese Communists

Party of 21, Most of Them Americans, Flee Down River From Changteh in Junks—Two Babies Born on Way.

THE following account of the terrors attending the evacuation of missionaries in the path of China's retreating Communist hordes has just been received by mail. Censorship blocked attempts yesterday to obtain by cable more complete details of prevailing conditions.

By the Associated Press.

CHANGSHA, Hunan Province, China.—Not since 1927, when Chiang Kai-Shek's nationalist legions swept into the Yangtse Valley from South China, has there been such an exodus of American religious workers from their stations in this area.

China's Communist armies, driven into Hunan Province by Gen. Chiang's crushing offensive in adjacent Kiangsi, have disrupted American missionary efforts in this part of South Central China.

Americans of many missions represented here have fled for their lives. Men, women and children have suffered hardship and privation in the escape from their stations.

The story of a little band of Americans, trapped in the river port of Changteh by attacking Reds but who succeeded in escaping by boat, was told on the arrival of the refugee party here, by the Rev. J. E. Graham of Carbondale, Pa., worker of the Christian and Missionary Alliance which has headquarters in New York.

Attack Unexpected.

The 21 missionaries, most of them Americans, lived through "wildest uncertainty" before the order to evacuate came from the authorities, he said. Rumor after rumor of imminent Communist attacks kept the group uneasy. But when the attack finally came, it was unexpected.

"Out of a clear sky," the Rev. Mr. Graham said, "came the electrifying news that the Reds, under the notorious Gen. Ho Lung, had reached a point within seven miles of the city. They had come on the Government troops from the rear and demoralized them so completely that they fled in wild disorder. One detachment of Government troops—said to number nearly 1000—had its retreat cut off and was faced with the alternative of facing the Reds, and certain death, or leaping into the river. Most of the trapped men chose the river and were drowned.

"The missionaries were warned by the authorities to leave the city immediately. Those who lived outside the city walls were able to charter junks and make ready for departure down river to Changsha. But those inside the city walls were caught like rats. We gathered a few of our more portable belongings and attempted to leave through the city gates. But the troops at the gates refused to open a way for us, insisting that an attack by the Reds was momentarily expected.

"We returned to our homes and were kept awake all that night by incessant firing. We learned later that the rifle fire came entirely from the city garrison, which was trying to keep up its courage by firing at an unseen enemy.

"On the following day we made another attempt to make our escape and finally, after lengthy arguments, were permitted to leave the city. To do so, however, we had to scale a high barricade of baled cotton at the city entrance. We made our way to the river, where we joined the other members of the missionary colony who were ready to set sail.

"The three expectant mothers were our greatest problem. Our overcrowded boats were not the most desirable place for the stork to suddenly make his appearance. There was nothing else to do, however, but attempt to make the best speed possible in our antiquated boats, in the hope of reaching the hospital at Changsha.

"Unfortunately, however, the boats were not built for speed. We soon discovered that our little fleet could make no better than two miles an hour."

Two Babies Born.

The Rev. Mr. Graham told how the boats had gone scarcely 15 miles when they were obliged, in dead of night, to tie up at the small village of Nu-Pi-Tan. Mrs. Graham, one of the three expectant mothers, was moved ashore and a small room over a mission chapel became an improvised hospital. An hour after her arrival Mrs. Graham became the mother of a girl.

"About this time," the Rev. Mr. Graham continued, "excited villagers told us the reds were carrying out an encircling movement and Nu-Pi-Tan was in danger. We decided, however, to risk staying another day, as the doctor advised against the immediate removal of Mrs. Graham. Our decision was providential, for toward noon of

RELIEF PROGRAM TO BE PRESSED UNDER 'GAG' RULE

Democrats Plan to Get $4,880,000,000 Bill Through House Not Later Than Tuesday.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Democratic leaders today decided to apply an iron-clad "gag" rule in the House to pass the President's $4,880,000,000 relief program by not later than Tuesday.

The strategy was chosen after White House pressure was brought to expedite the program exactly as requested by the chief executive. It is designed to prevent amendments and to limit debate to about four hours.

This drastic move was conceived when it became known that a large number of Democrats as well as Republicans signified they were opposed to voting the huge sum without detailed hearings.

There are indications this group will seek to overthrow the "gag" rule plans but Democratic chiefs claim their huge majority will be sufficient to put it over.

No efforts are to be made by the House Appropriations Committee to earmark the money, said Chairman Buchanan (Dem.), Texas, in explaining that his group Monday will report the measure for a lump-sum appropriation to be expended under the direction of the President.

Although Secretary Ickes is making plans for the distribution of the $4,000,000,000 work relief fund, there is some talk on Capitol Hill that Relief Administrator Hopkins may head a new agency to handle the whole program. Hopkins will have the job of tapering off the "dole" with the $880,000,000 fund between February 10 and November 1.

1918 CAR AND BLIND COW IN WENDEL PERSONAL ESTATE

Eight Million Value Covers Ducks, Wines, Chickens and Jewels.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Assets of $8.024.555.68 in the personal property estate of the late Miss Ella von E. Wendel were disclosed today in an accounting.

Belongings include an 8-year-old Guernsey cow on the estate at Irvington, N. Y., 140 chickens, 13 ducks, a 9-year-old cow "blind in one eye and hip down," wines and liquors from the cellar of the former mansion on Fifth Avenue, jewelry valued at $6546 and a 1918 automobile appraised at $50.

The personal assets are in addition to her $30,956,357 in real estate.

The temporary administrators' report of expenses includes two items for Toby, the Wendel poodle—a veterinary hospital, $17 for medicines and calls, and $19 later for medicines to relieve the dog's eczema. Toby was finally put to death.

The temporary administrators, George S. Shirk of Irvington and Mrs. Isabel K. Murray of Quogue, N. Y., asked for commissions totaling $592,487.55, including a one-third share, $197,495.85 to Mrs. Murray's father, the late Charles G. Koss.

TRAIN FERRIES FOR CHANNEL

London-Paris Service to Eliminate Changing at Night.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The inconvenience of changing from boat trains to Channel steamers and back again, despair of night travelers between London and Paris, soon will be a thing of the past.

Three large train ferries, recently launched, will be placed in service in the spring, conveying passenger trains back and forth between Dover and Dunkirk. Then travelers will be able to enter their sleeping compartments at midnight in either capital and wake up at their destination at 8 o'clock in the morning.

TRUCKER KILLED; HIT BY AUTO, RUN OVER BY ANOTHER

Drivers Keep on Going, Although One Turns Around — Charles Frasure, 35, Dies in Hospital

Musician Says He Didn't See Him—17 Fatalities in First 19 Days of 1935; Eight Last Year.

Charles Frasure, 35-year-old truck driver, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile and run over by a second machine. Neither driver stopped.

The accident occurred at 6:30 o'clock when Frasure attempted to cross the street in front of his home, 3711 Chouteau avenue. Two neighbors, Lillian Brooks, 3719 Chouteau avenue, and Nick Gasparovich, 3700A Chouteau avenue, were witnesses.

"Frasure was crossing from the north curb and had passed the center of the street when he was hit by a dark sedan, which was going east," Gasparovich said. "He was knocked over to the north side. A westbound machine, a small coupe, ran over him and went on. The first machine turned around and went west too."

Frasure, who was married, died at City Hospital an hour later. His skull, legs and one arm were broken and he was hurt internally.

Man Killed by Auto on South Vandeventer Avenue.

The driver, Otto Reinert, a musician, 1 Childress avenue, said he did not see the man and did not know the machine had hit anyone until he felt a jar.

Klagle, who was about 50 years old, resided in the 1800 block of Rutger street, according to two fellow employes, who identified him.

There have been 17 motor vehicle fatalities in the city since Jan. 1, as compared with eight in the corresponding period last year.

Boy Hit by Auto Turning Into Oil Station; Leg Broken.

Clifford Everett, 10 years old, was struck by an automobile, which was turning into a gasoline filling station at Hodiamont and Theodosia avenues at 9:15 o'clock last night, and suffered a compound fracture of the left leg.

The driver, Ralph Wilmas, 5569 Theodosia avenue, told police he did not see the boy until too late to stop. Clifford is the son of Mrs. Jennie Everett, 1439 Hodiamont avenue.

William Davis, 3745 Cote Brilliante avenue, the driver, said the boy skated into the path of the machine.

ROOSEVELT FIRST PRESIDENT AT ALFALFA CLUB DINNER

Exclusive Organization Named for "Weed That Goes Deepest for a Drink."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—President Roosevelt tonight attended the annual dinner of the Alfalfa Club—the first President of the United States ever invited by this exclusive organization.

The Alfalfa Club was organized by 100 leaders in public and scientific life when the eighteenth amendment was adopted. The club was named "Alfalfa" because its organizers said: "That weed grows deepest of all for a drink."

During the days of prohibition, Senators and Representatives and sometimes cabinet members were invited to attend, but never presidents.

But the club tonight ignored precedent and invited Mr. Roosevelt, who favored repeal. Vice President Farner, a member, also attended.

3 Hurt in French Fascists' Fight.

By the Associated Press.

TOURS, France, Jan. 19.—Two Communists and one Socialist were seriously injured in a fight today with Francists, who are French Fascists. The Francists were holding a meeting when the clash occurred. The Communists and Socialist forces were led by the Mayor of Saint Pierre des Corps Village, who was arrested.

GANG DROWNED KIDNAPED MAN, DETECTIVE SAYS

PHILADELPHIAN WAS SEIZED IN OCTOBER

"We Tied Rope Around His Neck and Kicked Him Into River," Officer Quotes Gangster.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 19.—Detective Capt. James Malone, who aided in the capture of Robert Mais and three companions in New York, said today one of those arrested had implicated the others in the kidnaping and suspected murder of William Weiss, night life figure.

"We tied a rope around his (Weiss') neck and kicked him into the Delaware River," Malone quoted one member of the gang as saying. Malone refused to disclose which of the four men captured had made the statement.

Weiss was kidnaped last October by three men as he drove his car up to his suburban home. He has not returned.

"A member of the mob has come clean and has told us definitely that they murdered Weiss," Malone said. "I believe the murder was committed after Weiss' friend, Albert (Buck) Mayer, paid them $8000, on account, of the ransom they demanded.

Held Prisoner in Cottage.

"The member of the gang who confessed said they threw Weiss into the river above Torresdale Manor (just north of Philadelphia), where they had held him prisoner in a cottage near the river during the ransom negotiations.

"The $8000 which Mayer paid was split four ways."

Malone, who returned Friday after the capture, left again for New York today. With him were R. George Harvey, head of the Justice Department's Division of Investigation Bureau here, and other detectives and Federal agents.

In addition to the reported confession, Malone said authorities also have an automobile license registration for a car, found bloodstained and bullet-marked near the Torresdale Manor hideout. The car, Malone said, is probably that in which Weiss was kidnaped. The registration license, Malone added, was found in the New York apartment in which Mais was arrested last Friday.

"Cried Like a Baby."

Malone said Mais, shortly after his arrest, "cried like a child" and told authorities he was "tired of hiding and running away and was glad the police had caught up to him."

"He had aged five years since we last saw him," Malone said. "This is due to the bullet wound received in a skirmish with police in Baltimore, which is still unhealed. He has been trying to treat it himself and his skin is burned with antiseptics."

"What the underworld says is true," Malone commented. "It isn't Mais, but Legenza who is the dangerous member of the gang."

Walter Legenza, who was captured with Mais, was with Mais when the two shot their way out of a Richmond (Va.) jail several months ago. Mais was awaiting execution at the time for the murder of a bank truck driver.

Prisoners Admit Robberies in Pennsylvania and Maryland.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Under rigorous questioning by Department of Justice agents, members of the notorious "Tri-State Gang" are reported by Frank X. Fay, head of the New York office of the Department of Justice, to have confessed robberies in Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Robert Mais, the gang leader, and his lieutenant, Walter Legenza, condemned murderers, were said by Fay to have given details of their jail break in Richmond, Va., Mais insisting that Legenza was the one who killed a guard.

Fay said Mais and Legenza had admitted robbing the Hyattsville (Md.) armory to obtain weapons for a series of crimes in the New York area. Martin Farrell, another prisoner, and Legenza, he said, have admitted robbing the Norristown (Pa.) armory for the same purpose.

"Legenza admitted the Philadelphia Rapid Transit holdup also," Fay said. Four thousand dollars was obtained in that robbery.

MOVIE ACTRESSES SURRENDER ON PERJURY INDICTMENTS

Vilma Aknay and Sari Fedak Charged With Falsification in Breach of Promise Suit.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—Sought for six weeks on a grand jury indictment charging perjury, Vilma Aknay and Sari Fedak, Hungarian movie actresses, surrendered in Superior Court today and were released on bonds of $5000 each.

They were told to appear next Wednesday to enter pleas.

They are accused of falsification in a $250,000 breach of promise suit Miss Aknay brought against Ernst Vadja, Hollywood playwright. Their attorney said the reason they failed to surrender sooner was because they were unable to find bond until now.

PAIR WHO DIED IN PRISON CLEARED AFTER 20 YEARS

Frenchman and Wife, Convicted of Signaling Germans, Didn't Know How.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—In 1915 Louis Moreau, his wife and two sons were sentenced as spies. Some one had seen flashes of light at their house, and the Moreaus were convicted of signaling to Germans with a bicycle lamp. Moreau and his sons were sentenced to hard labor in French Guiana. Mme. Moreau got a prison sentence. The parents died in prison; a post-war Premier pardoned the sons, asserting they had been victims of "war hysteria."

Today the sons and other relatives won a 20-year fight to clear the family name. A military court decided a mistake had been made and granted damages of 28,000 francs ($1825).

The court said the flashes from the Moreau home could not have been signals, since none of the Moreaus knew how to send code messages.

COLD WAVE SPREADS OVER HALF OF NATION

Sub-zero Weather and Snow in Northwest; Threat of Frost in California.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—A cold wave from the Yukon yesterday, brought the threat of frost to California, snow as far south as Texas and sub-zero temperatures to many states.

The mercury went to 57 below zero at Endako, B. C., and reached new low points for the winter in the Dakotas.

Eight persons were dead in the storm that raged down the coast from Alaska to California. Others were injured in rail and highway accidents caused by severe cold, ice and snow.

Snow in Seattle.

In the Cascade Mountains, near Randle, Wash., State game officials took hay and feed to a herd of 150 deer trapped in the drifts. Snow five to seven inches deep covered Seattle where the temperature of 15 above was the lowest sinc 1924. The 2.5 degrees above zero reported at Everett, Wash., was the coldest ever recorded there, and Spokane had four above.

A movie company, including Clark Gable, Loretta Young and Jack Oakie, shivered in 11 below zero weather at Mount Baker Lodge where they were filming a picture with nearby snowdrifts 115 inches deep.

Trains were five hours late in the northwest. A heavy frost had been predicted for Southern California by tonight.

Temperatures went to 50 below zero at Battleford, Saskatchewan; —46 at Saskatoon, —48 at Prince Albert, —42 at Edmonton, —31 at Winnipeg. A train was derailed in Alberta and six passengers were badly hurt.

Mercury Drops in Kansas.

The blast struck Kansas today. A fringe of the snowstorm was expected in Texas tomorrow. At Salina, Kan., the mercury dropped from 52 to 10 degrees in four hours. Snow was general from Kansas and Nebraska across to Minnesota and Michigan. The cold wave was due in the Great Lakes area tomorrow. A bitter northwest wind brought 20 below zero at Spearfish, S. D., and —15 at Rapid City.

Indiana highways were covered with slush. Subzero weather persisted in the Adirondacks, where a bottom of 26 below zero was reached at Tupper Lake and Owls Head, N. Y. Warmer weather and snow was forecast.

The continuing snowfall in Duluth made it impossible for crews to keep the streets open, and the narrowing lanes made traffic movement extremely hazardous. The city authorities last night were considering barring all but commercial vehicles from the streets. Trolley cars were hampered by parked automobiles.

Policeman Jailed for Timidity.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, Jan. 19.—A Zagreb Police Sergeant has been sentenced to 11 months in prison because a military court judged him to be timid. The officer, Anton Povh, shot and killed two drunken youths he was attempting to arrest. He testified he fired in self-defense. The Court decided he had shot the youths because he was terrified. "A gendarme must never show fear," the presiding Judge commented in passing sentence.

HAUPTMANN IS EXPECTED TO TESTIFY WEDNESDAY

He Is Likely to Be First Witness in Own Behalf and Repeat Story That He Got Ransom Money From Isador Fisch.

DEFENSE TO DENY HE WROTE NOTES

State Seeks to Show Carpenter Had Income of $49,000 in the Two Years From the Date of the Kidnaping.

By the Associated Press.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann is likely to take the stand in his own defense Wednesday at his trial for the murder of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., March 1, 1932. The State is expected to complete its case Monday and Tuesday. Hauptmann, it is said, will be the first of the witnesses for the defense.

Hauptmann's attorneys have announced that they expect him to deny the kidnaping and murder of the baby and to repeat his story told the New York police that he got the ransom money found in his garage from Isador Fisch, his former business partner, who is dead.

Handwriting Testimony.

There will be testimony to contradict that of the State's handwriting experts who assert Hauptmann wrote the ransom notes. Dull as much of the handwriting testimony has been, both sides recognize it as vital. The writer of the ransom notes, especially of the note found on the nursery window sill the night the baby was kidnaped, was almost certainly the kidnaper and murderer.

Unless all indications fail, the defendant will attempt also to pin the crime on the dead Isador Fisch.

There will be alibi testimony — evidence to fix Hauptmann's presence in the Bronx March 1, 1932, the day of the kidnaping.

New Angle of Defense.

Lloyd C. Fisher, associate counsel for Hauptmann, said the defense would produce witnesses to testify that the late Isador Fisch offered to them for safekeeping the shoe box in which the Lindbergh ransom money allegedly was subsequently given to Hauptmann. The prisoner asserts he was unaware of the contents of the box when Fisch gave it to him before going to Germany where he died. Fischer declined to disclose now many witnesses would be produced or who they were.

If the defense follows the lines it has suggested in its various references to Fisch, the State will call as rebuttal witnesses three relatives of Fisch and the German nurse who attended him in the last stages of tuberculosis. The four were brought to America last Tuesday by Detective Arthur Johnson of New York.

The State expects to show that Hauptmann made the ladder it contends was used by the kidnaper.

Hauptmann Studies Records.

Hauptmann sat tonight in his cell, under the eyes of guards, and studied photostatic copies of his own brokerage accounts—the accounts by which the State hopes to prove that he came into possession of unexplained wealth immediately after the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom was paid. Defense attorneys had planned to study the accounts today, but instead of going to Trenton, where the accounts are held, Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly obtained copies and sent them to Hauptmann. The prisoner is expected to familiarize himself with every phase of his transactions and be prepared to advise his counsel when the State presents testimony on this subject.

Federal Agents Edward Hill and William Frank and Assistant Attorney-General Richard Stockton went over Hauptmann's bank and brokerage accounts today. They eliminated 18 of the witnesses the State planned to call to testify to the Hauptmann accounts, and will produce only a certified public accountant and a Federal Agent.

Money Angle Stressed.

The State will submit to the jury of eight men and four women that Hauptmann, a carpenter with few jobs to keep him occupied in the depression, had an income of $49,-

BAR PRESENTS BILLS TO REFORM CRIMINAL CODE

Executive Group Approves Bail and Bondsmen Changes, 10-Day Notice on Alibi, Insanity Pleas.

SEVERANCES WOULD BE UP TO JUDGE

Kelley Case and Kansas City Union Station Murders Gave Impetus to Program.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 19.—The need for reform of the criminal code by the present session of the Legislature was emphasized today at the meeting of the executive committee of the Missouri Bar Association, here, which approved eight bills "in line with the modern trend of sensible thought and sound experience."

The committee made it clear that it was adopting no program of sweeping change or offering untried or novel measures. Only those changes which were needed most were recommended, it stated.

"It has been our purpose," it said, "to confine our recommendations to some matters which have proved to be unquestionably advisable. We have endeavored to avoid the dangers of going too far in a sweeping program of change. We have avoided untried experiments. We submit the proposed legislation as among those matters which a minimum of advancement in our State should include."

The chief bills recommend: (1) the trial judge be given discretion whether or not he should grant bail to a defendant convicted of a felony; (2) requirements for bondsmen's qualifications be more stringent; (3) a defendant be required to given ten days' notice if he intends to plead insanity or offer an alibi; (4) a judge be given discretion as to whether he should grant severances to two or more defendants charged with the same crime; (5) fingerprints be taken of every person arrested for a felony in the State; (6) the prosecutor be permitted to comment on the failure of an accused person to testify; (7) the State be given the right to take depositions of witnesses, a right now granted only to the defense.

Park's Ideas Also Approved.

Bills proposing some of these measures have already been introduced in the House, which has received 13 criminal code reform bills.

Three recommendations made by Gov. Park in his biennial message were also approved by the committee. These would provide for the shortening of the time for appeal from conviction in criminal cases from one year to four months, for the granting of a change of venue only for cause shown, and would give the State the same number of jury challenges as the defense, which under existing law has a larger number.

Leland Hazard of Kansas City, chairman of the Bar Association Committee on the legal aspects of criminology, which drew up the bills for the approval of the executive committee, said that much of the impetus for criminal code reform had been prompted by the Kelley kidnaping trial in Clayton, the Union Station murders in Kansas City, and the publicity given to the Federal campaign on crime.'

Former Supreme Court Justice Frank E. Atwood, president of the Bar Association, said that the bills, if put into effect, "will lay the ground work for a more effective and wholesome administration of criminal laws."

Comment by Committee.

In commenting on the bill which would give to the trial Judge discretion as to whether he should grant bail after conviction of a felony, the committee said:

"It is obvious that a criminal after conviction is often a more dangerous menace to the community while on bail awaiting his appeal than such a person was prior to his conviction."

Of insanity and alibi defenses the committee said: "If these defenses are meritorious they should bear the burden of scrutiny, if spurious they should not avail the defendant a security which would be destroyed by adequate investigation." Several States have adopted a law requiring the defendant to tell in advance his intention to plead insanity or make an alibi defense and the measure was specifically recommended at the Attorney-General's conference on crime held recently in Washington.

"Contrary to Common Sense."

The committee pointed out that the American Bar Association strongly recommends the adoption of a law which would permit the prosecutor to comment on the failure of an accused person to testify. "The traditional American rule that a defendant's failure to testify is no evidence of guilt," it says, "is contrary to common sense and to the experience of mankind. The rule does not obtain in England, Canada or any other country where the jury system prevails."

The amendment to the constitution which would permit the Legislature to pass a law giving the State the right to take depositions in criminal cases, would be submitted to the voters at the November 1936, election.

The amendment would contain the following significant paragraph: "The General Assembly shall have the power in its discretion to provide for the taking of depositions by the State to be used against the accused in any criminal prosecution and provide for use by the State of testimony given at a former hearing, so long as the defendant's right and reasonable opportunity to cross-examine witnesses against him are preserved."

"This procedure," the bar association's committee adds, "would facilitate the early assemblage of evidence, would constitute a protection to witnesses from extinction, threats and incriminations since their testimony could be taken in the early stages of a matter before opportunity for interference or before the prosecution reached a state at which desperate measures might be taken by the defense."

One Bill Rejected.

The executive committee rejected only one bill proposed by the subcommittee. This would have empowered a trial judge to comment on the evidence in the case and charge the jury as to any matters of fact. A bill which would grant this power by repealing the present section of the laws forbidding it, has already been introduced in the House.

The committee which drew up the bills is composed of the following: Leland Hazard, chairman; Judge Will H. D. Green, West Plains; Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller of St. Louis; Laurence M. Hyde, a commissioner of the Supreme Court; H. O. Maxey, Butler; M. M. Milligan, United States District Attorney in Kansas City; Glen A. McCleary, Columbia; Frank C. Mann, Springfield; Allen McReynolds, Carthage, and Arthur J. Freund, St. Louis.

STATION MASTER SENTENCED TO DIE FOR RUSSIAN WRECKS

Eight Others Receive Prison Terms After Two Collisions Which Caused Six Fatalities.

By the Associated Press.

TIKHORETZKAYA, U. S. S. R., Jan. 19.—M. Guzev, station master at Koisug, was sentenced today to be shot as a result of two train wrecks Jan. 6 in which six persons were killed.

Eight trainmen were sentenced to prison for from three to 10 years each.

The first collision was between a freight train which had been switched on the wrong track and a derailed locomotive. Later an express train passed a closed semaphore signal and crashed into another passenger train which had stopped because of engine trouble.

A press report from Leningrad a few days ago attributed the wrecks to engineers' running past signals in attempts to collect Government bonuses for on-time service.

STORY OF MISSION GROUP'S FLIGHT TO ESCAPE REDS

that day a son was born to Mrs. W. Wager of Oxdrift, Ontario, in the same makeshift hospital.

"New rumors reached us that evening. This time we were told the Communists had split into small groups and were overrunning the nearby countryside, plundering and killing. There was no chance of leaving then, however, so several of us stood guard all night outside the mission building.

Party Reaches Hanshow.

"In the morning we decided we must wait no longer. The two mothers were carried on stretchers to the river bank and placed in small boats. Then our flotilla continued its way downstream. At Hanshow, a port about 20 miles below Changteh, comfortable quarters were found for Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Wager in the station of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, in charge of Misses E. and M. Hilty of Pandora, O. The mothers and infants are little the worse for their experience and are making excellent progress."

HAUPTMANN ON STAND PROBABLY ON WEDNESDAY

960 between the time of the payment of the ransom, April 2, 1932, and the date of his arrest last Sept. 19.

The money angle of the case has been stressed from the beginning by Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, chief of the prosecution staff. Hauptmann, he said in his opening statement to the jury on Jan. 3, planned the kidnaping for money and collected the ransom alone.

He will offer evidence that Hauptmann bought a $400 radio shortly after the date on which the ransom was paid, that his wife, Anna, was able to make a trip to Germany in the summer of 1932, and that Hauptmann himself made frequent hunting trips and opened his first brokerage account.

Accounting for $49,960.

At the time of his arrest Hauptmann had a credit balance of $886 in his account with Steiner, Rouse & Co., whose customer's man testified yesterday. Under his wife's maiden name, Anna Schoeffler, he had a credit balance of $5017. In the Central Savings Bank in New York, the Hauptmanns had a joint deposit account of $2578. They held two mortgages, totaling $7000, on houses in Brooklyn. The State figures Hauptmann lost $7000 in stock market speculations, and he has said he lent Isador Fisch $7500. Ransom money found before his arrest totaled more than $5000 and when he was arrested the authorities recovered $14,600, bringing the grand total to $49,960.

The defense will try to offset the effect of this evidence by showing that none of the ransom money turned up in Hauptmann's bank accounts or brokerage transactions. Reilly also has pointed out the carpenter and his wife were frugal in their habits and had considerable bank accounts before the kidnaping.

The appellate division of the New York Supreme Court today signed an order commanding James Fawcett, who was Hauptmann's original lawyer, to turn over to Hauptmann's present counsel certain documents deemed necessary to Hauptmann's defense. The nature of the papers was not disclosed.

Interruption of Witnesses.

Three times in the course of the trial Hauptmann and his wife has shown evidence of the strain under which they are laboring. On the first occasion Hauptmann muttered: "You're a liar," when John Perrone, former taxicab driver identified him as the man who gave Perrone a ransom note to deliver to Dr. John F. Condon. In the second instance, Hauptmann broke in on Thomas H. Sisk, Federal agent with "Mister, mister, you stop lying. You are telling a story."

Sisk testified Hauptmann at first denied knowing of the ransom money found in his garage, but later admitted it had been there for three weeks before he was arrested. The third interruption was by Mrs. Hauptmann who cried: "Mrs. Achenbach, you are lying." Her neighbor in the Bronx had testified that Hauptmann was apparently suffering from an injury to one leg, two days after the kidnaping, and that Mrs. Hauptmann had said she and her husband had just returned from a trip.

Hauptmann is reported to be in excellent health. When he was arrested Sept. 19 he weighed nearly 170 pounds. In the first few weeks after his arrest he lost 20 pounds. Since then he has regained four pounds.

GERMANY OFFERS SCRIP AS INTEREST ON SECURITIES

Willing to Pay 30 Per cent Cash, Rest in Paper; Proposal Under Consideration.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The Securities and Exchange Commission announced today that German Government Office for Foreign Debts had filed a registration statement seeking to offer 46,000,000 Reichsmarks in scrip to be offered in exchange for about $16,000,000 face value of interest due to American holders of German securities.

Previously the Office for Foreign Debts had registered 45,000,000 Reichsmarks in scrip for other securities.

In the connection with interest payments maturing between Jan. 1, 1934, and June 30, 1934, the office proposes to pay 70 per cent in scrip and 30 per cent in cash.

The date at which the scrip will be redeemed has not been determined. It has no maturity date and bears no interest.

The Securities Commission has yet to pass on the proposed issue.

SHOT ATTEMPTING JAIL BREAK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DECATUR, Tex., Jan. 19.—George Drobby, 28 years old, of Webb City, Mo., was dangerously wounded by Deputy Sheriff E. C. Chapman when he attempted to fight his way out of the Wise County Jail with a crude weapon at 7 o'clock tonight. Drobby sprang on Chapman, Deputy J. P. Faith and Constable C. W. Cook as they opened the cell block to admit Emmett Brown and Jean Davis, bank robbery suspects. In Drobby's hand was a club, fashioned from a smoothing iron. Chapman fired once, the bullet striking Drobby in the abdomen. Brown also attacked the officers but was knocked down.

Drobby was under a 10-year sentence for robbery at Chico, Tex., and was awaiting transfer to the state prison at Huntsville.

GIFT TO JOBLESS SETTLEMENT

Lord Nuffield Sends $150,000; Community Provides Own Needs.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—An unemployed settlement, which grows its own food, makes its own clothes and repairs its own shoes, has received $150,000 from Lord Nuffield, formerly Sir William Morris.

The motor magnate thus has provided accommodation for 1250 workless at the Upholland unemployed settlement, which occupies seven acres of land and empty farm buildings. Launched by the Society of Friends, its activities embrace vegetable growing, livestock, tailoring and carpentry. Goods are exchanged among members on the basis of hours they have worked.

FRANCE REQUESTS LEAGUE TO AID SAAR REFUGEES

Declares Geneva Should Pay for Their Upkeep, Since It Technically Still Rules the Basin.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—France requested today that the League of Nations assume financial responsibility for the upkeep of the hundreds of refugees fleeing from the Saar territory into France, because the territory is still technically administered by the League.

The French memorandum to this effect will be discussed by the League Council on Monday. The Council must decide whether the refugees shall be handled by the organization for the relief of refugees from Germany, headed by James G. McDonald of New York, or handed over to a new organization.

It was estimated 1500 Germans who took refuge in the Saar from Germany will be among those to flee from the Saar to France, together with an unestimated number of Saarlanders.

Tide of Refugees Continues to Flow Into France.

By the Associated Press.

FORBACH, France, Jan. 19.—The line of emigrants from the Saar doubled today as feeling against Saar Nazis grew in Alsace-Lorraine. Rumors of impending "preventive" arrests of anti-Nazis in the Saar and the announcement that Adolf Hitler himself would visit the territory soon after the League of Nations formally transfers it to Germany March 1, are said to have swelled the exodus of refugees.

It was estimated at sundown that 1000 had crossed the frontier at Forbach and Sarreguemines during the day.

About 3000, in all, have left the territory and Max Braun, Socialist leader who headed the fight in the Saar for retention of League of Nations rule, returned here today from Geneva to repeat his assertion that 17,000 would leave before the Nazis take over.

Alsace-Lorraine's Problem.

German-speaking residents of Alsace-Lorraine, meanwhile, said emphatically they had no intention of replying affirmatively to invitations from Berlin to join the Pan-German movement.

On the contrary, they were clamoring for protection for French products now that the Saarlanders have chosen German sovereignty. The French miners around Metz have requested the Government to discharge 5000 miners who work in France but live in the Saar, and business interests are urging the Government to diminish purchases of coal, beer, glassware and porcelain from the Saar.

Lorraine farmers, however, who stand to lose more than any other French economic sector by the reincorporation of the Saar into the Reich, apparently are resigned to their loss.

Stories of Refugees.

There were few Jews among the refugees, for most of that race who had not left the Saar before the plebiscite were business men who must liquidate their affairs. The bulk of those who have arrived thus far are those who were actively engaged in the status quo campaign, or persons who say they have been threatened by neighbors, or business men complaining of threatened violence. There were also among the refugees miners who asserted they had been replaced by unemployed men who voted with the Nazis.

The miners reported systematic attempts to replace the anti-Nazis, and this was confirmed by French mine offiicals. A strike was threatened in one mine today if the French employers who failed to accede to demands for the removal of anti-Nazis.

The French say they are now powerless as the "police are ruled by the (Nazi) German Front," despite the fact that Maj. Arthur Henderson, an Englishman, still holds the title of chief of all civil police.

Few stories of violence have been related since the report from Sarreguemines three days ago, that Nazis had killed two Communists in Neunkirchen was proved false.

The French authorities have restricted the issuance of labor permits, or their renewal, without which no foreigners can be employed. The Cabinet has adopted a policy designed to eliminate all foreigners in order to relieve the dole rolls. There are now nearly 500,000 on the rolls. Persons from the Saar usually received three-month visas, but are not allowed to work without the cards. In the trades where there is no unemployment, permits will be issued but the authorities said there were not many such trades.

Supreme Justices Spend Day On Gold Clause Case; Decision Tomorrow or Two Weeks Later

Silk Gowns and Formality of Hearings Thrown Aside During Exchange of Views in Secret Session.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The nine elderly justices of the Supreme Court sat today in judgment on one of the most important governmental questions to arise in decades—the "gold clause" cases, involving the validity of legislation suspending gold payments.

Whether the justices reached a final decision was not disclosed. If they did, there is a possibility it may be announced on Monday, with the written opinion to be prepared and made public later. They have precedent for such a course but it has been 30 years since it has been followed. If the decision is not announced on Monday, it will not be handed down until some time in February, since the court has scheduled a two weeks' recess.

The question is whether Congress exceeded its powers in declaring worthless the clause found in most bonds and contracts guaranteeing payment in gold coin or its currency equivalent.

An adverse ruling would give $100,000,000,000 of public and private bonds a value of 169,000,000,000 devaluated dollars.

How the Court Works.

Five days each week when the Supreme Court is in session, the nine Justices sit in their silken robes behind the imposing mahogany bench of the courtroom and ceremoniously hear arguments on the cases which they must settle. They enter this room in a stately procession, while attendants give each member an individual bow from the hips, and the marshal intones the ancient formula which announces that the court is in session.

But on Saturdays the Justices arrive as they please and, robeless, gather in a large Capitol chamber to exchange views on the cases which have been argued. Windows in this room almost cover two walls. Along another side there is a large fireplace, frequently used. In the fourth wall is a door leading into a smaller room, shelved with law books.

Chief Justice Hughes was first to arrive today. Associate Justices Vandevanter and Butler, close friends and neighbors, came in together. The rest reached the consultation room singly. A Negro messenger followed each with a bulky armload of records on the cases still to be decided.

Most Important Case.

An almost invariable practice of the court is to take up the most important case first, which meant, today, the gold decision. Already they presumably had devoted somewhat more than five hours to it at last Saturday's meeting, an unusually long session.

Presumably today's session followed the usual practice in the consultation room. If so, Chief Justice Hughes announced which case was to be taken up. He called on the most recently appointed member to give his views first, and then followed an order of juniority until each had spoken, himself last.

If the court is divided, one jurist has no hesitation about interrupting the discourse of another. Sometimes there are discussions in which almost all the court joins. In the past the Judges have been known to become involved in really heated arguments.

In Case of Divided Court.

A divided court, also means, obviously, that more time will be needed to reach a decision. The court prefers to present as nearly a united front on all questions as possible. It devolves upon Chief Justice Hughes to decide when further discussion is fruitless and poll the court on its final verdict. If he has voted with the majority, he assigns one of his concurring colleagues to prepare the written opinion, and the minority decides which of its number shall pen the dissenting opinion. When in the minority, the Chief Justice usually takes it upon himself to do the writing.

Frequent recesses of a fortnight or more are taken to give the Judges time for this phase of their activities. They seclude themselves in their individual offices, usually maintained at their homes, and with their law clerks looking up precedents and previous rulings.

There have been indications that the court is divided on the gold clause cases.

Law Clerks Do Research Work for Justices Who Make Decisions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Working behind the scenes in remote Capitol offices, a small group of law clerks are assembling data to help the Supreme Court decide on the constitutionality of the act of Congress suspending payment of obligations in gold.

On the nine Justices falls responsibility for ruling on the five gold clause cases, but on the Justices' law clerks and secretaries falls the bulk of the required research. Some are young lawyers, the ink on their diplomas hardly dry; others are seasoned veterans of a thousand perplexing cases. Each Justice is allowed one secretary who usually serves in a stenographic capacity; one law clerk and one messenger.

Justices Brandeis, Cardozo and Stone still abide by a precedent set by former Chief Justice Taft and employ honor students graduating from Harvard or Columbia law schools, replacing them each year. Others, like Chief Justice Hughes, have given up that practice in order to avoid an admittedly difficult "breaking in" process every fall.

In addition to serving frequently as stenographer and typist, a clerk is entrusted with studying petitions for reviews, of which there were 800 last year alone. He prepares memorandums and makes abstracts of citations, often working all night in order to lay before his Justice the next day an intelligent summary of an important case.

Usually, because the work is so difficult and because private or public practice proves too alluring, clerks do not stay long. There are notable exceptions, however—W. W. Mischler, secretary to Chief Justice Hughes, served Chief Justice Taft for many years. John W. Cragun has been clerk for Justice Sutherland for nine years. All but one of the clerks hold college degrees.

HEALTH OF HAUPTMANN JURORS SAFEGUARDED

Two Women Not Allowed to Walk When Streets Are Icy; Drafts Avoided.

By the Associated Press.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard lectures the Hauptmann jury on the value of fresh air, little walks and plenty of sunlight. The courtroom knows what to expect when he begins, "Now, at this moment I want to say just another word to the jury."

Usually his health talk runs like this: "Take plenty of exercise in the open air. Spend as much time as reasonably possible out in the open air and in the sunlight.

"Now, my suggestion to you is that you do not go for this little bus ride unless it is a fair day. Do not go out in inclement weather, and, if you do go, even in fair weather, why, be sure to get wraps enough so that you will not expose yourselves to the cold.

"With that suggestion, I leave the matter to the jury."

Sent Back for Rubbers.

Every member of the jury has rubbers or galoshes and if a juror tries to leave the hotel without his rubbers, Chief Constable Oden Baggstrom sends him back to get them.

New Jersey does not swear an alternate juror, so if the trial is to reach its conclusion, the 12 in the jury box must keep their health.

In minor cases, 11 jurors might return a verdict if one became ill, but counsel probably would not permit it in Hauptmann's case.

The six jury guards say they never have seen 12 heartier men and women, but they take every precaution. When the jury takes its Saturday ride—Frenchtown to Clinton and back to Flemington—they see that the heater in the bus works, and that the door stays closed.

Special Care for Four.

The constables have decided in conference which jurors can stand bad weather. They take special precautions to safeguard Mrs. Snyder and Mrs. Pill, Philip Hockenbury, who had a slight cold one day, and Liscom Case, a carpenter. These four are left in their quarters on bad nights, but the younger jurors walk two miles.

In these excursions, the jury has covered every section of Flemington except one side street. Usually the walk follows dinner. The jurors stay out for an hour and a half, with constables as guards. Baggstrom said the jury doesn't talk on its walks.

The woman jurors do not wear hats as they cross the street to the courtroom, but if a sniffle is heard, said Baggstrom, on go the hats to stay.

The jurors are in bed by 11, and before 6, are stirring about in their rooms. They had a birthday party tonight for Mrs. Ethel Stockton, the youngest jurywoman. She is 33 years old.

The eight men and four women filed solemnly out of the Union Hotel in mid-afternoon, moved slowly across the sidewalk and, with their guards, lined up to let news camera men take pictures. The day was cloudy and cold.

SECOND KELLEY KIDNAPING TRIAL OPENS TOMORROW

STATE PLANS TO TRY FELIX M'DONALD

Cases of Bart Davit and Mrs. Nellie Muench, Who Obtained Severances, to Be Deferred.

From his room in St. Louis County Hospital, where he has been confined since he was gravely injured in an assault last October, Prosecuting Attorney Anderson will direct his staff in the second of the Kelley kidnaping trials, scheduled to begin tomorrow morning before Circuit Judge Nolte at Clayton.

The three remaining defendants in custody—Felix Francis McDonald, Bart Davit and Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench—are all docketed for trial tomorrow, but since each has taken a severance, the State will proceed with the trial of McDonald, a Jefferson City convict.

The cases of Davit and Mrs. Muench will be deferred for later hearing. In the first trial in the case, Angelo Rosegrant was convicted on Oct. 4 of kidnaping Dr. Isaac D. Kelley for ransom on April 20, 1931, and was sentenced to 20 years in prison. His appeal is pending.

Conferences in Hospital.

Prosecutor Anderson, who is recovering from a fracture of the left leg and a streptococcus infection resulting from an attack in which his car was crowded off the road by unidentified assailants five days after Rosegrant had been convicted, is able to get about in a wheel chair and to use crutches for a few minutes each day.

He announced yesterday that before each session he would confer in his room with John J. Wolfe and John McNatt, respectively, Associate and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, about the tactics to be employed in presenting the case.

There will be conferences, too, at the close of each day's session. At these the testimony of the day will be reviewed and the strategy of the following day will be discussed. During the court sessions, the prosecutor will keep in touch with his staff by telephone.

Verne R. C. Lacy, counsel for McDonald, Davit and Mrs. Muench, said yesterday that he presumed all three defendants would be in court tomorrow, since the State's announcement that it will select McDonald for trial has been an informal one. McDonald is held in the county jail, Davit in St. Louis City Jail. Mrs. Muench, who resides at 4736 Westminster place, is at liberty on $25,000 bond.

Preparations for Trial.

In preparation for orderly handling of spectators at the trial, Sheriff Deuser has canceled all free days for his deputies, and has detailed 12, including Chief Deputy Willmann, to the courtroom and courthouse corridors. This detail will be augmented by policemen from the forces of the various county municipalities, who will be on duty at Clayton under the Sheriff's direction for the duration of the trial.

As at the Rosegrant trial, additional benches will be placed in Judge Nolte's courtroom, bringing its seating capacity for spectators to about 175. Standing room for an additional 50 to 75 also will be available. The enclosure, roped off from the spectators' section of the courtroom, will be reserved for defendants, attorneys, veniremen and newspaper men.

Witnesses for the State have been subpenaed by the Sheriff's deputies, who also have summoned 200 veniremen, scheduled to report to Circuit Judge Mueller, in charge of the petit jury assignment for the week. Veniremen will be drawn from his courtroom by Judge Nolte, as needed. Defense witnesses are being summoned by a process serving agency.

Six persons were indicted for the kidnaping of Dr. Kelley for ransom. In addition to Rosegrant and the three awaiting trial, they were John C. Johnson, Negro farmer, and Tommy Wilders, member of the notorious Shelton gang. Johnson was murdered by a machine-gunner last May 12 after he had made a written statement that Dr. Kelley was held prisoner on his farm in St. Charles County and that Rosegrant, Davit and McDonald were among his captors. Wilders is a fugitive.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 19.—Hearing by the Supreme Court of the appeal of Verne R. C. Lacey from an adverse verdict against him in the Vincenzo LoLordo estate case was continued today by stipulation on both sides, until the May term.

A Circuit Court jury in St. Louis decided on June 8, 1932, that Lacy, attorney for the administrator of the estate, had withheld $10,979 of its assets and returned a verdict against him for that amount. The plaintiff in the case was John LoLordo, illiterate brother of Vincenzo and administrator of the estate.

40-HOUR WEEK IN TELEGRAPH INDUSTRY REPORTED ADOPTED

Tentative Code, to Go Before Directors, Said to Add $8,000,000 to W. U. and Postal Payrolls.

(Copyright, 1935.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Forced to a decision by President Roosevelt's threat to impose a code, the telegraph industry has reached agreement on a 40-hour week, it was learned tonight. The tentative code, which will be set before the directors of Western Union and Postal Telegraph next week for approval, adds $8,000,000 annually to the combined payrolls of these companies.

The code will effect 59,000 workers, of whom 44,000 are employed by Western Union. At this time the industry is operating on a 48-hour week. One-third of the combined payroll addition will go to messengers, it is said. The increased payroll is expected to hasten action looking toward a merger.

Members of the Federal Communications Commission today completed a report, directed to Congress, which is said to urge legislation permitting mergers in the telegraph field. The report proposes a stipulation for inclusion in the projected merger authorization bill of a guarantee that any consolidation will not result in loss of employment to workers in the system involved.

UNION TREASURER'S FATHER MAKES GOOD ON $4100

Police Are Told That Officers of Organization Do Not Intend to Prosecute.

Complete restitution has been made of $4100 which Victor W. Quaternik stole from a credit union of fellow employes of the International Shoe Co., his father, Matthew P. Quaternik said yesterday.

Quaternik, who was treasurer of the credit union, is at liberty under $10,000 bond, pending presentation of a complaint to the Circuit Attorney's office, but his father said officers of the organization told him they did not intend to prosecute. Christ Selzer, president of the credit union, could not be reached.

Police Capt. Dineen of the Magnolia Avenue District to whom Quaternik surrendered Jan. 7 and confessed the theft, said officials of the union had visited him following an audit of the books and had corroborated the elder Quaternik's statement.

Quaternik, who is 32 years old, was employment manager of the sole leather department at the company's branch at 2001 Hickory street. He said he had been taking the credit union's funds since June and lost the money betting on horse races. He resides with his wife and two children at his father's residence, 3802 Arsenal street.

PLANE CARRYING MAN TO SICK WIFE FORCED DOWN BY STORM

Takes Off Again After Day's Delay at Atlin, B. C., in 50-Below-Zero Weather.

By the Associated Press.

ATLIN, B. C., Jan. 19. — Pilot Frank Dorbrandt and his three passengers took off today for Prince George, 600 miles distant, after a day's delay in 50-below-zero weather. He hoped to reach Seattle tomorrow.

The party took off from Anchorage, Alaska, Thursday morning, to speed Grant Reed, railroad dispatcher, to the bedside of his wife, who is seriously ill in San Diego, Cal. Other passengers were Herbert Reed, grocery manager, and Gus Gelles, manager of an Alaskan guide service.

Hurt in Fall Day After Moving In.

WOMAN TO INQUIRE INTO ALLEGED ARKANSAS EVICTIONS

Mrs. Myers, AAA Attorney, Is Sent Into Area After Arrest of Federal Relief Officer.

By the Associated Press.

JONESBORO, Ark., Jan. 19. — Mrs. Mary Connor Myers, Agricultural Adjustment Administration attorney, has been sent into Eastern Arkansas to make an nivestigation of the contracts of the sharecroppers.

She said that the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union—sharecropper organization, active in Eastern Arkansas—had complained to Secretary Wallace that "scores of tenants" were being evicted from cotton contract land in alleged violation of the Government crop control agreements.

Mrs. Myers came to Eastern Arkansas after the arrest of Ward H. Rodgers, 24-year-old Vanderbilt University graduate and Federal Emergency Relief Administration school teacher, who was charged with inciting a meeting of tenants at Marked Tree, near here.

He was held at Jonesboro in $3000 bond, but Farmers' Union attorneys today obtained a habeas corpus hearing and gained a reduction in bond to $2000 on two felony charges of intimidation and conspiracy to usurp the Government. A hearing was arranged for Monday at Marked Tree on two other charges of anarchy and using profane and abusive language. Rodgers was unable to make the bond.

Local authorities charged he had referred to "mob action" at the tenants' meeting. Rodgers denied any intent to inflame the crowd, asserting he merely had pointed out that remedial measures were needed in the sharecroppers' problem.

ST. LOUISAN IS PROMOTED IN HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

Stewart McDonald Made Assistant to Administrator James A. Moffett.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Stewart McDonald of St. Louis, once president of the Moon Motor Co., today was appointed assistant Federal Housing Administrator by James A. Moffett, the administrator.

McDonald had been a special assistant to Moffett since last August. In his new office he will be executive officer of the housing administration, responsible only to Moffett.

One of the earliest Roosevelt supporters, McDonald, was active in raising funds for his campaign. During the administration of Gov. Hyde he was a member of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners.

JUDGE DISQUALIFIES HIMSELF IN KERCHKOFF ALIMONY CASE

Motion of Wife for Temporary Payments Will Be Heard by Judge Witthaus.

Circuit Judge Nolte yesterday disqualified himself in the motion of Mrs. Alma Menze Kerckhoff, wife of Daniel C. Kerckhoff, wealthy president of the Pevely Dairy, for temporary alimony when the motion was called for hearing at Clayton. The hearing was transferred to Circuit Judge Witthaus' court and set for next Saturday.

Mrs. Kerckhoff filed suit for divorce in St. Louis last Nov. 7 and the following day Kerckhoff filed a similar action in St. Louis County. Mrs. Kerckhoff also asked for maintenance money for their two children and for counsel fees.

DETAILS OF HART'S CONTRACT WITH HAMILTON-BROWN

Copy Circulated in Officers' Fight Shows President Was Hired for 5 Years, Given Stock Option.

W. Finley McElroy Jr., a director of the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. and one of the plaintiffs in the suit filed last week asking that a receiver be appointed for the company, is sending letters to stockholders seeking their support in his effort to wrest control from those now in charge of its affairs.

With the letters is sent a copy of the contract between the company and its president, Luke E. Hart, an attorney, which McElroy asserts is "extremely one-sided and contrary to the best interests of the company." The contract, McElroy says, was drawn by Hart and signed by officers of the company, without having been shown to at least three of the firm's seven directors.

The letters refer also to the charge of mismanagement made in the receivership suit. McElroy, a grandson of the late Alanson D. Brown, who founded the company 52 years ago, asserts that an audit ordered by him indicated that financial statements of the company misrepresented its true condition and true earnings "to the extent of more than $100,000."

Hart Contract for 5 Years.

The Hart contract was executed last October, shortly after Hart, who had been general counsel for the company, was elected its president.

Copies distributed by McElroy show that the contract was to be binding for five years, whether or not Hart was re-elected by the board of directors. He was to receive a minimum salary of $10,000 a year for serving as president and general counsel, and reserved the right to continue his general law practice and his duties as Supreme advocate of the Knights of Columbus.

The contract gave Hart an option on 25,000 shares of the company's stock for five years, entitling him to purchase the stock at $8 a share whenever its market or book value might reach or exceed $16 a share. A further provision was that if the business of the company improved during the life of the contract, Hart's salary was to be increased commensurately.

At present the stock is quoted on the St. Louis Stock Exchange at 2½ bid, 3¼ asked. The last sale was at 3¼. There are 200,000 shares outstanding, and 100,000 shares authorized but unissued.

Says Company Has Lost Ground.

"It is my opinion," McElroy's letters state, "that the company will be benefitted rather than injured by this action (receivership) because under the management of Alanson C. Brown, Luke E. Hart and Harry L. Tomes the company has steadily lost ground and has in recent years, with one exception, been operated at a substantial deficit. This company, founded by my grandfather, was once the largest shoe company in the world, and I hope, through this action to again place the firm under competent management so that it can regain a proud position in the industry."

Alanson C. Brown, whose removal as a director of the company is sought in the receivership suit, is a son of the founder. His sisters, Mrs. Estella Brown McElroy and Mrs. Jane Brown Collins, are plaintiffs in the suit, with McElroy and George S. Johns, both directors. Mrs. McElroy and Mrs. Collins each inherited 24,304 shares of the company's stock from their father's estate.

Hart, after the suit was filed Thursday, issued a statement denying in detail the allegations of the petition. There will be a hearing next Thursday before Circuit Judge O'Malley.

NEW PLAZA HOTEL INVOLVED IN RECEIVERSHIP ACTION

Mrs. Daisy G. Cornwell, Part Owner, Files Suit; Mrs. Maude Walker Is Defendant.

Suit for an accounting and appointment of a receiver for the New Plaza Hotel, 3301 Olive street, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Daisy G. Cornwell, joint owner of the property with her sister, Mrs. Maude S. Walker.

Mrs. Walker, president of a company which leased the building and operated the hotel, was defendant. The petition alleged terms of the lease had been violated. Mrs. Walker declined to comment.

ANTI-LONG 'SHOCK TROOPS' MARSHALED IN AT BATON ROUGE

Young Commander Addresses "Battalion;" Units to Be Formed in Other Parishes.

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 19.—Marshaled in military formation under an American flag, 340 East Baton Rouge Parish citizens were organized late today into the headquarters "shock troop battalion" of the Square Deal Association of Louisiana which is challenging Senator Huey P. Long's dictatorship.

Assembling in a row of "companies" at the notes of a bugle call, citizens of many types fell into line at the Parish Airport. There was no actual drilling or military maneuvers. There were no arms carried. But the elements of military organization and appearance were closely followed.

Ernest J. Bourgeois, 28-year-old Square Deal commander shouted instructions through a megaphone along the line of battalion formation. When the lines were formed he addressed the men. It was understood that companies are to be formed in other parishes of the State.

The Square Deal Association, at a mass meeting Jan. 6 gave Gov. Allen ten days in which to call a special Legislative session to repeal dictatorship measures imposed by Senator Huey Long.

WOULD LET HUSBAND OR WIFE TESTIFY AGAINST EACH OTHER

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Attorney-General Cummings today asked the House Committee on Judiciary to act favorably on a bill to lift the "dead hand of the common law rule of 1789" and let a husband or wife testify against the other in court.

The bill to make a spouse a competent witness in a Federal criminal proceedings was one of several the Department of Justice proposed to strengthen the procedure in prosecutions after a criminal is apprehended.

Under the proposed bill, the witness would be protected from testifying on confidential communications except as the law now provides in cases of importation of aliens for immoral purposes.

A proposal to give to United States Marshals and their deputies blanket Federal authority to carry arms at any time and anywhere was among the other bills forwarded by the Attorney-General. The bill also would authorize a Marshal to serve all processes originating either in his own or another district; whereas now a Federal Marshal often has to travel across the entire country to serve a paper.

ACTIVE CRATERS FOUND AT BOTTOM OF OCEAN

Dutch Scientist Says Huge Openings Are Vomiting Water Between Brazil and Africa.

By the Associated Press.

RECIFE, Brazil, Jan. 19.—Volcanic tremors and active craters at the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean between this easternmost port of the Americas and Dakar, farthest west in Africa, were revealed today by the Dutch scientist, Vening Meinesz.

The Dutch submarine K-18 arrived en route to Buenos Aires from Java in a 23,000-mile scientific and good will cruise. The scientist said soundings were made at the lowest depth of the ocean, the celebrated Romanche pit, 4.72 miles below the level of the sea.

The pit is between two mountain ranges, one 1.615 miles below the level and the other 1.992 miles below.

"The hitherto unknown volcanic region, as well as the enormous craters apparently vomiting water into the very ocean," Meinesz said, "has been discovered for the first time." He expressed the opinion Central Brazil probably is the oldest geological region in the world.

INJURED IN TRYING TO CATCH GIRL FALLING FROM WINDOW

Man Had Run to Sidewalk When Singer, Quarreling With Husband, Threatened to Jump.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Jan. 19.—An Argentine singer, Libertad Lamarque, came to court in a wheel chair today after a night in jail to explain how and why she leaped or fell from a second-floor hotel window after a quarrel with her husband.

Witnesses said when the singer threatened to jump, her husband called for help and two men ran to the sidewalk below to catch her.

Apparently the girl's fall was broken by a cornice which she struck in falling. From there she dropped into the arms of a dentist, Julio Besoain, who was knocked to the pavement and seriously injured.

The Judge dismissed the case.

HEAVIER PENALTIES URGED IN GUILTY PLEAS

Circuit Attorney Starts Drive Against Felonious Flight and Concealed Weapon Crimes.

A move to reduce the number of crimes of felonious flight and carrying concealed weapons, by recommending more severe punishment upon pleas of guilty, was begun yesterday by Circuit Attorney Miller.

In a letter to his three courtroom assistants, Miller instructed them, in negotiating with defendants or their counsel on pleas of guilty, to "insist upon a sentence of imprisonment for a substantial time in the jail or workhouse, in automobile 'hit-and-run' cases, or, in aggravated cases, upon the minimum penitentiary term of two years."

The practice heretofore of allowing defendants in such cases to plead guilty upon payment of a fine has "proven ineffective," he said.

"Insist upon recommending to the court in concealed weapons cases a minmum sentence of not less than three months in the workhouse or jail, or a fine of not less than $200," and in cases where the defendant has previously been convicted of a felony, to insist upon the maximum sentence of two years in the penitentiary. The practice has been to accept guilty pleas for first offenders upon payment of a minimum fine of $100 or the minimum imprisonment of 50 days in the workhouse or jail.

During the six years Miller has been in office, he has obtained 63 convictions on charges of feloniously leaving the scene of an injury and 816 for carrying concealed weapons.

"The streets of this city," the letter states, "have become a danger zone, both to pedestrians and careful drivers, by reason of the reckless drivers who fail to obey the law by turning in their names and addresses after killing or injuring someone. I suggest that in the vast majority of such cases the driver who flees is not actuated by mere fright of conviction, as often claimed, but is seeking merely to avoid the consequence of what they well know to be criminal carelessness.

"I have come to the conclusion that the offense of carrying a concealed weapon has become a very serious problem in this city and the imposition of the minimum penalties has proven ineffective. In a very large percentage of cases of first-degree robbery, the defendant is found committing it with a deadly weapon, usually a pistol or revolver, and in very many cases with the assistance of a stolen automobile. Without these accessories the number of robberies would be very materially reduced."

ADDITIONAL FEES ALLOWED IN THREE BANK LIQUIDATIONS

Guy A. Thompson, Counsel, Gets $2810 for Services, Over Monthly Salary.

Additional compensation totaling $2810 was allowed yesterday by Circuit Judge O'Malley to Guy A. Thompson for services as attorney to the State Finance Commissioner in the liquidation of the Lowell Bank, the Shaw Bank & Trust Co. and the Grant State Bank, all of which are closed.

The allowance is based on an agreement under which counsel was to receive extra fees for litigation and other extraordinary services in connection with the liquidations.

The agreement provided that the stated monthly salary of counsel for ordinary services in the case of the Lowell Bank would be $250, Grant State $150, and the Shaw Bank $100. This contract was entered into May 21, 1932. Extra compensation for the Lowell Bank amounted to $1540, Shaw Bank $755 and the Grant State, $516.

GETS LIFE FOR HOLDUP MURDER

EX-CONVICT GETS LIFE TERM FOR ABELN MURDER

Schnelt's car. He told police where they were and they were recovered.

The defendant was at ease during his direct examination. He slouched comfortably in the witness chair, his fingers interlocked across his chest and answered variously: "No sir," "I did not," and "none whatever."

He did corroborate Douthitt on one point; that he and Douthitt had met while they were both in the Missouri Penitentiary. In response to another question he said he had served two prison terms for robbery. His ease deserted him, however, when Flynn produced the two notes signed "F." After some hesitation Kennedy denied that the notes were in his handwriting. The mail censor at the jail testified he was familiar with Kennedy's handwriting and asserted both notes were written by the defendant.

METROPOLITAN COIFFEUR DIES

Irving Herold Was in Charge of Wigs Used in Operas.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Irving Herold, who had charge of the 1000 wigs of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is dead. His body was found in the entry to a Times Square Subway station Friday night several hours after he had left the opera house with a complaint of feeling ill.

He had been coiffeur for the Metropolitan since April, 1931, when William J. Punzel was killed by an automobile. For 15 years before that Herold had been Punzel's assistant.

THREE YOUTHS LASHED AT WHIPPING POST

Robbers Also Receive Three-Year Terms in Delaware; They Beat Victim.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 19.—Delaware's primitive means of punishment—the whipping post—was used again today as the lash was laid across the bare backs of three youths who confessed beating and robbing a farmer on Christmas eve.

Shivering in the freezing weather and stripped to the waist, they came one by one to a small enclosed yard at the New Castle Workhouse where Warden Leach applied the lashes to them in less than four minutes. About 75 men were witnesses.

The three—Walter L. Bedwell, 18 years old, and Hazel Donovan, 21, both of Smyrna, and John Lightcap Jr., 23, of Townsend—bore red streaks as they left the scene, but jail officers said the wounds were superficial.

Andrew E. Skaggs, of near Townsend, the victim of the youths' assault and robbery Dec. 24, is still suffering from his injuries. They robbed him of $105.

The youths were arrested a few day later by county police and in General Sessions Court a week ago pleaded guilty. In addition to the whipping the three received three-year sentences.

Donovan walked hurriedly from the tunnel leading from the main prison building to the yard. Quickly his wrists were shackled above his head to the post, and the lash applied.

After 10 strokes he was unshackled. He ran into the tunnel where guards threw a cover around his bare back. He was then taken to the hospital where his wounds were treated.

Bedwell came next followed by Lightcap. His father was sentenced to a year in prison for receiving part of the stolen money.

Next Saturday, Bernardo Fiorenti, convicted of a similar offense, will be whipped. In sentencing Fiorenti this week, Chief Justice Layton asked that the attention of the workhouse trustees be called to the statute which directs the lashes be "well laid on."

NET EARNINGS OF $26,000,000 FOR RFC IN 1934

Jesse H. Jones, Chairman, Reports to Congress That 61 Per Cent of All Loans Have Been Repaid.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — A healthy financial condition, with net earnings of $26,002,917 in 1934, was reported today by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, in formally asking Congress for authority to bolster the real estate mortgage market and help railroads to reorganize.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman, in making the report, said that, since its organization in February, 1932, the Corporation had made $65,175,963 in profits.

The chairman recommended Congress grant authority for the Corporation to extend the time for repayments from five to 10 years, so that, he said, money which otherwise would be paid the Government might be used to aid recovery.

The R. F. C. expires on Jan. 31 but the administration already has planned its extension for two more years.

"With bank repair approximately completed," the report said, "the objects which we believe still need especial assistance by the F. F. C. are:

"1. A continuation of commodity loans through the Commodity Credit Corporation;

"2. Nation-wide assistance to real estate mortgages;

"3. Assistance to railroads on a secured basis;

"4. Industrial loans for modernization and replacement of plant and equipment, including in some instances composition of debts on a basis that will enable the borrower to continue operations."

The RFC said 61 per cent of all loans made by it had been repaid, including those to 914 banks which closed after getting the cash.

"Nationwide Assistance."

"We think," Jones said, "we can be of very real nationwide assistance by helping to promote and revive a market for real estate mortgages not necessarily eligible through the Farm Credit or Home Owners' lending agencies and by co-operating with these agencies and with the Federal Housing Administration as well as public works in construction projects—all on a sound basis.

"A very large part of our population has some direct or indirect interest in real estate and anything that can be done toward restoring a sound loan value or market value for real estate mortgages will be helpful to a vast number of people.

"We are convinced that this can be done without cost to the taxpayer and with very little use of Government credit. . . .

"We have given a great deal of study to the railroad situation and feel that there is considerable that this corporation can safely do in aid of railroads generally without ultimate loss of the Government. It is not our thought even to approach railroad ownership but with some further loans and probably some limited guarantees, we can help very materially in reorganization and consolidation."

Smallest and Largest Loans.

Jones disclosed the smallest loan RFC authorized was for $500 and the largest $174,609,000, to the defunct First National Bank of Detroit for liquidation purposes.

The corporation has authorized 20,316 loans to 10,589 separate borrowers and, of the 61 per cent repayments, Jones said that, "while repayments are gratifying, indicating the great strength of our country and in large measure the degree of recovery attained, they evidence continued liquidation not necessarily helpful to recovery."

For the first time, the Corporation this year issued a finnacial table showing its activities under the Hoover and Roosevelt administrations.

It showed that, during the former period, loans totaling $2,197,721,094 were authorized and $589,715,474 allocated to Government agencies and for relief with disbursements of $1,730,527,230 on loans and $296,537,000 to Government agencies and for relief.

Since the Roosevelt administration took charge, the Corporation has authorized loans totaling $4,604,003,343 and disbursed $3,128,334,550 to borrowers and allocated $1,573,273,017 to Government agencies and relief and disbursed $1,692,674,437.

3 BOYS, 3 GIRLS WIN WASHINGTON U. AWARD

Chosen From High School Graduating Classes for 4-Year Scholarships.

Announcement of the semi-annual award of Washington University scholarships to outstanding graduates of the public high schools was made yesterday by Superintendent of Instruction Gerling. Certificates will be presented at commencement exercises this week.

Three girls and three boys who won four-year courses at the university are:

Central—Harold Garber, son of Benedict Garber, a baker, 5185 Kensington avenue.

Soldan—Ruth Darevsky, daughter of Sol Darevsky, a merchant, 5238A Minerva avenue.

All the scholarship winners are 16 years old, except Miss Buddensick, who is 17. Four of them ranked at the head of their classes, with the best average grades for the four years in high school, while Miss Buddensick was second in a class of 220 and Cornblath second in a class of 129. In determining the winners, consideration was given to scholastic ability, leadership in student activities, general intellectual promise, capabilities for intellectual growth and traits of character.

Average grades of the winners for their high school work were: Miss Buddensick, 92.48 per cent; Garber, 93.47; Miss Kuenne, 93.75; Cornblath, 93.36; Tidrow, 94.45; Miss Darevsky, 93.55.

Record Graduating Class.

There will be a record number of high school graduates at mid-year commencements this week, when 1336 boys and girls will receive their diplomas. Last January there were 1144 graduates.

Last June, at the regular commencement, a record number of 1756 completed public high school courses. About 3050 children will finish eight-grade work in the elementary schools this week, compared to 2899 a year ago.

The number of graduates in each school will be: Beaumont, 220; Central, 93; Cleveland, 250; McKinley, 129; Roosevelt, 216; Soldan, 237; Hadley Vocational School, 29; Sumner High (Negro), 70; Vashon (Negro), 92.

At Blewett High School and Booker T. Washington (Negro) Vocational School there will be no graduating classes. Harris and Stowe Teachers' Colleges have graduations annually, in June.

Central High, which, for about eight years, has used the old Yeatman High School building, has given diplomas to more than 10,000 persons in its 82 years of existence since 1853.

The dates of the high school exercises, and the names of Board of Education members who will participate in them, follow:

Beaumont, 4 p. m. Friday, Ben Weidle.

Central, 8 p. m. Thursday (in Beaumont auditorium), Howard G. Cook.

Cleveland, 8 p. m. Thursday; James J. Fitzgerald.

McKinley, 8 p. m. Thursday, Arthur A. Blumeyer.

Roosevelt, 8 p. m. Friday, Dr. Francis C. Sullivan.

Soldan, 10 a. m. Thursday, Dr. David C. Todd.

Hadley, 3 p. m. Wednesday, Emil J. Barth.

Sumner, 8 p. m. Thursday, Richard Murphy.

LOUISE SYLVESTER, VETERAN AMERICAN ACTRESS, DIES AT 83

Member of Famous Union Square Theater Company; In Original Cast of "Siberia."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Louise Sylvester Maxwell, veteran actress of the American stage, died last night at her home. She was 83 years old.

Born in Albany, she made her first appearance on the stage when a child. During the seventies she was a member of the famous Union Square Theater Company and also played with F. F. Mackay at the Chestnut Street Theater, Philadelphia, supporting John E. Owens, John T. Raymond, and Charlotte Thompson.

In 1882 she was in the original cast of Bartley Campbell's play "Siberia," at the California Theater in San Francisco, where she met Barry Maxwell, to whom she was married. She was later under the direction of William A. Brady. She used the stage name Louise Sylvester. Funeral services will be held Monday.

ROYAL DRAPERY FACTORY DEPRIVED OF ITS BLUE EAGLE

NRA charges Firm Paid Employes Less Than Minimum Under Cotton Garment Code.

The Royal Drapery Manufacturing Co., 704 Washington avenue, has been deprived of its right to display the blue eagle by L. J. Martin, chief of the compliance division of the National Recovery Administration, it was announced at NRA headquarters here yesterday.

Martin declared the company had paid under the minimum wage provided by the Cotton Garment Code. It was charged that from last Jan. 30 to Sept. 10 the firm paid 60 persons a total of $3103.32 under the minimum in manufacturing house dresses.

David Governick, head of the firm, declined to comment on the charges, explaining the company had not subscribed to the cotton code.

CHARITY WORKER INTERRUPTS HOLDUP; SHE GETS 45 CENTS

Both Robbers and Victims Contribute; She Leaves Unaware of What Was Going On.

By the Associated Press.

PADUCAH, Ky., Jan. 19. — A payroll robbery was in progress when Mrs. Gertrude Snyder, a worker for the Volunteers of America, walked into the office of the N. E. Stone Construction Co. today with tambourine extended.

Noticing H. M. Crosby in a corner with his hands partly raised, she innocently asked, "Can you help the poor?" A robber looked at her and muttered "no." As she turned to leave, he said, "Sure, wait a minute," and he tossed a quarter into the tambourine.

"This man will help you, too," the robber added, pointing to Crosby. Crosby handed her a dime and said, "Maybe that man will help, too," pointing to F. G. Horton, who sat at a desk with a revolver against his ribs. A robber guarding Horton tossed her a dime of the company's money. With a round of "thanks" the woman left, unaware she had interrupted a robbery. She told police later she saw a revolver but though someone was displaying it to a friend. The holdup men got about $170 and escaped.

INSTITUTE ON 'CONSUMER AND THE COST OF LIVING'

Four Washington University professors, Dr. Frank J. Bruno, Dr. Joseph M. Klamon, Dr. Stuart A. Queen, and Dr. Ralph F. Fuchs, will speak at the institute on "The Consumer and the Cost of Living," sponsored by the St. Louis Consumers' Council on Feb. 7.

They will join Dr. Frederick C. Howe, consumers' council of the AAA, Dr. Max Lerner of the consumers' division of the National Emergency Council, and several St. Louis authorities in all day discussion of price-fixing, unfair trade practices, inflation, and other controversial economic questions.

Other speakers on the program discussing various phases of the general subject include the Rev. W. F. Mullaly, vice-chairman of the Consumers' Council, the Rev. Dr. George M. Gibson of Webster Groves, Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman, Dean Alphonse Eberle of St. Louis University, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, chairman of the Consumers' Council, and Prof. Tyrell Williams of Washington University will also take part in the discussions.

More than 100 organizations including educational institutions, women's clubs, and professional groups, are supporting the institute. Sessions will be held in the St. Louis University Law School auditorium at 10:30 a. m. and 2:15 p. m. and at the Soldan High School auditorium at 8 p. m. Open forums will be held at all meetings, so that every point of view may be expressed.

ETHIOPIA AND ITALY ACCEPT LEAGUE'S OFFER

Agree to Negotiate Boundary Dispute, Geneva to Step In If Settlement Is Not Reached by May.

JAPAN'S MANDATE IS CONSIDERED

Talk of Special Session to Consider Its Status When Nation Quits League on March 27.

GENEVA, Jan. 19.—The League of Nations today apparently averted another international crisis by inducing Italy and Ethiopia to settle their African border difficulties in direct negotiations. A private session of the League Council ratified an agreement, previously accepted by representatives of the two nations, whereby they pledged themselves to avoid new military conflict. If the controversy is not settled by May, the agreement provides, it will come up for discussion before the council.

Italy previously had questioned the League's competency to handle the dispute, but Pierre Laval, French Foreign Minister, combined with Capt. Anthony Eden, British Lord Privy Seal in urging direct negotiations.

(Several times in recent months Italian and Ethiopian troops have engaged in fighting along a disputed boundary line. The most serious clash occurred at Ualual last fall, on territory claimed by both nations. Thirty Italian soldiers and 110 Ethiopians were killed in that battle, Rome's advices said. In communications to the League, both nations charged the other was the aggressor).

Japan Out March 27.

Some quarters are advocating a special session of the League Counsel to consider the problem of Japan's responsibility to the League of Nations concerning her mandate over the Pacific Islands, once her resignation from the League becomes effective on March 27.

In questioning today Japan's alleged fortifying of former German Islands in the Pacific, the Council in no way discussed Japan's right to maintain these Islands in the future, nor did it tacitly or otherwise approve Japan's right to maintain them.

The League has been represented as believing that, from a practical standpoint, nothing short of the dispatch of an International Navy would induce Japan to relinquish the islands and the League does not even dream of taking such a step. What it can do is to insist that Japan continue to bow to the League's right of supervision over the islands.

Japan's Reputed Stand.

The Associated Press was given to understand that Japan plans to continue her co-operation with the League even after her resignation becomes effective. Japan was expected to do this along the lines now followed by the United States and along the lines which Germany may adopt through co-operation piecemeal with Geneva without resuming complete membership.

It is understood that Japan already has canvassed the powers on behalf of election of a Japanese to the World Court of Justice Bench to succeed Judge Adatchi. A movement seems to be forming against the designation of a Japanese because Japan resigned from the League after condemnation of her action in seizing Manchuria.

Similar opposition has been noted as developing against permitting Japan to continue to have representation on financial, economic and other standing committees of the League of Nations.

Russians Put on Committees.

Overriding objections of members of its financial committee, appointed Soviet representatives full-fledged members of the League's financial and economic committees today.

There were unconfirmed reports that the entire financial committee, on which Norman H. Davis is the American delegate, might resign as a consequence.

Alexander Svanidze, chairman of the Bank of Foreign Trade in Moscow, was named to the financial committee and Boris Rosenblum, member of the economic section of the Soviet foreign office, to the economic committee. Prof. Wolf Bronner of the Moscow faculty of medicine, was appointed to the league's health committee.

ALLOWANCE TO MRS. FORISTEL

An allowance of $5000 as a year's support was made by Probate Judge Arnold yesterday in favor of Mrs. Mae Foristel against the estate of her husband, Edward W. Foristel, a lawyer who died July 10. Counsel for Mrs. Foristel, who is administratrix of the estate, had asked for $7500.

An inventory recently filed placed a value on Foristel's holdings at $24,565. However, this did not include certain stocks, cash advances to various persons and loans totaling about $450,000. The value of these assets is undetermined.

ARBITRARY LEVIES FOR PERSONAL TAX IN COUNTY LISTED

Personal property tax returns for 1935 taxes in St. Louis County were certified to the County Clerk yesterday by Assessor Neaf. The valuations were as of last June 1.

The list included some levies made arbitrarily by the Assessor, in cases where returns were not made by persons supposed to own property. Under the law, in such cases, the Assessor may estimate what a fair return would be, and then double that figure.

Heading the list of arbitrary levies was $102,400 assessed against F. E. Orcutt, 6602 Clemens avenue, University City. That was double an arbitrary levy made against Orcutt last year.

$76,800 Against Frank Brown.

Other arbitrary assessments of more than $25,000 were: Frank Brown, 423 South Sappington road, Kirkwood, $76,800; Georgianna Baird, 831 Big Bend road, Oakland, $55,120; Mrs. O. R. Gibbons, 6822 Washington avenue, University City, $51,200; Bernard Beckman, 6415 Cates avenue, University City, $44,800; Herman Williams, 6411 Clayton road, Clayton, $40,000; William E. Mayer, 3046 Cambridge avenue, Maplewood, $40,000; Hyman Bierman, 6603 Clemens avenue, University City, $38,400; J. U. Callahan, 7310 Lindell avenue, University City, $28,800; V. G. Callahan, 7032 Kingsbury boulevard, University City, $28,800; J. A. Wentz, 7335 Shaftsbury avenue, University City, $25,600 and George Harsh, Geyer road, $25,600.

Returns of more than $15,000, made by property owners for themselves, were as follows:

Joseph Pulitzer, Clayton and Barnes roads, $76,500; M. B. Greensfelder, 115 North Meramec avenue, Clayton, $59,270; F. W. A. Vesper, Heintz road, $40,580; E. H. Simmons, 900 South Hanley road, Clayton, $36,390; M. J. May, 11 Brentmoor park, $21,210; Mrs. Minnie M. Howard, Lackland road, $21,050; Herman Wilmas, Kerhs Mil road, $20,610; Julius H. Mueller, Ladue road, $20,350, and E. J. Thomas, 6677 Washington avenue, University City, $15,000.

Large Returns on Estates.

Returns of more than $25,000 on estates were: Elizabeth Bold, University City, $115,610; Edwin T. Nugent, Country Club grounds, $105,890; Henri R. Beckemeier, Creve Coeur, $74,590; Jeannetta Schockmiller, Kirkwood, $60,190; Thomas E. Price Jr., $56,320; August A. Busch, $51,270; Phil DeC. Ball, Florissant, $50,050; William Woerner, University City, $37,630; Magdaline Roth, University City, $35,120; E. W. Grove, Richmond Heights, $31,900; Capt. William P. Schaaf, Maplewood, $30,010; William Baer, University City, $28,230; D. D. Walker Jr., Deer Creek Village, $27,920; Marie Schweitzer, Creve Coeur, $27,410; Eugene Muehlmann, Chesterfield, $26,200, and John C. Heimor, Jefferson Barracks, $25,300.

The returns have not yet been totaled. Usually the personal property levy in the county runs between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000.

Gov. Park Issues Requisition.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 19.—Gov. Park issued a requisition today for the return of Frank Cantley from Miami, Ok., to Newton County, Mo., where he is wanted on a first-degree robbery charge in connection with the holdup of Ross Keeling on Nov. 22, last, in which $500 in cash was taken.

Pay Low in Cotton Mills Though Manufacturers Generally Are Obeying NRA Code, Report Says

Labor Bureau Gives Out Figures Without Comment—Cost of Goods Bought by Workers Has Increased.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—A long-awaited report on wages in the cotton textile industry, a document covering 70 typewritten pages, was made public today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Labor Department, in accordance with the terms by which the general textile strike of last September was terminated. The bureau said it found that cotton manufacturers in general were obeying the wage provisions of the NRA codes, but that cotton mill workers still were among the lowest paid in a major industry.

The report, sent to the NRA for ultimate action or decision, was entirely factual in nature, making neither recommendations nor conclusions.

Details of Report.

"(1) Real average weekly earnings rose with the introduction of the code.

"(2) The cost of goods purchased by textile workers rose 5 per cent in the North and 8 per cent in the South from June, 1933, to August, 1934. There was a further increase to October, 1934.

"(3) The curtailment of production in effect from May to August, 1934, the real average earnings of males were 5 to 8 per cent less than in July, 1933. The real average earnings of females in August, 1934, were 7 per cent higher in the North and 16 per cent higher in the South than in July, 1933.

"(4) Real earnings of almost every worker were less in August, 1934, than in August, 1933. In the North the average real earnings declined 15 per cent, in the South 25 per cent.

"(5) The charge that increases in the rent of company houses have been used to offset wage increases does not apply to most mills in the country. In almost all mills studied there has been no change in rents.

"(6) In some isolated cases rent advances have been made which offset, in those particular mills, average wage increases for the industry."

The Basic Problem.

Despite its general findings that earnings had been increased, employment increased and other benefits bestowed by the cotton code, the report pointed out.

"This conflict between those seeking more adequate incomes from the industry and those contending that this is beyond the financial capacity of the industry is the basic problem of the industry."

Because of the difficulties over wages, with labor demanding a higher return and industry complaining of falling consumption, the report said it was "the more important, that everything possible be done to remove other causes of discontent, mentioning specifically the "stretchout" system, a practice, now forbidden, by which the work load on the individual worker is increased with no corresponding increase in wage.

"The stretchout as a source of discontent," the report said, "lies beyond the province of the bureau and is being handled by the work assignment boards. We must note, however, the intimate connection which exists between this problem and the capacity of the industry to pay, and between the stretchout and wages in the minds of workers.

"In sections of this report dealing with the payment of wages less than those prescribed in the code and with exemptions from the code, the bureau discusses the problem of enforcement. The facts developed in this report indicate an overwhelming compliance with the minimum wage provisions of the code. But it would involve self-delusion to conclude that it is unimportant that one or two workers out of every hundred receive wages less than are prescribed in the code. Unless a system is developed of reporting apparent violations by well-instructed representatives of the workers' interests in each mill, it promises to be impossible to remove the disturbance of friendly industrial relations."

Union Leader's Comment.

Francis J. Gorman, vice-president of the United Textile Workers, said the report "rips the covers from the naked greed, the inhuman callousness of the mill owners and their manufacturers."

Gorman had declined to comment on reports that preparations were being made for another nation-wide textile strike in the spring, but after reading the report he declared, in a statement:

"If it takes another strike to accomplish something more in the way of reaching the goal which we have set, he will know more next time of how to go about that, too."

He added that on the basis of the Labor Department's report, the United Textile Workers "now make these demands:"

A shortening of the work week, now restricted to 40 hours.

Ernest N. Hood, president of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, a New England group, declared in a statement issued here that the industry, admittedly weak, was forced to bear the brunt of supporting the cotton farmer.

Hood said several factors were responsible for the industry's present condition, among them consumer resistance to prices "forced upward by the imposition of the cotton processing tax, and increased labor costs due to the shorter work week and higher wages required by the cotton code."

AUTO LICENSE COLLECTIONS FOR 1934 DROP $2,042,900

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 19.—State automobile license fee collections for 1934 totaled $7,343,300, according to a report prepared today by V. H. Steward, Motor Vehicle Registration Commissioner. This is a reduction of $2,042,900 from the license fee collections for 1933.

The reduction in collections, Steward said, was due to the fact the 1933-1934 special session of the Legislature passed an act providing that the license year should begin on Jan. 1 instead of Feb. 1. As a result the 1934 license plates were issued for eleven-twelfths of the reduced fees fixed by the special session.

Steward's report to Secretary of State Brown showed 631,783 passenger cars were licensed during 1934, as compared to the total of 592,981 cars licensed in 1933; that 108,032 motor truck license plates were issued in 1934, as compared to 103,542 in 1933, that 18,024 trailer plates were issued in 1934 as compared to 13,177 in 1933, and that 37,419 chauffeurs' licenses were issued in 1934, as compared with 33,396 issued in 1933.

AUTO CODE RENEWAL DIFFERENCES IN NRA

"Unfortunate Impression," Says Richberg of Automatic Extension Feb. 1—Board Views.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Donald R. Rihcberg is in some disagreement with officials of NRA's administrative board on the automobile code. Richberg, head of the National Emergency Council and also o fthe group named to draft NRA policy, said at the White House it was "an unfortunate impression" that the automobile code was to be renewed automatically on Feb. 1. Members of the board had said they knew of no difficulties in the way of renewal.

An indication that members of the board have opposite viewpoints followed a recent speech by S. Clay Williams, board chairman, who said that NRA should be continued on a temporary basis, substantially without change. Other members of the board, questioned as to whether this speech represented the board, said no emphatically.

Some of Their Differences.

Blackwell Smith, NRA acting counsel, said recently the board would make no recommendations on the question of legislation. Another official said any recommendations would be strictly informal in nature, and that more or less formal suggestions would be made on whatever legislation was shaped by Congress.

Board members, however, interpreted the differences as those of healthy argument.

Richberg said the automobile code would be carefully studied before a decision was reached on its renewal. Discussing the work of an NRA committee, which is studying the possibility of smoothing out employment fluctuations in the industry, he said the committee was "named particularly to report on working conditions, and more specifically to study the possibility of regularizing employment."

He said the automobile employers had shown an interest in the regularization of employment "but the main question is the speed with which it is to be done."

Noting that about 13,500 employes in Detroit out of about 16,000 who have so far voted had declared against affiliation with labor organizations, Richberg characterized this as "very interesting."

Industry Spokesman's View.

A spokesman for the automobile industry said that so far as he knew the industry expected to renew the code without change on Feb. 1.

Whatever the result of the NRA study, it was his opinion that proposed changes could not be made in time to be included in the code, and that changing of the code presumably would necessitate hearings. Usually a 20-day notice is given for such hearings, more time that is available between now and Feb. 1.

Meanwhile, the NRA was criticised by the Machinery and Allied Products Institute in a statement that "the policy of restricting production of machinery and other capital goods which was written into early NRA codes still constitutes an important bar to economic recovery and re-employment in the capital goods industries."

NRA recently has removed some production restrictions.

Burglar Gets $419 and Jewelry.

A burglar broke into the Universal Supply Co. building at 1016 Olive street, Friday night and cut a hole in the wall which admitted him to the rest of the store at 1014 Olive. He took the key to the safe from the cash register, and from the safe, got $419, a $50 ring and a $30 watch.

ST. LOUIS FIRMS SEEK CITY STONE CONTRACT

Only Eight of 250 Men in Industry Now Working, Aldermen Are Told.

The situation in the cut stone industry in St. Louis, in which only eight men are said to be working at present as compared to 250 six years ago, was discussed before the Ways and Means Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday.

At the request of representatives of the industry, Alderman Hastey, acting chairman of the committee, said he would introduce a bill next Friday specifying that the cut stone contract in the construction of a wing of the Homer G. Phillips Hospital for Negroes be awarded to a St. Louis company.

The City Counselor's office has held in previous attempts to give preference to local firms that the city charter requires that contracts be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, regardless of where from.

S. M. Lederer, president of the Cut Stone Contractors' Association, told the Aldermen that St. Louis firms could not compete with stone fabrication companies in the Bedford (Ind.) district, where minimum wages are 40 cents an hour, against 70 cents here. Lederer said there were 12 stone plants in St. Louis capable of handling the hospital contract.

P. J. Brice, business agent for the Hoisting Engineers' Union, said that in 1929 the union had an active membership of 150 men, but that at present there were only 40 active members and only three employed. George Delling, president of the Stone Cutters' Union, stated that six years ago 100 stone cutters were employed. At present, Delling said, five men are working. Many stonecutters are on the verge of going on relief rolls, he said.

F. G. Elliott, of the Wabash Stone Co., told the committee that New York City had an ordinance giving preference to local stone contractors on municipal work.

No two alike. When these are gone, there'll be no more. Davenports, Love Seats, Occasional Chairs, Easy Chairs, Two-Piece Suites. Here are the quick facts. This nationally known maker of fine furniture found it necessary to renovize his Chicago show rooms. For that reason he broke an age-old tradition not to sell samples at a discount. Vandervoort's buyer realized an opportunity was in the making. He made them an offer to buy their complete show room samples. They were shipped to us direct from the furniture mart in Chicago. Every piece of latest style, in newest fresh upholstery fabrics. Don't confuse this with a sale of ordinary merchandise for this is fine Furniture.

$3,300,000 SPENT FOR RELIEF WORK IN COUNTY IN 1934

$1,500,000 Paid Out in Direct Aid and About $1,800,000 on Job Projects, Wallace Says.

Total expenditures for relief work in St. Louis County in 1934 were $3,300,200, Asa B. Wallace, chairman of the County Relief Committee, said yesterday. This included the costs of various work relief projects as well as of direct relief.

Direct relief expenditures for food, clothing and necessaries for needy families, rose from $48,800 for last January to $207,000 for December and totaled $1,503,300 for the year.

With the exception of small amounts given for the purpose by the St. Louis County Court and amounts allotted to county agencies through participation in the United Relief Campaign, all money spent for relief came from the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Increase in Number Aided.

At the beginning of 1934 there were 4433 families under care of county relief agencies. Of these, 3274 families were receiving direct relief. By the end of the year the number of families under care increased to 9570, representing about 46,900 individuals, or 21.3 per cent of the county's population. Direct relief was given during December to 8622 of these families, or 91 per cent of those under care, and 19.3 per cent of the population. Eighty-five social workers were employed, an average of one for every 112 families under care.

Work relief projects in 1934 cost $1,796,900, all of the money coming from the Federal Government. This included CWA projects on which $1,223,400 was paid in wages during the first three months of the year to a number of employes ranging from 8600 at the peak to 2700 at the expiration of the CWA.

FERA Work in County.

Beween April 1 and the close of the year, a varying number were employed on FERA work in the county at a cost of $573,500. During December, 1532 were employed on various labor jobs and 466 at "white-collar" tasks, the cost for the month being $72,000.

Unless the county contributes more toward meeting the cost of direct relief, it is likely Federal relief grants will be stopped, Wallace told the County Court Friday. The County Government contributed only $33,000 last year. The court took under advisement Wallace's request that the county appropriate $80,000 for relief purposes during 1935.

This amount was needed, Wallace told the court, to take care of 320 pauper cases recently taken over from the court by the relief committee and to meet rents and other overhead expenditures incident to the administration of relief work.

103 Applications Approved Since Beginning of Government's Campaign.

Since the inauguration of the Federal Housing Administration's home modernization campaign three months ago, East St. Louis banks have made 103 loans totaling $39,340. The three banks from which loans are obtainable are the First National, the Union Trust Co. and the Southern Illinois National.

The East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce has opened a campaign headquarters at 139 North Fourth street, in the Goldman Building, where persons may make inquiry as to procedure for obtaining a loan. Here credit ratings are checked and, when the applicant is found eligible he is referred to the bank of his choice. The office is in charge of A. M. Unverzagt.

Picketing activities of an association of unemployed recently halted a survey to determine the city's housing needs and inform home owners of requirements for obtaining a loan. Since then, contractors and materials dealers have taken over the conducting of the campaign.

PREACHES UNDER OLD BEQUEST

500-Year-Old Will Provides $1.50 for Sermon East New Year's.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The Rev. Henry Fynes-Clinton, as a "learned man," preached a sermon at the church of St. Michael's in Crooked Lane on New Year's day, thereby earning 6 shillings ($1.50) under an ancient bequest.

When Henry Cloker died here 539 years ago, he wrote in his will: "I will that the master wardens of the Company of Coopers, after ye decease of my wife, shall upon New Year's day, at afternoon yearly forever, at a reasonable hour, in the Church of St. Michael's, provide some learned man to make a sermon, and he to have for his pains 6 shillings."

INTERIOR IS RESTORED IN EUGENE FIELD HOME

Restoration of the interior of the childhood home of Eugene Field, the children's poet, at 634 South Broadway, has been completed. The committee in charge of the work has announced its readiness to receive gifts or loans of suitable furniture, typical of the time of the poet's boyhood in the 50's, and of Fieldiana to lend interest to the shrine.

The only work remaining to be done is improvement of the front exterior and erection of a high brick garden wall, together with the planting of the garden, which will be done in the spring.

Cost of the interior renovation and betterment has been $600. This was paid from a fund of $961, contributed recently in nickels, pennies and dimes by school children. The balance will be used for the remaining work. Jesse P. Henry, insurance agent, who has restored several houses and specialized in Americana, has had charge of this undertaking. He and his partner, Carl P. Daniel, paid $700 to repair and renovate the exterior last year.

Henry heads the committee, which includes Superintendent of Instruction Gerling of the Board of Education, McCune Gill and Meyric R. Rogers. He said he would welcome offers of furniture or Fieldiana, for the consideration of the committee, at his office in the Pierce Building.

Yesterday, when the last work inside, consisting of varnishing the floors, was finished, Henry and Dr. Gerling visited the place. It had been transformed since last June, when the Board of Education voted to accept the offer to restore it. The work inside was done since Dec. 10.

The fine old woodwork has been given new life. Plastic wood filled the holes and scars made by careless tenants. Gleaming white paint made the doors and window frames stand out. Iron work that was out of place was removed from the fireplaces, but the worn and broken brick hearths were left untouched on purpose.

From the narrow staircase a dilapidated balustrade was removed and in its place were installed a cherry rail and thin white banisters taken from a companion house wrecked last year. The effect was striking.

A remarkable feature of the task was the wall paper Henry obtained. For the two downstairs rooms and the halls a mill made a special run to duplicate designs that were in vogue about 1820-40. For the rooms it had an Empire motif, with figures of a classical bowl and a bunch of grapes; after shellacking to tone it down it had an old gold color. For the halls the design was gayer, with a gray background and a figure of a fancy pavillion in red and green. A company in Alsace-Lorraine furnished the colorful flowered paper for the large second-floor bedroom in a pattern it began producing about 1800. A latter-day partition was removed to convert two chambers into this one room.

For the caretaker who probably will be installed later, a second floor backroom has been done over in more modern style, with a bathroom built in where none existed in Field's time. A Kentucky rag carpet will be obtained to cover the entire floor of the front room.

The house was built about 1845. It had no central heating, so a hot-air furnace was provided. It bothered Henry's artistic sense to cut the floors for the registers, but this could not be helped. Electrical wiring also was placed throughout. In the lower hall ceiling was found a hook, which will be used to hold a picturesque old lantern Henry obtained.

Restoration was not extended to the third floor, as it will not be needed, but the surface grime was removed there. The contrast between the refurbished and the untouched rooms was great. Improvement of the outside front wall, done last summer, was unsatisfactory and this will be repeated. Henry and Dr. Gerling expressed hope that some time simple restoration might be extended to the adjoining old house at the corner of Broadway and Cerre street. Both houses belong to the Board of Education, having been saved from wreckers as a result of protests last year.

The committee will open the Field house to the public as a shrine for the poet when it is furnished. Henry said he had striven to make the place look like an ante-bellum home rather than a museum. Dr. Gerling praised the accomplishment.

NAZIS START TALKING OF REGAINING MEMEL

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—German Nazis turned speculative eyes today toward Memel, like the Saar, a bit of pre-war Germany lost in the peace treaties.

A sensational report, published with singular uniformity by all of Berlin's Nazi-controlled newspapers, to the effect that Lithuanian troops were massing at Taurow, near the German frontier, was accompanied by editorial expressions that Memel (or Klaipeda), now nominally an autonomous city, should be restored to Germany.

The press, assailing Lithuania for numerous asserted breaches of trust in connection with Memel, said Lithuanian reserves had been called to the colors for three months, doubling the peace strength of the Memel garrison.

This alleged "saber rattling" indicated bad conscience, the newspapers asserted, declaring Lithuania's excuse for massing troops on the border was the report that Prussian storm troops intended to cross the border and capture the mandated city. This excuse, it was said, is "old, but none the less ludicrous."

Dispatches from Riga, Latvia, said the report of massing of Lithuanian troops was entirely inaccurate. Kaunas, capital of Lithuania, has no knowledge of any concentration of German forces in East Prussia.)

Asserting this to be the case, the "Nachtausgabe" observed:

"Under these circumstances it is no wonder if the Lithuanians fear, in view of Germany's victory in the Saar, that a plebiscite might become a reality in connection with the reorganization of things in Memel."

Memel, the population of which at the last census was 38,000, is on the band of the sound through which the Kurische Haff and the Niemen rivers empty into the Baltic. An important port, it also has iron foundries and other industries. Before the World War the town of Memel (subsequently renamed Klaipeda) belonged to Germany, together with a strip of territory east of the river. This territory Germany ceded under the treaty of Versailles, and the Allied Powers' Conference of Ambassadors proposed that the territory be handed over to Lithuania, subject to local autonomy. This the League of Nations approved in 1924.

AMELIA EARHART IS HONORED AT BANQUET IN OAKLAND, CAL.

Herbert Hoover and Officials Attend Celebration; President Roosevelt Sends Letter.

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 19.—Amelia Earhart landed here late today from Los Angeles to join state, Federal and city officials and former President Hoover, at a banquet in her honor, celebrating her recent flight from Honolulu to Oakland.

This time Miss Earhart was a passenger in her own plane. It was flown by Paul Mantz, the mechanic who prepared it for the flight across the Pacific. Miss Earhart's husband, George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher, and Mrs. Mantz also were passengers.

President Roosevelt, in a letter for reading tonight at the banquet, wrote, in part:

"My dear Miss Earhart:

"I am pleased to send you this message of congratulations. You have scored again.

"By successfully spanning the ocean stretches between Hawaii and California, following your triumphant trans-Atlantic flight of 1928, you have shown even the 'doubting Thomases' that aviation is a science which cannot be limited to men only."

ROYAL BREWERIES' ASSETS

Listed in Bankruptcy Schedules at $4000; Liabilities $10,000.

Schedules of the bankrupt Royal Breweries, Inc., 1030 Victor street, were filed yesterday in Bankruptcy Court showing liabilities of $10,175 and assets of $4000.

Liabilities include $2125 due in wages, and $8049 due on open accounts. Assets consist of machinery and equipment estimated to be worth $4000. The brewery filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy Jan. 8, after a few months' operation. It had a capacity of about 200 gallons daily.

$139 Relief for Committeeman.

A relief bill passed by the Board of Aldermen yesterday allowed William J. Brennan, member of the State Democratic Committee, $139 for damages to a building he owns at 1131-35 South Twelfth street. The Keystone Roofing Co., operated in the building by Brennan, was awarded $77 damages to its stock. The damage resulted from a sewer cavein, and the awards were approved by the City Counselor's office.

Lehar Operetta, "Paganini", Never Produced in the U. S., On KSD Tuesday Night—Biblical Drama Today—"Romeo et Juliette" on KSD Saturday.

KSD LISTENERS Tuesday night will be able to hear a Franz Lehar operetta before it is produced in this country. The operetta is "Paganini," written by Lehar for Richard Tauber, the German tenor who is reported engaged for a radio series on an NBC chain, and first performed in Vienna in 1925. "Paganini" relates the complications which arise when the hero falls in love with Napoleon's sister, Maria Anna, Princess of Lucca. It abounds in romantic adventures and court intrigues, and the music is said to be in the best Viennese operetta style. "I Have Loved to Kiss the Ladies," "I Would Like to Do Something Foolish Sometime," "No One Loved You as I Do," and "Love You Heaven on Earth" are the titles of some of the songs in "Paganini." Gladys Swarthout, John Barclay and James Melton, the tenor, will head the cast Tuesday night.

"EXODUS FROM EGYPT" is the title of the second in the "Immortal Drama" series at 1 o'clock today on KSD. One of the scenes details the visit of the Angel of Death seeking the firstborn of Egyptian families, but sparing the homes of Israelites which bear the mark of lamb's blood on their doors. The climax is reached when Pharaoh's hosts come sweeping down in chariots and at Moses' command the waters of the Red Sea open a path for the Israelites, then close upon the Egyptian soldiers.

OTTO HARBACH, author of numerous Broadway successes, is writing a special dramatic and musical serial planned to replace the House Party programs on KSD at 8:30 Monday nights, starting Jan. 28. His story will concern itself with a musical family, the Haydns, in which the father is a composer, the mother a former prima donna and the twin daughters are just starting out on stage careers. Harbach will play a role in the serial as well as write the script. He was the librettist for "Rose Marie," "No, No, Nanette," "Music in the Air" and "The Cat and the Fiddle."

EIDE NORENA, the Norwegian soprano, and Charles Hackett, the tenor, will sing the title roles in a Metropolitan Opera performance of Gounod's "Romeo et Juliette" which will be broadcast by KSD from 12:50 to 4 o'clock next Saturday afternoon. Gladys Swarthout will sing the role of "Stephano"; Giuseppe de Luca, "Mercutio"; Leon Rothier, "Friar Laurence"; Angelo Bada, "Tybalt"; Henriette Wakefield, "Gertrude"; Milo Picco, "Paris"; Paolo Ananian, "Gregorio"; Max Altglass, "Benvolio"; Louid D'Angelo, "Capulet"; and Arthur Anderson, the "Duke." Geraldine Farrar again will be the commentator between the acts and Milton Cross, the announcer. Miss Norena has sung the role of "Juliette" a number of times since her Metropolitan Opera debut in 1933. Hackett returned to the "Met" after eight years as leading tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera.

PITHY biographies of contemporary business men who have won eminence and positions of usefulness by qualities that illustrate the philosophy of living and doing, as told by John B. Kennedy, are a feature of a new series of half-hour KSD programs at 8:30 Friday nights. Kennedy, who already had won fame as writer and lecturer, has become one of the outstanding figures in radio as commentator and director of notable broadcasts. The purpose of his talks in these new KSD programs is to show how the mental and moral qualities that have enabled certain American business men to win and hold the respect and admiration of their fellows, as well as to achieve great business success, may be cultivated with profit by the average man and woman.

"MERIDIAN 7-1212," an experimental radio play written by Irving Reis, one of the youngest CBS control board engineers, will be performed by the Dramatic Guild Thursday night at [illegible] on the CBS net. The title is the New York telephone number through which subscribers get the correct time.

"Meridian 7-1212" dramatizes the motivations behind these telephoned inquiries. It is composed of a series of completed episodes knit together by the New York operator whose duty it is to announce the correct time at 15-second intervals. A suicide, a wager, travel connections, a date, an execution, are some of the happenings which depend on a knowledge of the correct time. In the production, Reis will attempt to add dramatic impetus to the action by means of special voice control and a readjustment of voice levels.

Reis turned out two plays meant to utilize radio's limitless boundaries of time and space. They were the successful "Split Seconds" and "St. Louis Blues."

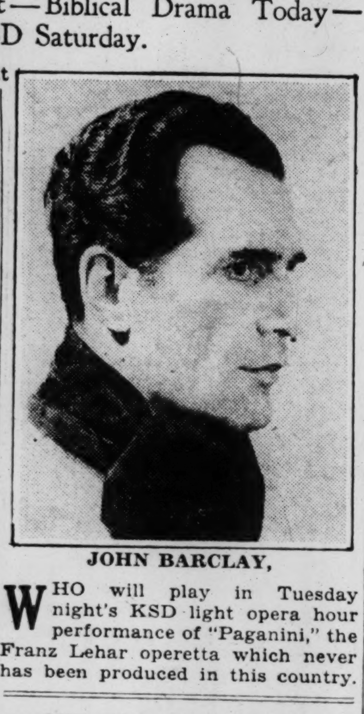
A BROADCAST linking cities in this country, England, Denmark, Holland and Japan will be carried by the CBS net at 3:30 Saturday. It will open in a meeting in Washington of the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War. Miss Josephine Schain, administrative chairman of the committee, will open the broadcast and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, founder of the committee. Then will come talks by Lady Nancy Astor in her home at Sandwich, County Kent, England; Ruth Bryan Owen, Minister to Denmark, who will speak in Copenhagen; Cornelia Van Asch Van Wyck, president of the World Council of the Y. W. C. A., speaking in Utrecht, Holland, and Mrs. Tsune Gauntlett, president of the Women's Pan-Pacific Union, speaking in Tokio.



JOHN BARCLAY,

WHO will play in Tuesday night's KSD light opera hour performance of "Paganini," the Franz Lehar operetta which never has been produced in this country.

FOUR KSD "Studio Stars" programs that have been attracting attention come at 6:30 four evenings a week. They feature La Verne Hutchinson, tenor, Mondays; Lorraine Grimm, contralto, who sings popular songs, Tuesdays; the Melotone Four, a male quartet, Wednesdays; and the La Pieno accordion orchestra Fridays.

NBC short-wave transmitters W3XL and W3XAL, which send out WJZ network programs, have been rebuilt for higher quality, greater reliability and a 60 per cent gain in signal strength. W3XAL uses the 6100-kilocycle channel in the evening and 17,780 k. c. in the daytime. W3XL uses 6425, largely for experimental and special broadcasting. W9XF, Chicago, uses the 6100 k. c. channel and carries WEAF chain programs during daylight hours.

CHARLES WINNINGER, who was the "captain" of KSD's Thursday night Show Boat until he was succeeded by Frank McIntyre when he resigned to play on Broadway, is to return to the air. His program will be of a variety nature, with Winninger cast as "Captain Bill" and supported by Frank Parker, the tenor; the Revelers Quartet, the Pickens Sisters trio and an orchestra led by Frank Tours. It will replace the Headliners show on the CBS chain Sunday night when Will Rogers finishes his engagement Feb. 6.

* * *

BASIL RUYSDAEL, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera, will have his own "Temple Bells" series on the WEAF chain and probably KSD at 1 o'clock Thursdays, starting Jan. 31. Ruysdael will read old saying and proverbs of Oriental philosophers. An orchestra will play softly music of the Far East. Ruysdael will play the role of a sage who spends his life in an ancient temple on a hill overlooking the Yellow Sea.

ARTHUR TRACEY, known as "The Street Singer," is singing and playing the accordion on WLW and WGN at 6:30 Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. He is supported by a Gypsy string orchestra.

Pauline Lord and Walter Connolly are billed in "The Late Christopher Bean" for the Radio Theater at 1:30 today on KWK.

RUTH ETTING will return to the air at 6:45 Thursday night on KWK and the WJZ chain for a weekly series with Red Nichols' orchestra. Each week her program will have as its setting a college "prom." Her first broadcasts will have their setting at Fordham College, the University of Illinois and the University of Pennsylvania.

Viola Philo is singing the role of Lady Benedetta in "The O'Flynn" serial on the CBS net at 9:30 Friday nights.

Ray Noble, the British composer, conductor and pianist, has signed a contract for 26 weekly programs on the WJZ chain and KWK starting Friday night, Feb. 22, at 9 o'clock. Noble wrote words and music of "Goodnight, Sweetheart," "Love Is the Sweetest Thing," "The Very Thought of You" and dozens of other songs. He has been in this country for several months, most of the time in Hollywood writing songs for pictures to be produced.

Verna Burke, a St. Louis girl who danced in Fred Stone's show, "Tip Toes," in other musical comedies and in vaudeville until she injured herself so seriously that doctors forbade her to dance again, has won a contract for her own singing program on the WEAF network at 10:15 Wednesday mornings, starting Jan. 30.

A half-hour broadcast from the fancy dress ball at Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va., will be carried by the CBS chain at 11 o'clock Friday night Isham Jones' orchestra has been engaged for the ball, the setting for which will be a reproduction of that for the first Imperial Ball of the Congress of Vienna in 1815.

William A. Brady's reminiscences on the CBS chain will be shifted to 9 o'clock next Saturday night and on Saturday, Feb. 2, to 9:15, and thereafter back to 9 o'clock.

Martha Mears, the Missouri singer, has joined Frances Lee Barton's Kitchen Party for the programs at 1:30 Fridays on KSD.

Bori and Pons Sign Contracts for Broadcast Concerts

One Metropolitan Star on Air Mondays, the Other Wednesdays — Grete Stueckgold and Myra Hess Tonight's Symphony Soloists — Casadesus Pianist With New York Philharmonic.

ANDRE KOSTELANETZ'S programs on the CBS net and KMOX which for a time featured Rosa Ponselle and Nino Martini of the Metropolitan Opera have gone operatic again after a brief lapse. It was announced that hereafter these programs would revert to a more popular type, and this despite the stories published some weeks previously that an elaborate survey had disclosed that the weekly broadcasts featuring Ponselle, Martini and Grete Stueckgold, also of the "Met," had won an audience of several millions. Whether the new programs did not "click" with listeners as compared with those featuring the stars of opera, or whether listeners poured in protests, is not disclosed. Be that as it may, Lucrezia Bori, the famed lyric soprano of the "Met," and Lily Pons, acclaimed as the greatest of coloratura sopranos since Tetrazzini, have been engaged for the Kostelanetz programs—Bori at 8 o'clock Monday nights, Pons at the same time Wednesdays. The Saturday night Kostelanetz programs will be devoted to dance music. Miss Pons sang on last Wednesday's program. Miss Bori will make her first appearance with the Kostelanetz orchestra and chorus at 8 o'clock tomorrow night.

SCHUBERT'S "Unfinished Symphony" is programmed for the concert by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra from 10:30 to 11:30 tomorrow night on KSD and the WEAF network. Vladimir Golschmann will conduct also the Prelude to Act 3 of "Lohengrin," Strauss' "Til Eulenspiegeil's Merry Pranks," three sections of Debussy's "Petite Suite" and "Under the Lindens" from Massenet's "Scenes Alsaciennes."

Nelson Eddy, the baritone, will be the soloist with William Daly's orchestra at 7:30 tomorrow night on KSD, singing "O, Sole Mio," "Carry Me Back to the Lone Prairie," Schubert's "Serenade" and the great "Vision Fugitive" aria from "Herodiade."

Frank Parker, tenor, will sing the lovely "Una Furtiva Lagrima" aria from "L'Elisir d'Amore" in the Gypsies concert at 8 o'clock tomorrow night on KSD.

"Pinafore" will be performed at 1:30 Tuesday on the WJZ chain as the first of the weekly series of Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. Harold Sanford will direct the orchestra.

Egon Petri, the pianist, just back from a tour of Europe, will play an organ recital at 9:45 Monday night, Feb. 4, on the WJZ net.

* * *

GRETE STUECKGOLD, the Metropolitan Opera soprano, will sing the "Jewel Song" from "Faust," the Waltz Song from "Sari," "The Indian Love Call," the "Laughing Song" from "Die Fledermaus," an arrangement with chorus of Ketelbey's "In a Monastery Garden" and the "Prayer" from "Cavaleria Rusticana," with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at 8 o'clock tonight on KMOX.

Lawrence Tibbett will be back on his program at 7:30 Tuesday night on KWK. He is to sing Mephistopheles' "Invocation" from "Faust," "De Glory Road," "With a Song in My Heart," Schubert's "In Evening's Glow" and Tschaikowsky's "None but the Lonely Heart."

Marie Houston, concert soprano, will be the soloist with Frank Simon's band at 5:30 today on KSD. Her principal song will be Lecuona's Cuban rhuma, "Maria La O." The band will play part of Ferde Grofe's "Grand Canyon Suite," Halverson's barbaric Russian "Bogaron," a Spanish dance, Granger's "Shepherd's Hey" and Sousa's "Semper Fidelis" march.

Songs from Liza Lehmann's "in a Persian Garden," Schubert's "Serenade" and "Going Home" are among those programmed for the concert by Sigurd Nillsen, basso, and Hardesty Johnson, tenor, in the KSD concert at 6:30 this evening.

* * *

MYRA HESS, the pianist, will play her own arrangement of the Bach chorale, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring"; Brahms' Intermezzo in C-major, and a movement of the Schumann Concerto in A-minor, during the concert at 7 o'clock tonight on the WJZ net. Dr. Adrian Boult will conduct the concert, which will be picked up by KWK at 7:15. Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, the overture to "Tanhauser" and Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance" March No. 2 are among music programmed for the orchestra.

* * *

HANS LANGE will conduct today's concert by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, at 2 o'clock on KMOX. The soloist will be Robert Casadesus, the French pianist, who will play the "Coronation" concerto by Mozart. Lange will conduct the overture to Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," d'Indy's descriptive "A Summer Day on the Mountain," the first radio performance of Edwin S. Stringham's "Nocture No. 1," and the Prelude to "Die Meistersinger." Stringham, who was born in Wisconsin in 1890 and has spent much of his life in Colorado, has written a number of orchestral works.

Opera Stars in Radio Series

Opera by Mascagni in English on KSD This Evening

Frederick Jagel and Mario Cozzi Will Sing "Turridu" and "Alfio" in Cavalleria Rusticana" From 7 to 8 O'Clock—Young Baritone Often Heard on KSD Sang "Lead" Roles in La Scala Opera House in Milan.

FREDERICK JAGEL, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, will sing the role of Turiddu in Mascagni's "Cavaleria Rusticana," which will be performed in English on KSD from 7 to 8 o'clock tonight Mario Cozzi, the baritone heard so frequently on KSD and on NBC networks, will sing "Alfio." Incidentally, Cozzi will begin a series of afternoon recitals on the WEAF net at 1:45 tomorrow. Cozzi sang leading roles at La Scala, Milan, several years ago.

Turiddu, a young soldier just returned from the wars, finds his former love, Lola, married to Alfio, the village carter. He then makes love to Santuzza, a village girl, and promises to marry her. Lola secretly revives his passion for her. Lucia, Turiddu's mother, talks with Santuzza, who tells of Turiddu's promise to her and his present infatuation for Lola. They both try to hide Turiddu's presence at Lola's house from Alfio.

Turiddu arrives and Santuzza tells him she knows where he has been. He denies it, and then Lola enters. She asks Santuzza to go to mass with her. Santuzza refuses with a hidden implication. Turiddu is furious, throws her on the ground and follows Lola. Alfio comes in, and Santuzza reveals Turiddu's affair with Lola. She is sorry afterward, but the harm is done. Alfio insults Turiddu and a duel is arranged. Turiddu asks his mother to care for Santuzza, whom he admits he has promised to marry. The news comes to the crowd in the square that Turiddu has been killed.

ABS Net Changes New York Key Station.

WNEW, New York, is now acting as key station for the ABS chain, of which WIL is a member. WNEW replaces WMCA, New York, which will be operated as an independent station by its owner, Donald Flamm. The chain's name has been changed from the American Broadcasting System to the American Broadcasting Co. George B. Storer continues as its president. WMCA was turned back to Flamm by the Federal Broadcasting Co., which was organized to lease and operate it by some of the younger Whitneys and Ryans of Wall street with Alfred E. Smith as chairman of the board. The Federal backers apparently wearied of carrying the broadcasting load and trying to carry out their expressed intention of elevating broadcasting. WNEW is said to be in the chain as key station on a 90-day "try it out" basis. The American Broadcasting Co. is reported to have retained the affiliation of most of the ABS link stations, among them WIP, Philadelphia, Pa., of which Benedict Gimbel Jr. is president.

Dealers Impressed By Richberg Address AT N.A.D.A. Convention

Vesper Re-elected President; L. M. Stewart, Treasurer, and John O. Munn, Secretary.

Reports to the St. Louis headquarters of the N. A. D. A. are that sentiment among the dealers who attended the annual convention at Detroit the past week, and listened to the address by Donald R. Richberg, head of the President's Emergency Council, at the banquet Tuesday night, was universally enthusiastic. The convention, it was stated, was by far the most interesting and general sucessful ever held by the association, of which F. W. A. Vesper of St. Louis, is president.

The 1523 dealers and leaders in the automobile industry who attended the banquet, it was said, were particularly impressed by Richberg's statement that the dealers "have gone a long way toward meeting their many serious problems," and that the "NRA is very much alive." His remarks about the dealers' code were apart from his prepared address. One point emphasized was his "willingness" to do all he can to "forward this effort, with full appreciation of what you are doing and the strength of co-operative purposes, to improve business practices and promote the public interest."

The Board of Directors of the association adopted a resolution praising the program offered by F. W. A. Vesper, president, at the opening session Monday, and recorded their "deep appreciation for the distinguished and meritorious services which he has rendered the automobile dealers of America in his unswerving fidelity to their interests."

He was re-elected president. L. M. Stewart of St. Louis, treasurer, was re-elected, as was John O. Munn of St. Louis, secretary. George G. McFarland of Harrisburg, Pa., who was second vice-president last year, was elected first vice-president. Ernest Lied of Omaha, Neb., was elected second vice-president.

The board also chose Detroit for the convention city in 1936, at some date in January yet to be determined.

The National Control Committee, of which the N. A. D. A. president is chairman, began two days of sessions Wednesday. Their task is to determine the amendments to the dealers' code to be recommended.

All General Motors Trucks Improved; Capacity Increased

Power and Torque Stepped Up—Dual Performance Axle Optional in 2-3 Ton Models.

Introduction of a duel performance axle is announced by General Motors Truck Co. as optional on the T-18 trucks in the two to three ton range. This axle gives a lower gear ratio and more pulling power, enabling drivers to take heavy loads up steep hills over rough roads with less effort. It also permits a higher gear ratio than common in a two to three ton truck, enabling the driver to travel at faster speeds on level roads or when the truck is empty.

A simple movement of a lever enables a driver to change instantly—under any operating condition—to the low or high speed range.

Mechanical improvements which engineers say will provide greater economy and performance are also announced for General Motors trucks. The appearance of the models has been materially improved.

Payload capacity of the 1½-2 ton T-16 has been increased 11 per cent, bringing the total to 5630 pounds. Horsepower of the T-16 has been increased to 84. Six per cent more miles per gallon is made possible. Hydraulic brakes are an important improvement in the T-16.

The gross rating of model T-18 has been increased to 11,500 pounds, giving a 13 per cent greater payload capacity. Its horsepower has been increased 12.3 per cent and torque 3.8 per cent. Fuel mileage has been increased almost 25 per cent.

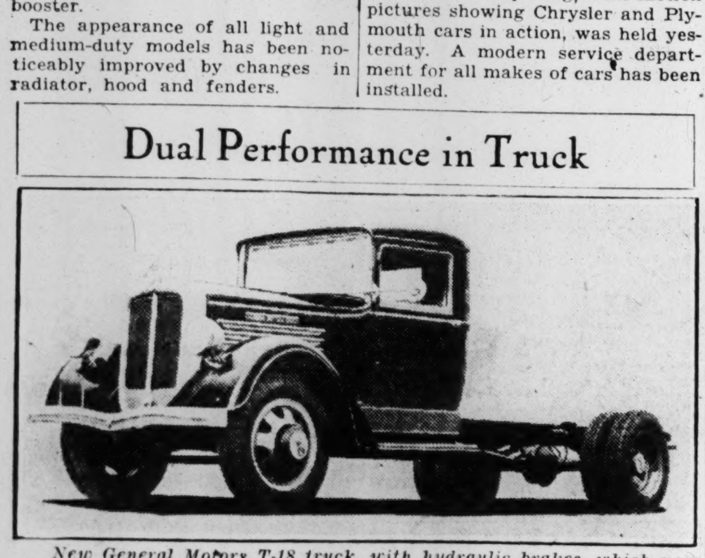
GMC model T-23 in the three-ton range, and T-33 in the 3½-ton range, have likewise many improvements. Payload capacity performance and economy have been increased. Clutches are now of the single disc type and increased braking efficiency has been realized by the use of hydraulic brakes and larger brake linings. A vacuum booster is standard on the T-33, with air-operated brakes optional at extra cost.

In the four-ton range GMC T-43 has an 11 per cent greater payload capacity. Hydraulic brakes with a vacuum booster are standard.

The T-46 in the five-ton range now has as optional equipment a five-speed overdrive and underdrive transmission, wider wheel tread at the front, heavier rear springs, and hydraulic brakes with a vacuum booster.

The appearance of all light and medium-duty models has been noticeably improved by changes in radiator, hood and fenders.

Dual Performance in Truck



New General Motors T-18 truck, with hydraulic brakes, which now has a gross rating of 11,500 pounds and may be had optionally with a dual performance axle that gives extra low and high gears for greater pulling power or faster road speed.

Discussing Auto Dealers' Code

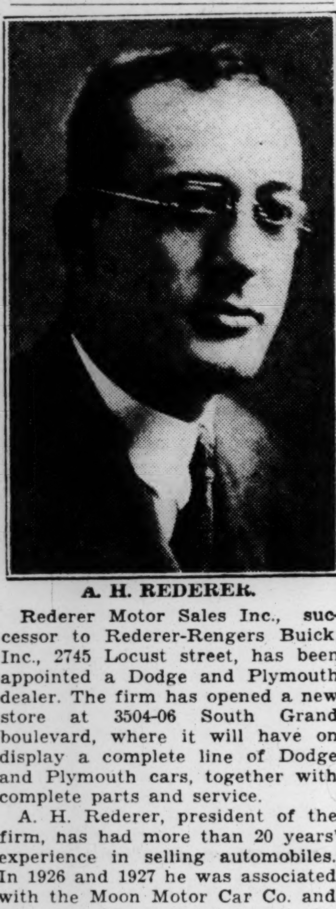
REDERER'S FIRM APPOINTED DODGE PLYMOUTH DEALER



A. H. REDERER.

Rederer Motor Sales Inc., successor to Rederer-Rengers Buick, Inc., 2745 Locust street, has been appointed a Dodge and Plymouth dealer. The firm has opened a new store at 3504-06 South Grand boulevard, where it will have on display a complete line of Dodge and Plymouth cars, together with complete parts and service.

A. H. Rederer, president of the firm, has had more than 20 years' experience in selling automobiles. In 1926 and 1927 he was associated with the Moon Motor Car Co. and later was Moon distributer in St. Louis.

Rederer said the firm's store on Locust street would continue to give service as would the new one on South Grand boulevard. The new building measures 150x50 feet. Al Snowhill will be service manager.

GILDER CHRYSLER, PLYMOUTH DEALER IN WEBSTER GROVES

CHARLES B. GILDER.

FORMER factory representative whose Gilder Motor Co., 126 East Lockwood avenue, Webster Groves, has been appointed by L. M. Stewart, president of L. M. Stewart, Inc., Chrysler and Plymouth distributer, as a dealer in Plymouth and Chrysler cars. The firm's formal opening, with motion pictures showing Chrysler and Plymouth cars in action, was held yesterday. A modern service department for all makes of cars has been installed.

Pontiac Co. Expects To Double 1934 January Production

That the Pontiac Motor Co. will build more than twice as many cars by the end of January as it did up to the same time a year ago, and that it may produce for domestic sales as many cars by the last of April as it did in all of last year, is the forecast made by A. W. L. Gilpin, vice-president and general sales manager of the company.

Gilpin predicts that by the end of this month more than 18,000 new Pontiacs will have been built compared with 7700 in January a year ago. He says that there are 25 per cent more men on the factory payroll than last year at this time, with increases expected by the end of the month.

"One quarter of our dealers have ordered more new Pontiacs for the first three months than all of our dealers did for that period last year," said Gilpin. "If we had the cars I am convinced we could ship 30,000 of them today.

Traffic Regulated in London.

In an effort to regulate the vehicular traffic and pedestrians in London, England, a "safety zone," with zigzag white stripes running between each curb is now at every corner. Persons on foot are supposed to use them with impunity, yet if they get hit by an automobile each party is equally responsible and equally subject to a $10 fine.

Garages on Skids.

Because of heavy snowfall in past winters, townsfolk in Lubec, Me., put their garages on skids. When the snow drifts make it too difficult to get the automobiles out of the garages, they just hitch the garage to the town tractor and have it pulled to the clear road.

Oldsmobile Show Sales at Retail Set Record, Ralston Say

More Oldsmobiles were sold a retail at the New York automobil show than in any other year i Oldsmobile history. More tha twice as many were sold than a the 1934 sho .

These figures were made publi by D. E. Ralston, vice-president an general sales manager of Oldsmobile.

"One important improvement which attracted a great deal of attention because of its safety is the solid steel 'turret top' body," Ralston said. "We find that motorists are more and more interested in the safety of their automobiles, and the solid steel top, which contributes largely to a 40 per cent increase over-all strength, was regarded show visitors as extremely important."

THE GREATEST PERFORMERS that ever bore the Chevrolet name . . and the MOST ECONOMICAL to operate and maintain

BE PREPARED for a real thrill when you take the wheel of a 1935 Chevrolet. For these new cars are performers extraordinary. The nimblest, fleetest, most spirited cars that ever bore the Chevrolet name. The new Blue-Flame valve-in-head engine, which powers all Chevrolet models for 1935, is vitally improved; the response to the throttle at low speeds greatly increased; and the results will amaze you. These new Chevrolets are faster on the getaway than you'd be willing to believe if you didn't actually see and feel their abilities. They are equally impressive in power—speed—smoothness of operation—and driving safety. Most surprising of all, this new performance is accompanied by an entirely new economy of operation. You will get even more miles per gallon of gas . . . even more miles to a filling of oil . . . in either one of these cars, than in the great money-saving Chevrolets of other years! They are the most economical as well as the most brilliant and capable motor cars that Chevrolet has ever produced. Your Chevrolet dealer cordially invites you to drive one of these cars . . . and experience the marvelous performance which Chevrolet engineers have built into them . . . at your earliest convenience. We suggest that you see him—today!

Texas-Mexico City Road to Be Ready for Tourists by Summer

Sixty-eight Miles in Mountains Barred to Motorists—No Way Around It.

In the interests of motorists, the Studebaker Sales Corporation of America sent William C. Garner, a trained observer, over the new highway from Laredo, Tex., to Mexico City. It is the most important link of the highway that, perhaps in the next 10 years, will stretch from Fairbanks, Alaska, through Canada, through the United States, through Mexico and Central America, across the Panama Canal down the west coast of South America to the important cities of Chile and across the Andes Mountains to Buenos Aires in the Argentine.

The highway from Laredo to Mexico City is blocked to travel straight through to Mexico City by 68 miles of mountain construction between Tamazunchale and Jacala," Garner reports. "It is also barred in this section to tourists by edict of the Mexican Highways Commission. There is no way around.

"Thomas Williams Jr., vice-president of the Highways of Mexico Co., general contractors on the road building, told me that he definitely expected that the mountain construction would be sufficiently completed by April 1 for general, comfortable and convenient tourist travel.

"The chief engineer of the Mexican Highways Commission told me it would be nearer June 1. Both were agreed that it would be about a year before the highway was paved or rock ballasted all the way.

"Mexican rock ballast is quite as good as paving. Completed, there are three layers of crushed rock, a preliminary or basic coat of crushed rock with the sizes two or three inches big, a second coat of smaller, filler rock to smooth out the highway and a third coat of fine crushed rock, fixed in place with a binder of heavy oil that is almost asphalt. It makes a highway on which the speed limit of 50 miles an hour is comfortable and secure."

Plymouth Reports Orders for Nearly $50,000,000 of Cars

The Plymouth Motor Corporation reports that retail sales of its 1935 models for the first week of January were more than double those for the same week a year ago.

D. S. Eddins, Plymouth president, said Plymouth dealers delivered 3972 new cars at retail during the week, compared with 1690 units in the corresponding week of 1934.

"The first week of January this year is the biggest January week in our history," he said. The Plymouth plant already is operating on a capacity basis, fully two months ahead of its production schedules of last year.

"Orders for the new cars are running far ahead of last year, which was itself a record year," he said. "We already have received orders for nearly $50,000,000 worth of 1935 cars."

First Quarter Auto Production May Be Close to Million Cars

Ford Co. Reported Set for Making 110,000 in January—All Factories Busy.

By Universal Service.

DETROIT, Jan. 19.—First-quarter automobile production should be 30 per cent ahead of last year.

January will run 100,000 above 1934, according to present indications, and February about the same, bringing the first three months' total close to 1,000,000 units, the best record since 1930.

The comparatively heavy assembly schedules are due not only to the reception of the news cars, but also to the fact that factories are swinging into activity earlier this year.

Well Ahead of Last Year.

A year ago operations were crippled by the tool and die strike. Some of the General Motors and Chrysler divisions were unable to supply even scattered models.

In contrast, not more than seven of the 54 new passenger car series that are offered for 1935 have yet to reach assembly lines.

Although the industry is considerably ahead of last year's record, it is still far behind on dealer orders. Most companies report they will be six weeks to two months catching up with advance business, and in some instances orders are coming in faster than cars can be shipped.

As an example of the increased tempo, K. T. Keller, general manager of Chrysler, said that the corporation's plants were being "stretched to the limit."

"We consider ourselves at capacity," said Keller. "That rate should hold good through the winter and early spring."

Production Schedules.

Some of the manufacturing projections for this month show: Dodge, 18,000; Pontiac, 18,000; Chrysler, 5000; Oldsmobile, 10,000; Plymouth, 45,000; Hudson, 10,000; Ford, 110,000, and Buick, 7000.

Following in the wake of the New York show, the Detroit automobile exposition matched the Eastern Seaboard in enthusiasm for the 1935 models. Visitors were more interested in details of the cars, and talked and acted like legitimate prospects.

The Chicago show opens next Saturday. Like New York's, it will be run by dealers.

A. P. Bethel Named As Branch Manager Here for Goodyear Co.

Appointment of A. P. Bethel as St. Louis branch manager for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. is announced by F. W. McConky, division manager.

Bethel comes here from Omaha, Neb., where he has been branch manager for the past 11 years. He has been with Goodyear for 23 years, most of the time in the marketing divisions.

Chrysler Declares Buying Keeps Up With Mounting Production

Chrysler Corporation has just completed a record breaking year "with a finish that presages even greater records for 1935," Walter P. Chrysler said.

Chrysler said that the corporation produced and shipped more passenger and commercial automobiles in 1934 than in any previous year, the 1934 record showing a gain of 19.5 per cent over the previous peak year—1928—and being 33 per cent above 1933.

"The corporation shipped 57,305 new 1935 cars in December, compared with 6301 units shipped in December, 1933. Our Plymouth plant alone shipped 32,899 new cars the last month of 1934, against 2108 units in the corresponding month a year ago."

Chrysler declared that all of the corporation's plants were operating at capacity production to fill an unprecedented number of orders for new cars and that retail sales were keeping pace with the climbing production.

Packard Starts Work On Production of Its New Smaller Model

It is announced by M. M. Gilman, vice-president and general manager of the Packard Motor Car Co., that actual production on the Packard 120 will start this week. For months work has been carried on 24 hours a day completing the installation of equipment in the plant in which the new smaller Packard will be built.

"Reception of the car has been such," said Gilman, "that we will have to carry on with three shifts, or a 24-hour day, for a considerable time after we begin producing cars. We will be producing cars in February, but do not expect to get up to full production until March 1."

New Synthetic Type Enamel Luster Said To Gain by Washings

The Donnell Milk Co. has had refinished five delivery units recently added to its fleet. Morlux-35, the newest development in synthetic type enamels, was used throughout.

According to the Morris Paint & Varnish Co., the manufacturer, this material, brushed or sprayed, dries in less than an hour with a porcelain finish that is flexible yet resistant to the elements.

MUNICIPAL ELECTRIC PLANT VOTED DOWN IN JACKSON, MISS.

Power Company Wins by Offering Reduced Rates and 5-Cent Fare Bus System.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 19.—Jackson voted down a proposal for municipal ownership of an electric power plant and a possible hookup with the Tennessee Valley Authority at an election here today on a proposed $1,500,000 bond issue to finance the project. Complete unofficials returns showed the bond issue had been voted down 3888 to 3098.

Mayor Walter A. Scott led the fight for the issue. It was his first political defeat in 20 years.

The Mississippi Power & Light Co. took up the fight after a breakdown of negotiations for lower rates. In exchange for rejection of municipal ownership, the company offered to put into effect, retroactive as of Dec. 25, a compromise schedule of reduced electric rates previously rejected by the City Commission and also immediate substitution of a new bus system and a 5-cent fare for the street car system and a 7-cent fare. The company claimed its offer would mean an annual savings to Jackson citizens of about $184,000.

The ninety-sixth annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Missouri will convene Tuesday at Christ Church Cathedral and adjourn the following afternoon. The Woman's Auxiliary will hold its annual meeting on Thursday.

Principal speaker at the convention will be Bishop James De Wolf Perry, of Rhode Island, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church. Bishop Perry will preach Tuesday night at a dedicatory service in the Cathedral.

Business sessions of the convention will be held at Bishop Tuttle Memorial. The first session will begin at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday morning after a celebration of the Holy Communion in the Cathedral.

Bishop Scarlett will deliver his annual message to the diocese at the opening session. The afternoon session will be devoted to the consideration of resolutions and departmental reports. After the evening service a reception will be tendered Bishop and Mrs. Perry, who will arrive here tomorrow.

Election of officers will be held Wednesday morning. The St. Luke's Hospital Association will hold its annual meeting that night.

WOODWORK CONCERN SEEKS TO PREVENT FORECLOSURE

Injunction Petition States Property Valued at $78,000 Is Collateral for $15,000 Note.

A debtor's petition in which an injunction is sought to prevent sale of property under foreclosure by creditors of the Cooper Carriage Woodwork Co., was filed yesterday in Federal Court.

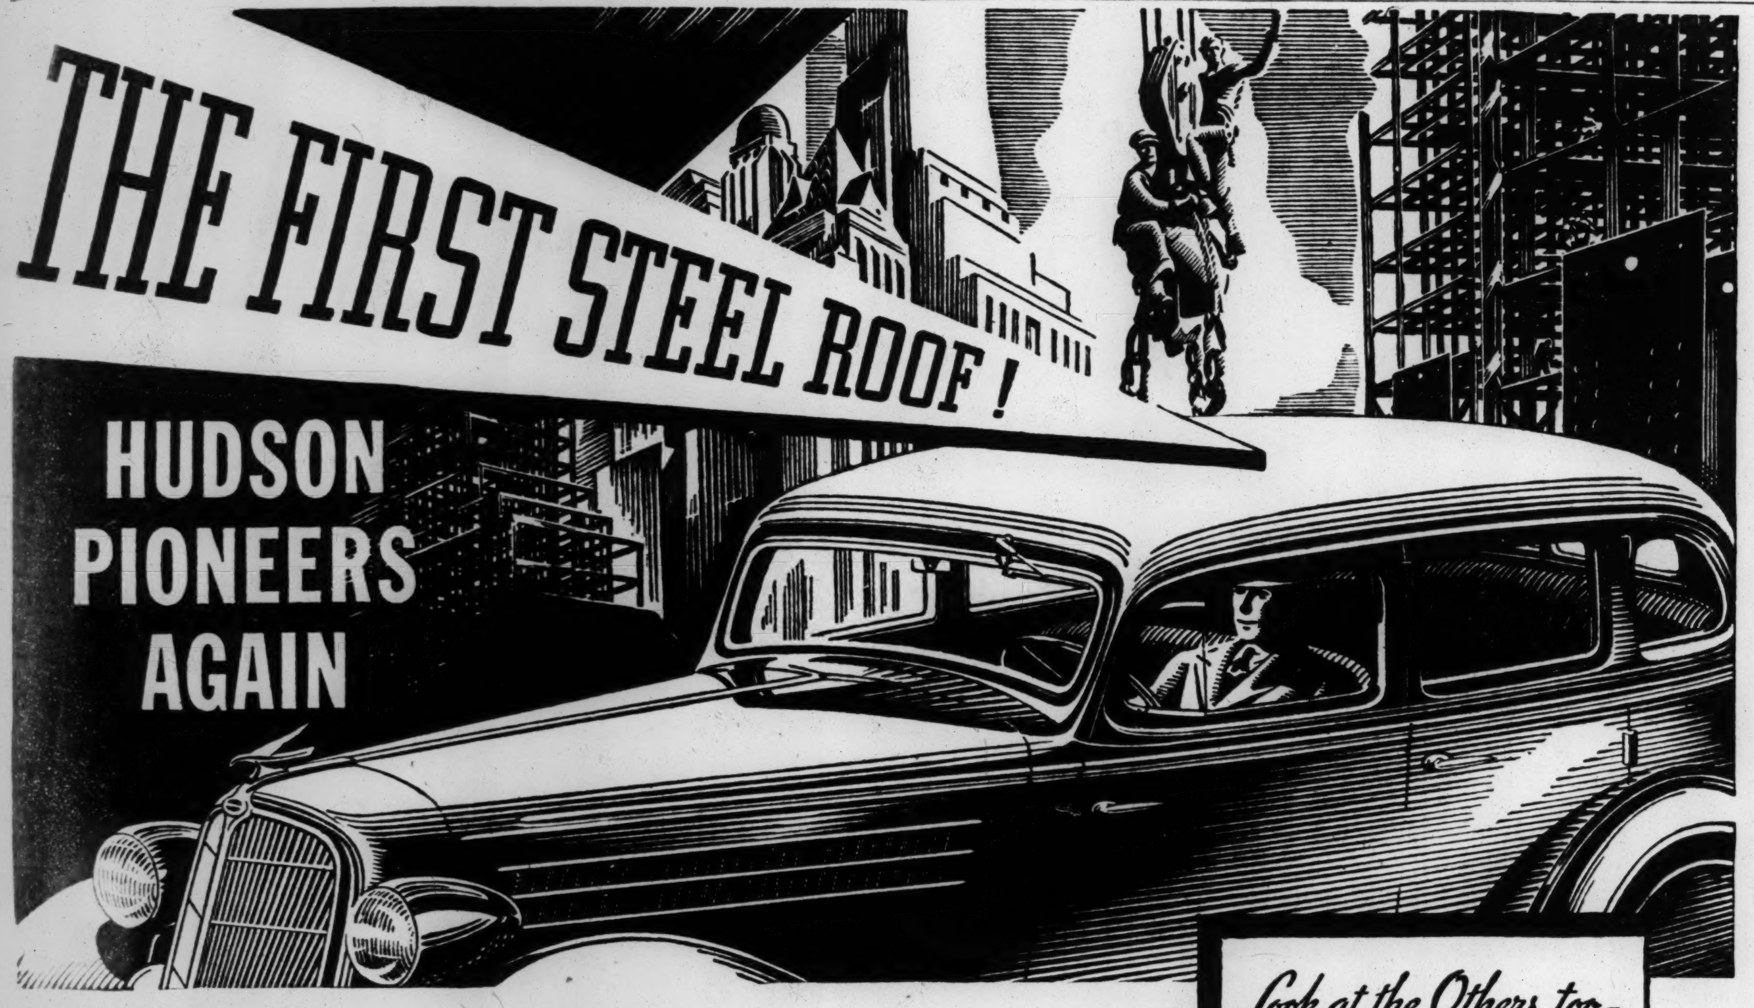
The petition sets forth that the firm has not engaged in business for several years, except to rent the building formerly occupied. This property, the petition states, valued at $78,000, is collateral on a $15,000 note held by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. The Cooper firm has defaulted on payments of this note, it is admitted, and seeks an extension of time in which to pay.

Besides the note, other liabilities listed in the petition are $2850 in back taxes and $19,500 to general creditors.

Engineer Killed in Derailment.

By the Associated Press.

NEWTON, N. J., Jan. 19.—Relief Engineer Warren McClain was killed tonight when a Delaware Lackawanna & Western locomotive was derailed and overturned as it entered the Newton yards. A second engine on the train slid down an embankment. Its driver was reported slightly hurt. Fifteen persons in the first car were shaken up.



YOU RIDE WITH RUGGED STEEL ALL AROUND YOU STEEL BENEATH YOU and now a STEEL ROOF Overhead!

Who but Hudson could be expected first to take this long forward step? Ever since steel bodies were introduced, engineers have sought a way to make the steel roof practical. Hudson engineers found it. This year, Hudson and the Hudson-built Terraplane lead with this extra protection for you and your family.

Safety has always been of first importance in the construction of Hudson-built cars. Hudson was among the first to adopt bodies of steel—first to weld steel bodies to a rugged floor of steel—for safety.

You Ride Enclosed in Steel!

And now, the first steel roof! Solid steel all around you as you ride in any 1935 Hudson or Terraplane. Steel beneath your feet. Steel overhead. Can you be satisfied—now—with anything less safe?

There's not a weak spot anywhere in a Hudson-built body. Nothing to rot or warp or crack or splinter. No fabric to dry out and shrink and crack. No bolted joints to squeak. No screws and nails to work loose. Think what these things mean in reduced upkeep expense!

Bodies that Actually Strengthen the Chassis

The body is actually a part of the chassis in a Hudson-built car. The steel body-floor is really a rugged cross-member, extending the length of the car. It adds rigidity to the sturdy frame—extra strength to the whole car. Body and frame are a unit—each strengthens the other.

Before you buy any car, ask yourself this question, "What car offers most in safety—for my children, my wife, myself—as well as most in performance, style, comfort, economy?" Compare what other cars offer, with what you find in Hudson and Terraplane. Then decide.

Look at the Others, too-

★ Big Bendix ROTARY-EQUALIZED Brakes. You stop, SAFELY, in a short, straight line.

★ The Electric Hand. Easy, positive, power-controlled gear shifting, with pre-selection. Standard on Hudson Custom Eights; optional for small amount extra on all other 1935 Hudsons and Terraplanes.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The fact that the gold clause cases were still before the Supreme Court was a constant factor in financial affairs the past week and promised to remain as such until the constitutionality of Congress' abrogation of obligations to pay in the old dollar is finally decided.

Early in the week, the disinclination to buy foreign currencies on the vague possibility that the dollar might go back to its old parity, some 70 per cent higher, culminated in sharp decline in foreign currencies, which sent a deflationary wave of selling through stock and commodity markets.

Support was quickly provided to the exchange market, however, variously attributed to the Bank of France or the American stabilization fund, and nerves were quieted. Stocks and staples recovered part of their losses.

The flurry seemed to reflect just another state of nerves, for most conservative quarters in Wall street reason that whatever the Supreme Court decides as to the constitutionality of the method pursued in abrogating the gold clauses in bonds, Congress does have the power to coin and regulate the value of money, and the old dollar will not return, particularly in view of the strong inflationist sentiment prevailing in some legislative quarters.

Foreign bonds declined rather sharply for a time, and rail obligations were momentarily under pressure, as it was reasoned that few roads could stand the burden of having to observe the gold clause in most of the railroad bonds. They recovered substantially in the past three or four days, however.

Social Security Plan.

In the meantime, highest grade bonds of almost all categories advanced further, and a pronounced upward movement developed in preferred stocks, both those on a dividend basis, and those thought likely to get back on a dividend paying basis.

Commodity markets skidded on Tuesday, and in the main failed to get back to where they started.

Dun & Bradstreet said retail trade was the best for this time of year since 1931. Steel production continued to quicken. The weekly electric power figures showed a slightly less than seasonal gain after the New Year's holiday week, and railroad freight movement failed by a narrow margin to get up to the levels of a year ago.

The announcement of President Roosevelt's social security plan was received with equanimity.

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced its long-awaited new rules for registration of new issues of securities, which engendered considerable enthusiasm in investment banking quarters, but the uncertainty over the gold cases continued to act as a brake on the expected flurry of refunding.

In the meantime, excess bank reserves continued to pile up. The Reserve Bank statements indicated a total of excess reserves at $2,000,000,000 a new high record.

Prices Rise at Week-End.

The action of security markets at week-end session suggested that Wall Street had regained further balance after nervousness early in the week over the gold clause.

Sentiment was bolstered by the husky push contained in the latest reports on steel mill operations indicating the rate had approximated 50 per cent of capacity. The rise was explained in part by news from the automotive centers where production continues at a good tilt, nearly twice as fast as a year ago.

The stock market rocked along at a somewhat greater speed than Friday. The hourly rate of trading was around 195,000 shares, against 137,000 in the previous session. Price improvement which got under way Friday was continued and Saturday's advance was a little more pronounced than that of Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks stepped up to 39.59, a gain of .22.

Although preferred issues again came in for attention and some of them made good gains, there were quite a few which showed signs of being out of breath. Following its broad jump on announcement of the arrearage payment yesterday, Radio preferred "A" behaved less feverishly, turning in a net gain of ¼.

Some of the Gainers.

On the other hand, the preferred shares of the steel companies showed that reports from the industry had found them friends. Bethlehem was up 1¼ at 73, Jones & Laughlin at 65½ took on 2¼, Republic Convertible preferred netted 3¼ at 49¼, while U. S. Steel preferred stepped ahead 1¾ points to 89.

Most equities chipped off a fraction here and adding another there. Fractional gainers were U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, American Can, American Telephone, Santa Fe, General Electric, General Motors and International Harvester. Small losses fell to Consolidated Gas, U. S. Smelting and United Carbon.

The bond market was moderately brisk for a Saturday. Trading was marked by the shifting of high grade industrial bonds into new high ground, or to within striking distance of it. High grade rails were also well liked. Government paper was in good demand and bettered its price somewhat.

Both grains and cotton came down the home stretch with higher prices. Wheat and corn finished with gains of 1 to 1¼ cents a bushel, while cotton was up 10 to 30 cents a bale.

At $4.88¼ the pound was up ¼ of a cent. The French franc improved .00¼ of a cent at 6.58¾ cents.

SMALL ADVANCE SCORED BY COTTON AT WEEK-END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Moderate reactions from an opening advance in cotton were followed by renewed firmness today on continued trade buying and covering. May contracts after selling off from 12.52 @12.45c at 12.51c or within a point of the best for the session with the general market closing very steady at net advance of 2 to 6 points.

March sold up to 12.46 and July to 12.52 on the opening demand which included some buing here through houses with foreign connections as well as covering and a moderate demand from the trade.

The buying tapered off after the initial orders had been filled, and prices eased under some Southern selling and scattering liquidation.

Otherwise no aggressive selling developed and the market later rallied back to approximately the opening prices on covering and a renewal of trade demand.

The amount of cotton on shipboard which was awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 72,000 bales against 142,000 last year.

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The United States dollar gained 1-16 cents to the pound today, opening and closing at 4.88⅛ to the pound, compared with yesterday's closing quotations of 4.88 3-16.

Gold worth approximately £10,000,000 ($48,812,500) has been withdrawn from London since Wednesday and shipped to New York. Financial quarters view uncertainty over the outcome of the gold cases now pending before the United States Supreme Court as the reason for the heavy transfer.

The Manhatta took £2,500,000 of gold on board today along with £1,500,000 of bar silver, four special trains conveying the shipment to Southampton.

The Europa is sailing with £1,250,000 worth of gold and the Berengaria will carry between £5,000,000 and £6,000,000 when it sails tomorrow.

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—The United States dollar sold today at 2.497 marks (40.05 cents to the mark) as compared with yesterday's quotation of 2.499 marks (40.01 cents).

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The United States dollar held steady today, closing at 15.19 francs (6.517 cents to the franc), as compared with yesterday's close of 15.1925 francs (6.582 cents.)

Bankers estimated the recent flurry has resulted in a shipment of about $10,000,000 worth of gold to the United States.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Foreign currencies were quiet and generally steady in terms of the dollar in exchange markets today.

In London the dollar was only slightly changed at 4.88⅛ to the pound sterling, and in New York the British unit was ¼ of a cent higher at $4.88¼. In Paris the dollar held steady at an equivalent of 6.517 cents to the franc and in New York the French currency was .00¼ ofa cent higher at 6.58¾ cents.

Based on the franc at its final New York rate, the dollar was valued at a premium of 65-100 of 1 per cent over par compared with 69-100 of 1 per cent on Friday and 29-100 a month ago.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Foreign exchange steady.

LOW TEMPERATURE BULLISH FACTOR IN GRAIN TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 19.—Low temperature in the Southwest points with unfavorable conditions forecast for forepart of week in parts, exerted bullish influence on wheat and corn at the week-end session. Chicago reported some short covering on talk of possibility of gold clause ruling on Monday.

The close was ¾c net higher.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅛d to ⅝d higher after opening unchanged to ¼d off.

FLURRIED BUYING IN LATE CHICAGO MARKET

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Flurried buying of grains late today apparently resulted more or less from recent speculative sellers' fears that gold clause cases would be decided on Monday.

Forecasts of much below normal temperatures the greater part of next week were also effective in bringing about materially higher prices for grains. In addition, notice was taken that the mercury was down today to 14 below zero at places in Nebraska.

Wheat closed firm at virtually the day's top figures, 1@1¼ cents above yesterday's finish, May 98⅝@98¾ cents, corn ¾@1⅜ cents up, May 87⅝@87¾ cents, oats ¼@½ cent advanced, and provisions at a rise of 5@17 cents.

Something of a rush to the buying side of wheat developed at the last because of sudden attempts to reverse the market position of numberous traders who previously had been sellers, but who had become unwilling to risk uncertainties attached to possible quick Supreme Court action. Earlier in the day, the chances of a gold decision Monday had been construed in various quarters as bearish rather than bullish, and as a motive for caution on the buying side. At that stage, friends of higher prices were more inclined to put chief stress on rough weather conditions and on talk prevalent as to fast increasing disappearance of domestic grain visible supplies.

Leading trade authorities pointed out that the visible supply figures at present contain an unusual ingredient. It was suggested the Government agency handling seed grains, possesses the ownership of liberal quantities which have been counted in the visible supply totals but which will be altogether for seed use. Such grain must necessarily move to the country rather than into mills and processing plants.

Paralleling the wheat price behavior, the corn and oats markets were responsive to belief that abnormal cold will make large inroads on scanty stocks of feedstuffs.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1c higher. Offerings were light and the market was quiet. Hard wheat was nominally 1c higher. There were no offerings. Inquiry was fairly good. At the close No. 2 was figured at about $1.05. Corn was 1@½c higher. Supply was small but the demand slow. Dealers held the grain firmly and only a few cars figured in transactions. Mills and an elevator bought. Trading basis was ¼@¾c better. Oats were ½c higher. Receipts were light, the demand improved and a fair clearance was made. Elevators and a mill showed interest.

MANUFACTURERS, ATTENTION!

Business is running up . . . General statistics show all-industry improvement anticipation for 1935. It is now opportune to make an aggressive bid for sales. If you do not have a sales promotion manager, you need one. If you have such a man, then unless he's exceptionally capable, you too will find advantage in talking to me. I am occupied, but looking for improvement.

RAIL BONDS RALLY AT CLOSE OF WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—A brisk rally in railroad issues that carried some of them close to their old highs, gave the corporate bond market a steady to firm tone today. U. S. Governments improved moderately and the foreign section was mostly higher.

Re-establishment of carrier loans, especially the lower-priced issues, to popular investment favor, was believed by brokers to indicate that the gold clause cases now before the Supreme Court was no longer a strong market factor, inasmuch as the loans of a number of roads having a large funded debt were in broad demand.

Among issues gaining 1 to 2 or more points were Alleghany Corp. 5s at 25½, Baltimore & Ohio 4½s at 57, Chicago Great Western 4s at 34, and International Great Northern 6s at 36. Higher prices also were paid for obligations of the Illinois Central, Kansas City Southern, Missouri Pacific, New Haven, St. Louis-Southwestern, Texas & Pacific and Wabash. Denver & Rio Grande 4s lost 1½ points.

A number of prime investment bonds advanced sufficiently to attain a level close to their old 1934-35 peaks, including Santa Fe 4s at 108⅛, New England Telephone 4½s at 114½, Pure Oil 5½s at 102⅛ and Union Pacific 4s at 106½. Otis Steel 6s gained 3 points at 84. The Associated Press averages were up from .14 to .24 of a point.

Transfers aggregated $8,550,000, par value, compared with $12,755,000 last Saturday.

Although the turnover was small, all types of Government bonds were from 1-32d to 11-32ds higher, including Liberty 3½s, up 7-32ds at 104.17, Treasury 3⅛s, of 1946, up 11-32ds at 103.25, and Home Owners' Loan 3s, up 3-32ds at 100.10.

In the foreign section improvement was shown by most German, Polish and Scandinavian issues, while Argentine 6s gained a point at 92¾, and Cuban 4½s were that much better at 86½.

NARROW PRICE CHANGES RULE ON THE CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—The Curb market finished the week with narrow price changes in the majority. Trading was rather quiet throughout the two-hour period. Some scattered specialties displayed firmness.

Many issues were virtually unchanged on opening quotations. After milling about during the first hour, the list developed a mild upward trend and final prices were generally the best.

LEAD, ZINC AND COPPER

Lead and zinc prices were nominally unchanged.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Tin steadier; spot and nearby $51.12; future $50.75. Other metals nominally unchanged.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Lead and zinc futures closed quiet and unchanged. The close: Lead, Jan. 3.45n; March 3.50n; May 3.57n; July 3.63n. Zinc, Jan. 3.66n; March 3.73n; May 3.79n; July 3.85n.

DIVIDEND MEETING RESULTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Directors of Julius Kayser & Co. today voted a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, payable Feb. 15 to stock of record Feb. 1. Similar payments were paid Sept. 15 and Feb. 15 last.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Improving demand for copper from domestic fabricators has been reflected by reported sales of "Blue Eagle" copper by the Code Authority in excess of 1000 tons daily during the past week. The price remained unchanged at the 9-cent basis, but European prices have fluctuated irregularly.

Early declines abroad were thought to reflect disappointment over apparent delays in the impending conference of world copper producers in New York, but later rallies were regarded by the trade as having been influenced by more favorable developments in this situation, although definite information was lacking.

Sharp fluctuations in sterling exchange caused rapid changes in the price for tin here. Mid-week declines attracted buying for spot and forward delivery, but demand tapered off as the price recovered. With spot supplies here scarce, the quotation for nearby metal went to a premium over forward months. Tin plate mills were expanding schedules on releases from can manufacturers.

Lead experienced a moderate demand as consumers covered part of their February requirements and prices remained unchanged. While sales may have averaged less than smelter oak intake, sellers were holding steady owing to reports of improving industrial activity and expectations of better demand for the remainder of next month's needs.

Zinc was quiet, but steady. Although buyers restricted purchases to small lots, there was no pressure to sell. Relatively high ore prices were said to check smelters from offering metal at concessions. While ore production has been resumed at a normal rate, stocks are being strongly held.

Steel operations continued their upward trend to an estimated 49 per cent of capacity on expending consumption in various industries, of which the automotive is still furnishing an important percentage of orders. The upturn in tin plate operations aided the rate, but demand is being received from miscellaneous industries. While there was no change in finished prices or pig iron, scrap prices rose further.

FOUR KILLED WHEN POLICE IN NEW YORK FIGHT GANGSTERS

Officer, Taxicab Driver and Two Murder Suspects Victims of Three Shootings.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Three encounters between police and gangsters, within a 24-hour period, tonight had brought death to four men and the arrest of eight others. The death list included a policeman, a taxicab driver, and two murder suspects.

The shootings began last night when four youths, attempting to hold up a Fifth avenue luggage shop, engaged in a pistol fight with two policemen. Patrolman James M. J. Killian, was fatally wounded before the four were captured. Shortly after the Fifth avenue shooting, three youths were captured after a revolver fight with police, who charged them with attempting to hold up a South Brooklyn drug store. Albert Musgrif, into whose taxicab the men had jumped, was killed either by the police or by his passengers.

This morning the Farugia brothers, Samuel and Joseph, died in a fight with police when they resisted arrest on vagrancy charges. On parole from Connecticut State prison, they had been sought in connection with the killing of a policeman and a civilian last May. Joseph Farugia was killed by police bullets today, and his brother ended his life rather than surrender.

Apparently becoming suddenly crazed Patrolman John J. Masterson, 38 years old, today seriously wounded Patrolman John J. Hopkins, 40, and then fired a bullet into his own head killing himself, in a bar and lunchroom. Masterson had been drinking.

Control of Islands to Navy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Three tiny island groups in the Pacific, south and west of Hawaii, were placed under the control and jurisdiction of the Navy today by a White House executive order. The islands are Wake, about half way between Hawaii and the Philippines; Kingman Reef, several hundred miles south of Honolulu, and Johnson and Sand Islands, southwest of Hawaii. The latter are a bird refugee and breeding ground. The islands are uninhabited by man.

Pair Learn Their Disclosures Possibly Won't Get Clemency for Them.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Switzes, Americans who are expected to go on trial soon on charges of espionage, wondered in their separate cells today whether it pays to tell. The East Orange (N. J.) man and his wife have learned that the Court may not free them after all in return for their disclosures which led to the round-up of the alleged conspirators after their own arrest 13 months ago.

The Magistrate to whom they talked told them about the clemency provision in the espionage law for informers. They have since learned clemency is discretionary with the Court, and in at least one recent case an informer was given the maximum sentence of five years' imprisonment.

The Switzes' only resentment, officials said, is toward two Russians, Mackovicz and Restchesky, who are charged with having been chiefs of the ring. They are missing, having fled from Paris in 1932.

Thirty-four suspects are under indictment. Sixteen, including the Americans, are awaiting trial in Paris. Mme. Maria Schul was convicted early last year in Finland on another espionage charge and is serving a sentence there. Feribel Strom, a Polish student, was convicted in 1933 and is now in a French prison at Poissy.

Nine others are fugitives, police said, including the Russians, an American woman, Mrs. Pauline Jacobsen Levine, 32 years old; Mme. Baila Englard, Bessarabian student; Raissa Svarck, Latvian woman; Pumper, a Latvian; Louis Duval of Luxembourg; Paul Muraille, nationality undetermined; and Sander Cohen and Damianoff, Bessarabians.

Facing trial with the Switzes are: Benjamin Berkcowitz, 42, Rumanian-born, naturalized Canadian; Mrs. Clara Levitan Bercowitz, 30; Mme. Lydia Tchekaloff Stahl, 48, Russian-born linguist and divorced wife of Boris Stahl, New York business man; Col. Octave Dumoulin, retired French Army officer; Albert Aubrey, French explosives expert; Mme. Marcelle Laroche Aubry, his wife; Vatroslav Reich, Croat-born naturalized French citizen and chemist in a Government laboratory; Maurice Milice, French arms inspector; Mlle. Madeleine Mermet, 23, French school teacher; Mme. Chana Salman, 25, Polish medical student; Douchan Narandisch, 42, Serbian journalist; Mlle. Riva Davidovici, 35, Rumanian dentist; Moise Gorin, Bessarabian.

Those temporarily at liberty are Mme. Marie Louise Narandisch, wife of Douchan, and known as an artist by her maiden name, Simart; Mme. Henriette Lacoste, French dealer in art paints; Mlle. Genevieve Frindel, French dressmaker; Moise Salman, 30, Polish medical student and husband of Mme. Chana Salman Srul Levinson, and Michael Perilman, Bessarabians.

SAYS E. W. BROWNING HAD DELUSION HE WAS PRESIDENT

Nurse Testifies in Will Inquiry He Was Irrational Few Days Before He Died.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Edward W. (Daddy) Browning told his nurse a few days before he died, she testified before a Surrogate today, that he was President of the United States and promised well-paid positions for herself and friends in the Government service.

Mrs. Orline Lane, the nurse, returned to the witness stand in Surrogate Delehanty's inquiry into the wealthy real estate operator's condition at the time he signed a codicil to his will, designating legacies of about $270,000 for charity, 12 days before his death on Oct. 12 last.

The nurse described her patient as acting "a little strange" on Oct. 6 and said he was "irrational" two days later. She testified Browning told her he was ruined financially and had no money on the day before the codicil was signed.

Answering the Surrogate's questions as to whether any papers had been signed to her knowledge, the nurse testified she had seen the codicil on a table beside Browning's bed but that she was not present when the signature and what she called a "distorted mark" were placed on the document.

She was instructed to reproduce the mark as closely as possible and it was admitted as an exhibit.

ROOSEVELT TRIES TO SCUTTLE OLD-AGE PENSIONS, LONG SAYS

Louisiana Senator Declares for Financing of Relief by Levies on Big Fortunes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Senator Huey Long asserted tonight in a radio address that the only "practical relief which the Government can give must be financed by taking the money with which to give such relief from the big fortunes at the top."

Preliminary to an attack upon the unemployment and old-age insurance proposals submitted to Congress this week by President Roosevelt, he said he and his associates had been "clamoring for a number of relief measures" including an old-age pension of $30 to $40 a month for all over 60.

"Now along comes Mr. Roosevelt," he continued, "and says that he is for the old-age pension of $30 a month, but he says that it shall be paid by the states. What the Roosevelt pronouncement for old-age pensions means is that he would scuttle it inside and out."

U. S. JUDGE IN TAMPA HOLDS NRA LUMBER CODE INVALID

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 19.—The NRA lumber code was held unconstitutional here by Federal Judge Alexander Akerman.

The ruling was made by Judge Akerman in denying the Government an injunction to restrain Logan A. George, Tampa lumber dealer, from operating without complying with provisions of the code.

Judge Akerman said that insofar as had been shown George is engaged only in intrastate manufacturing of car decking and that the Government does not have the right to regulate hours of services and wages of employes nor prices to be received for products of a purely intrastate manufacturing plant.

United States District Judge Grubb at Birmingham ruled similarly and the issue is now before the Supreme Court on an appeal from Judge Grubb's decision.

OPEN VERDICT IN DEATH OF HORACE R. CULLING

A Coroner's open verdict was returned yesterday in the case of Horace R. Culling, vice-president of the Carondelet Foundry Co., who died Thursday afternoon from the effects of poison.

C. R. Culling, a nephew, expressed the opinion that his uncle might have mistaken the poison for medicine he habitually kept in his office. The Coroner's verdict explained it was impossible to determine from the evidence whether the poison was taken by accident or intentionally.

Culling, whose sixty-sixth birthday was yesterday, lived at 8 Crestwood drive, Clayton. Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the residence, with interment in Valhalla Cemetery.

Ohio Turns to State Sales Tax To Finance Relief and Bolster Revenues of Schools and Cities

Act Designed to Raise $60,000,000 a Year Imposes Levy of 3 Cents on the Dollar Directly on Consumer.

By SAMUEL J. SHELTON
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 19.

OHIO'S new general sales tax is a stamp tax. Every shopper may, if she (or he) wishes, soon save up a vari-colored collection of stamps evidencing payment of sales taxes that will average about 3 cents for every dollar paid in purchase price of commodities.

Containing many features not found in other state sales tax laws, the Ohio act was designed as an important source of revenue for the state, the schools and municipal subdivisions, and is expected to yield about $60,000,000 a year.

In its broad scope, its rigid enforcement terms and its ingenious provisions for imposing the tax directly on the consumer, the law is of special interest to the people of Missouri at this time when their State Legislature is considering ways and means to raise more State revenue, having before it proposals for increase of the present general sales tax of one-half of one per cent.

Search for New Revenue.

As in other states, Ohio turned to the sales tax under the pressure of growing need of funds for relief purposes at a time when revenue from the usual property tax sources was being dried up by long continuance of the depression. Just as investments in real estate were frozen by the abnormal conditions, so to a great extent were the sources frozen from which property taxes could be paid and delinquencies mounted to $200,000,000. The State Legislators sought a new liquid source of revenue and in the constant flow of trade and commerce they found a stream of cash into which they could dip and take out funds for pressing public needs.

There is no State income tax in Ohio. More than a year ago, with property tax delinquencies increasing and the burden of taxation bearing heavily on homes and farms, the people voted a constitutional amendment limiting the total tax rate that could be imposed on real and personal property, by all governmental authorities, to 10 mills—that is, $1 on the $100 of valuation. Only by a special vote of the people could the annual rate in any county or district be made higher.

The State government had not levied a property tax for a number of years. Its revenues are derived largely from various taxes on business and corporations, and a number of special excise taxes such as those on cigarettes, gasoline and liquor. Schools and municipal subdivisions depended principally on the property tax, and it was estimated that the new limitation on the rate would cut down property tax revenue by at least $50,000,000 a year.

Division of Proceeds.

There came the added need of State funds for relief, and the sales tax was looked to as a means of getting more money. The law provides that $4,000,000 shall go to the poor relief funds of the counties, $6,000,000 to the State emergency relief fund and $6,000,000 to the old-age pension fund. After administrative costs are deducted, 60 per cent of the remainder is to be distributed to the public schools and 40 per cent to the "local government fund" for distribution to political subdivisions of the State.

As enacted rather hastily late in 1934 the Ohio sales tax is made effective for the year 1935 only, but it is generally expected that it will be extended and probably revised in some respects. Because of the great amount of preliminary preparation, the State Tax Commission, which is charged with administration, was unable to start collecting the tax Jan. 1. The tentative date for starting collection is Jan. 28.

Following the plan successfully used by the Federal Government, Ohio will collect its sales tax by selling stamps to retailers. The retailers are required to keep on hand an adequate supply of the stamps and for every sale to cancel stamps of the amount of the tax. Each stamp is in two parts with a perforation between. One-half is the vendor's receipt, which he retains, and the other is the consumer's receipt and must be handed to the customer at the time of the sale. It is not to be pasted on the merchandise.

Stamps in 11 Colors.

The stamps are available in 11 denominations from 1 cent to $3 and the colors are peacock blue, red, brown, green, gray, magenta, orange, olive, heliotrope red, royal purple and black.

The State Treasurer is the general distributer of the stamps, and each county treasurer is a local sales agent. The State Treasurer may establish other sales agencies. All merchants subject to the provisions of the law must be licensed under regulations prescribed by the Tax Commission, paying a fee of $1.

By purchasing a supply of stamps, which he must pay for at the time, the merchant really prepays the tax. On quantities of more than $24 worth at a time the merchant receives a discount of 3 per cent—that is, for 97 cents he gets $1 worth of stamps.

The rate of taxation is not a fixed percentage of total sales, as in most state sales tax laws. The law defines certain brackets and fixes the amount of tax for each. On sales under 9 cents there is no tax. From 9 cents to 40 cents, the tax is 1 cent; from 41 cents to 70 cents it is 2 cents, and from 70 cents to $1.08 it is 3 cents. For each even additional dollar of sale price there is additional tax of 3 cents, and the tax applicable to the odd-cents part of the price is determined by bracket definitions.

Check on Profiteering.

On a sale of $2.50 the tax would be 8 cents and the seller must pay that amount into the State Treasury, through cancellation of stamps previously purchased. The system is designed to keep the merchant from profiteering on the tax in any way.

Each separate transaction is taxable. When the customer takes the merchandise and pays for it, or has it charged, the tax is due and the proper amount of stamps must be cancelled. As the merchant has already paid for the stamps, he is expected to collect the tax from the customer. If it is a credit transaction he may charge the tax to the customer, entering it as a separate item, but if it is uncollectable from the customer the merchant must lose it.

The law forbids a merchant from advertising or holding out that he will absorb the tax in the price of merchandise. He may not quote a price as "including tax" or "tax paid." On whatever price he quotes he must collect the appropriate tax. It is likely, however, that in some cases merchants may reduce quoted prices to such extent that after addition of the tax the customer will not pay more than before.

Bread and Milk Exempted.

The tax applies to almost all sales of tangible personal property to consumers or ultimate users. It does not apply to sales of commodities for resale or for use as constituents in manufacturing. Loaf bread is exempted, but not rolls, buns and the like. Fluid milk not to be consumed on the premises is exempted. Newspapers are exempted, but not magazines and books. Purchases made

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica.

ENDLESSLY this question is asked about polar exploration: "What is the use of it?" In a certain sense science supplies the answer. Geographical discovery, the brightest weapon in an explorers' armory, is only an elementary tool for getting at something deeper. Exploration nowadays reaches dignity only when penetrating past the superficial concerns of latitude and longitude. It brings the modern apparatus of science to bear upon the unknown for a truer understanding of the known and half known. In the twenty-two-point program of this expedition, geographical discovery was only a single point.

Among the subjects studied by this expedition during its field operations are astronomy, meteorology, physical oceanography, biology, oceanography, vertebrate and invertebrate zoology, mammalogy, physiology, glaciology, stratigraphy, petrography, paleontology, tectonic and economic geology, geophysics, physical geography, cartography, physical and terrestial magnetism, bacteriology and botany.

The expedition has had the distinction of carrying cosmic ray research into the highest Southern latitudes thus far attained in the adventuresome pursuit of this most fascinating of newly discovered phenomena; of initiating the first meteor-observation program in Antartica, with spectacular results; of introducing up-to-date technique in polar meteorology; and of gathering the first authentic data as to the thickness of the South Polar ice cap, thanks to the seismic sounding apparatus, the preliminary hints of which may radically change our conception of Antarctica.

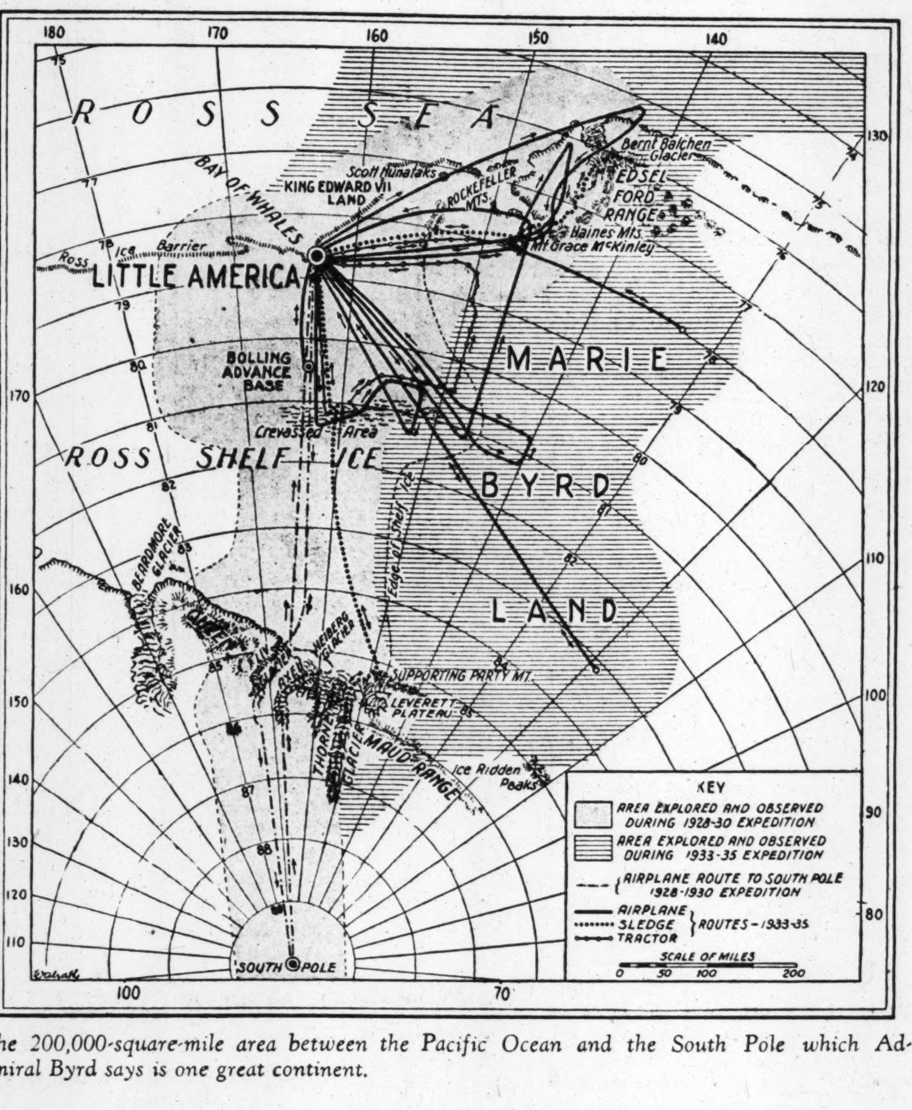
The most casual survey of these subjects shows they are not esoteric and peculiar to remote places. Many of them are of everyday significance in civilization.

First Expedition In Preparation.

In certain respects my first expedition was a preparation for the second. Great problems still remained, and it seemed logical to try to close with them while we still had the advantage of an awakened pubic interest, the momentum of one successful effort, and while we still had available the nucleus of a well-trained personnel.

The intrusion of the depression made the task of building a second expedition formidable, but not insuperable. It was done, finally, one way and another, and when we squared away for our job on Oct. 22, 1933, we numbered six score men, mostly volunteers, aboard two ships, the iron Jacob Ruppert, resurrected from the Government graveyard, and the 60-year-old barkentine Bear of Oakland. We had aboard four airplanes, a fleet of six tractors, 150 dogs and the best tools of our trade that we could beg, borrow or buy.

For many years my curiosity had been attracted by that strange bulge of white, unexplored space jutting into the Pacific Ocean in the Pacific Quadrant between the 170th and 120th meridians West. Somewhere behind it lay the most extensive stretch of undiscovered coastline on the face of the earth. Since the time of Cook, innumerable explorers had tried in vain to make a break through, only to find the way barred, as he had, by mountains of ice and a pack of impenetrable thickness. After leaving New Zealand, instead of laying a course direct for Little America, I resolved to try to cut away some of this unknown.



The 200,000-square-mile area between the Pacific Ocean and the South Pole which Admiral Byrd says is one great continent.

The initial operations were auspicious. Laying a course to fetch us up at the intersection of the Antarctic Circle and the 150th meridian, we were gratified to break 136 miles past Cook's record, something in these latitudes which had not been surpassed in a century and a half. The Ruppert ultimately attained Lat. 66.45 S., Long. 150.10 W. It would have been imprudent to risk driving her deeper into the ice, so we withdrew her for 14 miles to a lovely open lake in the pack, and there let aviation carry the burden of the penetration.

Flights Over Ice Fields.

The first flight carried us within sight of the 70th parallel, close to 350 miles beyond the deepest penetration in this region and within 300 miles of the coast of Marie Byrd Land. To the limit of vision along our track the sea was littered with pack.

Enticed by the likelihood that no land lay nearer than the coastal front we had discovered in 1929, I decided then to run east to the 120th meridian, where Dr. Charcot had made a deep penetration, and try to gain the coast along that meridian.

The ship felt her way past innumerable bergs in dense fog. On a bright day Dr. Poulter, senior scientist, estimated we saw 8000 bergs in 24 hours. On one day, in fog and in a gale, we lay helpless for an hour and a half in the midst of them with our engines stopped.

Still we persevered, sometimes sailing into unexplored waters. At the 120th meridian the way south was barred by heavy pack, so we worked to the 116th meridian. The ice here was none too favorable, but time was getting short. On Dec. 31 we reached the pack for the second time, forcing the ship 40 miles south to Lat. 70.05 S. From this point we withdrew five miles, to take advantage of open water for a take-off, and on Jan. 3, 1934, made our second flight, this time to Lat. 72.30 S., Long. 116.35 W.

Having already overstayed the time allotted for these eastern operations, and still facing the tremendous job of re-establishing the winter base of Little America, we had no choice but to start the long voyage to the West. We withdrew from the pack and commenced to run along the front of it. On Jan. 10, when we stopped to let aviation resume the assault, we had reached Lat. 69.50, Long. 152.21. Here we had our third aerial thrust into the unknown, flying to Lat. 71.45 along the 152d meridian.

Return to Little America.

This flight closed the Ruppert's operations in the eastern sector. She was then steered directly for Little America. But in February, after the ships were unloaded, I was tempted to strike at the heart of the matter with a different weapon and from a new quarter. With Capt. English I took the Bear of Oakland on a voyage of exploration. Before the worst sea ice I have ever seen stopped the plucky old ship, we had worked our way northeast to Lat. 73.05 S., Long. 149.30 W., and thence westward to the 159th meridian, so that for all practical purposes the gap between the flight tracks and the known coast was closed.

The significant result of these operations, together with our subsequent explorations in the eastern sector, was to identify a vast area of unknown as Pacific Ocean and extinguish the hypothesis of an archipelago reaching into it.

On March 1 we were able to free Capt. Innes Taylor and a southern party of six men and five dog teams for the vital mission of running a chain of food depots to Lat. 79.56 W. in preparation for the major journeys of the spring and to dispatch Chief Pilot June and Demas southward with a fleet of four tractors carrying the equipment and stores necessary for the advanced meteorological base we proposed to establish somewhere on the Ross Ice Barrier and for its occupancy throughout the winter night.

Goes to Outpost 123 Miles South.

On March 22 I flew to the advance base to occupy the world's southernmost meteorological station, the occupation of which was important to our meteorological and auroral program.

The advance base was a shack 123 miles by trail south of Little America. It was originally my hope to be able to advance the shack nearer the foot of the Queen Maud Range, 400 miles south, but the delay in discharging the ships, caused by the unusual ice conditions, together with the difficulties in re-establishing Little America, made necessary a change in this plan. Nevertheless, we determined to advance the shack as far south as the tractors could make it before the onset of winter jeopardized the crews.

At the advance post Admiral Byrd spent four and one-half months in solitude undergoing severe hardships.

The advance base was equipped with up-to-date apparatus for maintaining a continuous record of wind, temperature and pressure from the day the base was occupied through the winter night and until it was shut-down, on Oct. 12. These elements, together with observations of auroral activity, were continuously recorded after my arrival at the base. Dr. Poulter made a valuable series of simultaneous meteor and auroral observations with observers at Little America.

On my return to Little America I found a smoothly-running exploring machine ready to prosecute the missions we had outlined for it. Siple's party was about to leave for the first scientific penetration into Marie Byrd Land, with special interest in its geological and biological features. Blackburn's geologi-

Premier of Italy.

ROME, January.

IN the communique that was issued at the close of my recent talk in Rome with the Chancellor of the Austrian republic, reference was made to the historic mission which Austria must fulfill and for which her independence and autonomy must be respected.

The reference to the "historic" mission of Austria made a certain impression, even among the Austrians themselves, many of whom, after the catastrophe to the Empire, did not believe that their country could survive and have a future.

Has Austria the historic mission to fulfill? Even though it is no more a vital part and the directing head of an empire which in its best days had a population of 52,000,000?

The population of Austria does not today reach 7,000,000, but it is a compact nation, with an ethnical viewpoint, except Vienna, which is a melting pot. On the other hand, a people can have a mission to fulfill, independently of the vastness of its territory and the number of its inhabitants.

Austrian Germanism.

When one speaks of a "historic" mission, one means to refer to a mission that lasts through centuries, with results of an order not only internal but also external. Now of what does the historic mission of the Austria of today consist?

In order to reply to this question we must begin by setting forth that Austria is a German country: certainly as German as Prussia, whose foundation is Slav, severely Germanized.

No one can challenge the German character of Austria, but the aspects, expressions, even the way of living of Austrian Germanism, are very different from those of Prussian Germanism. They are two worlds which during the past centuries have turned in different orbits and often they met on the field of battle.

German Austria, during the Empire, functioned as the mediating force between the eight or ten races which composed it. It made its influence felt especially through its great center, Vienna, but it has also undergone influence from the Slavs, Magyars and Latins.

Filter for German Culture.

The first "historic" work of Austria is, therefore, to continue the work of past centuries under other forms, in a new situation, which has changed on the political side but not on the geographic; to filter and balance German culture in order to make it tolerable and acceptable to the Danubian and Balkan world.

One of the tasks of the Austrian spirit in all its manifestations, from politics to literature, can be to eliminate from the German "conception" all that which is exclusive, harsh and repulsive to other peoples.

At the same time, Austria can be a most fitting instrument in the contacts between the Nascent culture of the Danubian Basin and the German world.

Austrian Catholicism.

The second historic mission of Austria springs from the traditional and tenacious Catholicity of its people. When Austria is said, Catholic is also said, but a serious Catholic, observing and profoundly devoted to the Roman Catholic Apostolic Church.

Catholicism during the Empire appeared rather formalist and bound with the necessity of policy; Austrian Catholicism of the post-war period is felt as a faith which has its roots in the Austrian soul.

The great Chancellors of the Republic, Seipel and Dollfuss, were Catholics—the former was even a Monsignor. The present Chancellor Schuschnigg is a strictly observing Catholic and makes no mystery of his convictions, which reflect his honor and show his strong character.

Seen from Rome and from the religious viewpoint, Austria seems like a great entrenched field of Catholicism in the Danubian Basin. Slav orthodox and German Reformed religions are pressing at the edges of this entrenched camp.

Defending the extreme positions of Catholicism in that European sector, Austria defends 15 centuries of its historic tradition and its own reason of life, which, in 1633, made it the bulwark of all European Catholicity against the threatened invasion of the Crescent.

Service to Civilization.

The historic tasks of Austria are therefore two: To conserve the merits of German culture, humanized by contacts with the Latin culture, above all, and to hold firm the place of Catholicism in Northeast and Center Europe, as the advanced sentinel.

With these tasks, Austria reaffirms her individuality, gives sense and aim to her national collectivity and renders a great service to European civilization. Austria, among her best elements, is conscious of this: such sentiment is becoming the patrimony of the vast masses of her people. The postulate of independence acquires value and supreme significance, viewed in the light of its historic character.

In spite of a common language, Austria has always had its own literature, art and music. An Austrian spirit has developed which is Austrian in form, not Germanic. These forms have felt above all an influx of Latin culture from the West, represented by Italy. Austro-Italian cultural relations have lasted for centuries.

Literary Renaissance.

The literary renaissance began in Austria with Johann von Neumarkt, who translated Petrarch. The seventeenth and eighteenth centuries can be defined as the golden period of Italian literary influence; Italians were the poets at court, like Apostolo, Zeno and Metastasio. The Italian language was universally known—composers of universal fame, like Mozart and Gluck, had Italian librettists.

Italian masters like Giovanni and Castiletti were called to the direction of the Court Chapel. In the sixteenth century it was proposed to bring Palestrina to Vienna. We find that composers and scene painters were there. The Venetian style acquired a particular physiognomy there, while the Neapolitan style was represented by Nicolo Porpora. Father Martini exercised a noteworthy influence on Mozart, while it remains to the glory of Antonio Salieri that he taught vocal composition to Schubert and Beethoven.

Inspiration From Italy.

All Austrian monumental architecture in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was of Italian inspiration and construction. The chronicles and encyclopedias tell us that Santino Solari of Como directed all building in Salzburg between 1612 and 1646. Bands of artisans from Northern Italy emigrated there with their families and were the means of a large artistic movement which created innumerable works among which emerge at Vienna, the Church of the Jesuits, that of the Dominicans and that of Neuengelschoren; at Innsbruck, the Church of the Jesuits; at Salzburg the Cathedral and Kajetaner Kirche. I recall also the convents of Schlierbach, Kremsmunster, Klosternenberg, Wilten, and the Leopoldine wing of the Hofburg; the Theresianum College by Bur-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Suspects the Administration of Being Veblen-Conscious.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I THINK we have all observed that the national administration has acted vigorously and often, but has had almost nothing at all to say as to its underlying economic philosophy. The President and his close associates have so completely avoided anything in the nature of a statement of general economic beliefs that I am persuaded there has been agreement within the official family that such statement would do more harm than good.

That the President and a number of his associates have well-grounded economic beliefs is not to be doubted. They are readers and thinkers. They make new paths along strange ways, and the fact that they do not flush and scatter at every alarm sounded by individuals and groups of the old order indicates to me that they have been subjected to the stabilizing influence of organized thought.

I do not blame the administration for avoiding a sweeping confession of faith. Probably it would be generally misunderstood. I am sure that far more bitter and violent opposition might be set off by one fatal taboo-affronting word than by many acts of great political and economic daring.

But one cannot help being curious, and there is, of course, no reason for trying to suppress one's curiosity. The administration has been so successful in its reticence that clews that do appear most likely are thrown out by design and not by inadvertence. Some facts in connection with the recent publication of the biography of Thorstein Veblen by Joseph Dorfman might be taken as revealing somewhat the sort of food that has nourished economic thought in administration circles.

* * *

I offer these facts for what they are worth:

First, it should be understood that Thorstein Veblen was not just another economist. Not enough years have elapsed since his writing for accurate appraisal, but it is probable that he will rate as one of the greatest thinkers that the world has known. When a man reads Veblen, he experiences a terrific mental impact. He is never quite the same again. As someone has expressed it, "He becomes a life member of the Veblen cult."

Is the President a member of the Veblen cult? I cannot say. But I know beyond a shadow of doubt that he has not lacked for invitations to join, because it appears that some of his official family are members in good standing. In a foreword to his great biography, Joseph Dorfman gives credit to Rexford G. Tugwell for having made the financial arrangements that permitted the biographer to devote years of research into Veblen's life and letters. Tugwell is, therefore, convicted irrevocably of Veblenism. The biography contains a number of references to Henry Wallace's great appreciation of Veblen and mention of Wallace's personal acquaintance with the great thinker during his lifetime. The evidence against Wallace is almost as conclusive as that against Tugwell.

Raymond Moley is not compromised in the biography, but shortly after its publication, Moley's weekly magazine of comment, Today, carried a review of Dorfman's book and an editorial on Veblen by Moley himself, which places him in the same category with Tugwell and Wallace.

* * *

Thus the three Brain Trusters reputed to be closest to the President are revealed to be students and admirers of Thorstein Veblen. The President has not declared himself, so far as I know, but a man is known by the company he keeps. Roosevelt has not kept company with those three men without hearing Veblen discussed more than once. Just what all this means as revealing the underlying economic philosophy of the administration is evident, of course, only to those who read Veblen.

Moley suggests the reading of Dorfman's book as a shortcut to Veblen's philosophy. I think he is wrong. The biography should be read, I think, following the reading of at least three Veblen books. I suggest "Theory of the Leisure Class," "Absentee Ownership" and "The Theory of Business Enterprise." Of course, anyone who would read these three would read the rest. There are not many.

In order not to excite false hopes, it should be understood that Veblen examines economic facts, possibly he may be said to diagnose economic ailments, but he does not prescribe cures. Therefore, assuming the administration to be ever so Veblen-conscious, the new student of Veblen can expect to have his mind cleared mainly as to the necessity of change. No embarrassing revelation of plans is to be feared on account of the clews I have mentioned, and no greatly increased sales of Veblen books are to be anticipated.

Against World Court Entry.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE "noble aim" of World Court entry will be as disastrous to the United States as the "noble experiment" of prohibition. They are staging the same old rush act. Why flirt with a buzz saw?

JOHN C. MEYERS.

THE FEDERAL JUDGESHIP.

All other considerations aside, there is a paramount reason, a reason that should control the Department of Justice in advising the President, why the effort of Senator Clark to obtain a Federal judgeship for George H. Moore of St. Louis, the manager of his campaign in 1932, should be defeated.

That reason should be obvious to Senator Clark, to Mr. Moore, to the Department of Justice and to the President. The appointment of Mr. Moore to the Federal bench in the Eastern Missouri district would be an appointment for political reasons. The facts admit of no other interpretation. Whatever justification there may be, in our political system, for the dispensing of ordinary "patronage" by a United States Senator in reward for partisan political activity, there can be no justification for the filling of a Federal judgeship in this manner.

Not only is there no justification, but appointment of our Federal Judges, in political practice, has rested customarily on higher grounds. By and large, Federal judgeships have not been regarded as plums to be shaken from the patronage tree. Within the limits of the custom that awards preferment to members of the party in power, Presidents and their Attorney-Generals have commonly recognized, and have been guided by the recognition, that Federal judgeships—places of high power and prestige, from which involuntary removal is possible only through impeachment—should be reserved for men of outstanding qualifications.

The high character and ability of the United States Supreme Court Justices attest this fact. The deserved esteem in which the Federal judiciary is held throughout the United States, for character and efficiency, attests it. The standing of our Missouri Federal courts attests it. When it is said by laymen that faith in our courts has been shaken, there is nearly always an exception in favor of the Federal courts.

We make no attack on the personal character of Mr. Moore when we express the conviction that he should not be placed on the Federal bench. His career in the law has assuredly not been of the distinction to warrant the proposed great preferment.

Even if that patent fact be waived, Mr. Moore is disqualified by the fact that his appointment would wear a political coloration tending inevitably to bring the Federal judiciary into disesteem. Never in our history has it been more important than it is now that the Federal judiciary be selected on the basis of merit, with the minimum of regard for political considerations.

Political considerations are unquestionably dominant in the proposal that Mr. Moore be made a Federal Judge.

When it came to public notice that the proffer of an appellate judgeship had been made to Judge Faris with a string attached, we said it was deeply regrettable that a merited promotion should be handled in this way. We said the conclusion was inescapable that the Federal judiciary in St. Louis was being made the football of partisan politics.

That conclusion is confirmed and strengthened by the recommendation that Mr. Moore be appointed to the place that will be vacated upon the promotion of Judge Faris. The recommendation should be rejected.

BRIDGING THE MISSOURI.

The RFC has agreed to lend the Wabash Railroad money with which to build a new bridge at St. Charles. The railroad began to build the bridge some years ago, but it got no farther than the piers. It was not financially able to add the superstructure.

Bridging the Missouri is a major engineering problem, as the present Wabash bridge at St. Charles illustrates. When it was first built, years ago, a test train sent out on it broke the bridge down and dropped into the river.

The new Wabash bridge will be more modern than the old. Its piers will go deeper, and its foundations will be sounder. The distance down to solid rock in the Missouri is sometimes prodigious for the purpose of bridge building. There are piers under the Bellefontaine bridge, 15 miles below St. Charles, which are 167 feet long.

Mark Twain said the Missouri River was the only river in the world that the wind blew dust out of, a witticism which is applicable to this turbulent stream in more ways than one.

HUNGARY'S SELF-INVESTIGATION.

The quarrel between Hungary and Yugoslavia over the former country's alleged part in the assassination of King Alexander threatened European peace for a few tense days last December. Now, with the filing at Geneva of Hungary's report officially absolving itself, after "the minutest inquiry," of any part in the murder, the settlement made by the League Council on Dec. 10 reaches its penultimate stage. Only Yugoslavia's acceptance, which doubtless will be shortly forthcoming, remains to write finis to the affair.

As might have been expected from the terms of the settlement, Hungary's report is largely perfunctory. It was scarcely to have been expected that an investigation conducted by the Government would indict the Government for a part in the crime. The investigation was, of course, a face-saving device whereby both nations could retire from the controversy with their honor unimpaired. The fact that Hungary did inflict mild punishment on several minor functionaries for inadequate control of Croatian immigration (which may or may not have had a bearing on the assassination) should make it easier for Yugoslavia to accept the report. The device of investigation further served to allow time for nationalist passions on both sides to die down, and helped the League achieve a triumph of conciliation.

IRAN, NOT PERSIA.

If one would be exact after March 22, New Year's day in the land of the Shahs, one must call that Kingdom Iran and not Persia. True, it has long been known to the history books and the geographies as Persia. The world-wide surge of nationalism, however, has convinced the country's rulers that this name is no longer fitting, since it derives from Pers, one of the country's provinces, while Iran invokes the ancient glories by its former application to the entire region where Cyrus, Darius and Xerxes had their mighty Empire. The new name has ethnological as well as geographical significance, for it means "Land of the Aryans," and recalls the nation's boast that the Aryan race was cradled there.

It will take the other nations some time to become accustomed to the new designation for a country that bore its ancient name so long. The size of this task of re-educating the world may be judged by the fact that most of us still know the U. S. S. R. as Russia, still speak of the Irish Free State as Ireland and still say Prague when we should, to be formally correct, say Praha.

TAKING THE POSTOFFICE OUT OF POLITICS.

The Postoffice Department has been so prominent an organ of politics under so many successive administrations that it has long seemed it would never be anything else. The system of political appointments has been widely attacked, and estimates have been made to show that the department's cost could be greatly reduced by a more efficient, non-political personnel. Little has ever been done to bring about that condition, but now the situation is attacked from a new angle by Senator Norris.

The Nebraskan's plan for taking the department out of politics, to be embodied in a bill, provides for a 10-year term of office for the Postmaster-General, tenure during good behavior for postmasters and promotion of capable postal officials to larger offices. The advantages of this scheme over the present system are obvious. The Postmaster-General, by virtue of his long term, would be severed from partisan politics. By a prospect of continued tenure and of promotion, the character of officeholders would soon shift from political workers to persons seeking a career. Authorizing the Postmaster-General to call on the Civil Service Commission for advice in making appointments is a wise provision.

Senator Norris' plan is cannily designed to overcome much of the possible opposition. Providing continued terms for all incumbent postmasters should line every one of them behind the bill. Similarly, spoils-seeking members of Congress should be appeased by having their incumbent henchmen remain in office, and being spared the embarrassing task of choosing among hosts of applicants in future.

The prospect of removing politics from its ancient stronghold and replacing it with business-like administration seems almost too good to be true. It probably would be set down as hopeless idealism were a lesser leader to attempt it. But Norris saw through to victory such alleged hopeless causes as the Muscle Shoals bill, the lame-duck amendment, the anti-injunction bill and the unicameral Legislature in Nebraska. We wish him similar success in his new crusade.

HOW TO KILL CROWS.

By planting bombs in a rookery and setting them off simultaneously by remote control, the Illinois Department of Conservation killed 3000 crows on a farm near Teheran, Mason County. Conservationists elsewhere will be interested in the type of bomb used, said to be a new invention, and in the method employed to place it.

For the crow is rapidly becoming a major pest in the Middle West. He is an inveterate thief. He eats quail eggs and young quail. He devours young rabbits. He despoils grain fields. And while hunters are constantly taking bags of rabbit and quail from the uplands, the crow continues unmolestedly on his destructive career, multiplying rapidly, of course. Everywhere throughout this section, large flocks of crows may be seen in the sky morning and evening going to and from their rookeries.

Most hunters kill crows whenever they have the opportunity, but these opportunities are few unless crows are skillfully decoyed and called. Few hunters have the patience or the desire to go crow-hunting. The crow is a very clever bird. He takes alarm quickly, rarely permitting a person to get within gunshot when he is feeding, and on the wing flying high beyond range. The solution for cutting down the crow population and restoring a balance of nature now lacking is to set such traps in rookeries as are being employed in Illinois.

THE VINE AND FIG TREE.

The Government is now in the business of building homes. What it has done, and is doing, is told engagingly in Collier's Weekly by John T. Flynn The author discusses what might be done.

It is a stupendous enterprise, in which private industry and the Government may operate non-competitively. Each has its separate field. The 50,000,000 people who live in homes costing $3000 and up are allocated to private industry. For the other 50,000,000, living in homes that rent from $3 to $6 a room, the Government must build, for the imperative reason that private industry will not touch that domain. This latter sector is described realistically. It is the area of shacks, hovels, abandoned houses that were once handsome residences but are now going the way of all flesh.

Houses have a more or less fixed mortality rate. Statisticians are not agreed as to just what it is. One estimate places the number of homes that have "died" in the last four years at 1,440,000. In the meantime, 2,000,000 additional people have reached the home-of-your-own age, which means a demand for 500,000 houses. This places the shortage at 1,940,000. But Harry L. Hopkins, head of FERA, from a survey of 64 cities, puts the deficiency at 3,000,000. By either calculation, the need for construction is great.

The housing project, which was sidetracked for a long time, is now on the administration's active list. It is well organized, Flynn says, in the PWA under Secretary Ickes. The Government is now building houses in Detroit that will rent for $4.68 a room and in Cincinnati at a slightly higher price. And at Red House, W. Va., FERA built 150 houses in 90 days at an average cost of $2150. Each house has a plot of three-fourths of an acre on which are a barn and chicken pen. The work was done by unemployed carpenters, plumbers, electricians and needy farmers. The total expenditure was $300,000. It is an investment, Mr. Flynn points out, not a record of relief cost.

In Secretary Ickes' judgment, the Government could profitably spend two billions a year in a housing program. The social results from such an adventure in reconstruction have been frequently and eloquently depicted. For such a program as a recovery factor Mr. Flynn makes a vivid case. He traces its ramifying, stimulating trail through shops and stores and banks—up and down the channels of retail and wholesale trade, from the lunch counter to mills and mines. It is the magic wand, he is persuaded, that would banish the partial paralysis of the capital goods industries and set all the wheels a-whirring.

Exquisite

THE VICOMTE IN THE KITCHEN. By Vicomte de Maduit. (Covici-Friede, New York City.)

VULGAR folk might suppose, after glancing over this volume, that its author had written a cook book. In the estimation of the Vicomte himself, it would be nearer right to describe his opus as an anthology. He is convinced that cookery is not only one of the fine arts, but "the finest art," and that it should even "take precedence over algebra," which is high praise.

The Vicomte, it will be noted very early in the book, is excessively subtle in the practice of his art. Take lobsters. Vulgar folk may suppose that a fresh lobster is a fresh lobster and that when properly cooked it is edible. Wrong again! Lobsters differ in temperament, some taking kindly to their fates, while others become embittered and melancholy. The latter when boiled become poisonous.

For this reason, it is absolutely essential to meet your living lobster personally, and, if possible, have a talk with him. If he seems to lack a proper sense of humor, leave him to the vulgar. A long, intimate acquaintance with the lobster is even better.

The case of mayonnaise dressing is equally subtle. Sometimes the Vicomte is able to make a miraculous dressing. At other times, try as he may, it's a dismal flop. Why? Even the Vicomte shakes his head in perplexity. A momentary diminution of the divine afflatus, one might suspect; but this seems hardly possible to a soul so exquisite.

Maybe it's the eggs. Of course, they were laid that very morning; but had the hens been psychoanalyzed? Were they naturally of a sunny disposition, and if so, may they not have got down on the wrong side of the roost that day? You've got to think of all such things in practicing an art that takes precedence even over algebra.

As for omelettes, they simply can't be made fit to eat outside of France, where they do not in the least resemble the leathery substance to which barbaric outlanders give the name. Just what makes the difference cannot be determined from the closest scrutiny of the artist's omelette recipes, which, in fact, seem to differ not at all from ours. Yet, think of the shoe soles that we call omelettes! No doubt the Vicomte knows the difference, but he just won't tell, the meanie!

The Vicomte is a jovial fellow, as well as exquisite, and sometimes he is intentionally amusing, as when he gives the following menu for a "Kentucky breakfast": a quart of whisky, three pounds of beefsteak and a dog. The dog, he explains, is there to eat the beefsteak.

Now if it were an Indian breakfast—— But why outrage the exquisite sensibilities of a super-algebraic artist?

LOTUS AND CHRYSANTHEMUM. An Anthology of Chinese and Japanese Poetry. Selected and edited by Joseph Lewis French. (Liveright Publishing Co., New York City.)

FIRST issued seven years ago in a limited edition, this anthology, said by experts to be one of the best in English, now appears in the admirable "Black and Gold" series at a much lower price. The book is beautifully made and the many symbolic line drawings by Samuel Bernard Schaeffer are exquisite. The anthology begins with the fifth century A. D. and ends with the work of modern poets. The copious notes at the back of the volume make enthralling reading.

MORE HARBOURS OF MEMORY. By William McFee. (Doubleday Doran & Co., Inc., Garden City, N. Y.)

THIRTEEN years ago, William McFee published his "Harbours of Memory," and in collecting and revising the essays and sketches for "More Harbours," he was so deeply impressed with the changes that have come over the reading and writing public since the former book appeared that he felt moved to record some "complainings from the chimney corner" in an introductory essay.

As a result of his musings on these changes, Mr. McFee comes to the conclusion that he must be a "middle-aged reactionary" and quite "bourgeois." At any rate, "advanced" and "proletarian" writers give him a dull pain. He cannot somehow develop any exuberance in contemplating those excessively modern poets and prose writers who are accepted as geniuses because they have nothing to say and don't somehow manage to say even that. Mr. McFee still actually believes that the literary artist should have something to communicate, and that literary art is not under special obligations to any economic or political theory.

Clearly, according to a critic like John Strachey, Mr. McFee is badly in need of a big dose of "dialectical materialism." But, strange to say, when one reads the essays and sketches themselves, one finds everywhere the clear-eyed sanity of a man who appears really to know and to love his fellow men. Also, one finds wisdom, beauty, humor. Even "proletarians" appear commonly in the book, but somehow they seem fundamentally much like us in essentials!

By all the rules as known to doctrinaire literary critics like Strachey, McFee ought to be sorely afflicted with the "Fascist Unconscious," yet nowhere is there the slightest indication of nationalistic or racial delusions of grandeur, nor any hostility to culture. Yet, when he thinks about the subject, he is undoubtedly capitalistic in his leanings. It is further true that he seems not to have any notion as to why society is in its present state of chaos, nor does he seem to want a reason. But with what illuminating power he can write!

WHERE NOTHING EVER HAPPENS. By Lee Shippey. (Houghton Mifflin Co., Boston.)

THIS is Lee Shippey's first novel. It is a good one. It is the story of a small town. Anyone who has lived in a small town, as so many of us have, will see his own village in Ourville. He will walk old familiar streets, recall events triumphant and embarrassing that have long slumbered, again meet dim, vague, forgotten figures in the characters Shippey has faithfully and kindly portrayed.

The tale toddles a bit uncertainly at first, but it presently finds itself and, once it hits its stride, it swings absorbingly through intrigue, scandal, tragedy and mystery, all told in the fine, honest key of neighborly conversation, in the simple sincerity of real art.

Everything that happens anywhere happens in Ourville, "Where Nothing Ever Happens." As historian of the community's manners and morals, the author will hear the plaudits of friendly voices and will win affectionate response from the larger audience he has addressed.

A word about him. Missouri knew Lee Shippey and esteemed him as a feature writer on the Kansas City Star. But in his fateful wanderings, he looked out one morning on the landscape of Southern California, and the Ozarks have seen him no more, while his column in the Los Angeles Times—"The Lee Side o' L. A."—appears regularly as the sunrise in the scenery and screenery of that sunny sector.

RECOVERY AHEAD! By Herbert Greenspan. (H. R. Regan & Co., New York City.)

THE author has been a "stock market analyst" for the past five years, and as a result of that illuminating experience, he is able to assure us that "the summer of 1935 will find America definitely on the road to prosperity! No ifs, buts or maybes!"

And how will this come to pass? Through the rehabilitation of the railroads. "The steam engine will give place to the streamlined Diesel engine—the 'r' standing out in bold relief for change to recovery." (Note how the magical "r" is to be found in "railroad," in "relief" and in "recovery." Signs and wonders!)

You see, it's like this: What we have to do is to "break down the stubborn resistance of consumer demand," and the streamlined trains will prove a godsend in this important respect. There are, we learn, 70,000,000 Americans "with ample resources" and they are "waiting for the new railroad which will take them and their goods faster and farther for less." These 70,000,000 will take to shipping and riding with great enthusiasm, and so their "ample resources" will be turned loose. Soon thereafter we'll all be climbing on for a jolly excursion out of the Valley of Depression to the Delectable Mountains.

It seems so simple, now that we hear of it. The truth is always like that, though.

Of course, there'll be other, and minor, aids to "recovery," as for instance: "Just as the President in December, 1934, had asked industry that it agree to give up profits in the event of war, so will he ask industry, during the last phase of this war on depression, to dispense with the profit motive. Business' acceptance of this formula will help break down the stubborn resistance of consumer demand . . ." A slight expedient, as compared with the magically recurrent "r" in "railroad," "streamlined," "relief" and "recovery"; but you've got to think of every little thing when you are up against "stubborn consumer resistance."

The book is important in that it is fairly representative of the sort of "thinking" that is appallingly common. The title is a giveaway. "Recovery" of what? The good old source of our disaster?

DANIEL BARTLETT GIVES HIS VIEWS ON LAW ENFORCEMENT

WOULD DIVORCE CRIME, POLITICS

Former Police Commissioner Points to St. Louis and Kansas City, With Same Police Setup.

A way must be found to divorce crime and politics, if the country is to make progress in law enforcement, Daniel Bartlett, chairman of the Criminal Law Enforcement, Police and Prosecution Committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis, told the association at its quarterly meeting at Hotel Chase Friday night.

This declaration was made by the former Police Commissioner at the conclusion of a report by him on the recent conference on crime held in Washington at the call of Attorney-General Cummings, which Bartlett attended in behalf of the association.

"While much of the criminal law procedure has been outmoded and many police organizations are undermanned and badly equipped," Bartlett said the real problem in law enforcement lay in personnel—"the selection of the right men, the problem of securing honest, able, fearless and independent officials."

St. Louis and Kansas City.

This was exemplified in St. Louis, he continued, in a comparison of the record of law enforcement here in the last 10 years with earlier records, "yet there have been no important changes in our laws affecting these matters—simply different personnel." As a more striking comparison, he offered the contrast between law enforcement conditions in St. Louis and Kansas City, both existing under the same system of law.

Many of the remedies suggested at the crime conference, Bartlett asserted, were only palliatives, whereas he thought it necessary to "get political organizations to base their strength on something other than the granting of privileges of immunity from arrest, prosecution and punishment."

Politics and Crime.

Continuing his report of the conference, Bartlett said:

"It was, I believe, the general opinion of the delegates that the basic difficulty in our present crime problem lies in the alliance between politics and crime and the interference of politics with the enforcement of law. It is my belief that our crime problem isn't going to be solved by killing, maiming or imprisoning a few Dillingers, Van Meters, Nelsons and other armed desperadoes, who, for a short and spectacular career, occupy the attention of the country.

"Even in the most orderly state such phenomena are, in my opinion, likely to occur. Nor is the crime problem to be solved by any short-lived, highly publicized drives on crime and criminality. The struggle to make the country an orderly, safe and decent place to live and raise one's children calls for competent, persistent, unremitting, patient and unspectacular effort on the part of our citizens.

"The gravest crime problem, the one most difficult of solution, is the one that exacts such a tremendous toll of wealth and menaces our property, lives and the souls of our people, is not that of the spectacular desperado, but of the organized crime, that year in and year out enjoys the protection of and in turn supports politicians and political organizations."

Bartlett's committee presented to the Bar Association a report proposing numerous reforms in criminal court procedure and criminal law enforcement. It was referred to the Executive Committee.

Proceeding Against Only Once Per Cent of Bar in 2½ Years.

The Committee on Grievances of the Bar Association, reporting on its activities, said there were 2126 lawyers in the city but the committee found it necessary in the last two and one-half years to institute proceedings in the courts in only 21 cases, affecting 1 per cent of the bar. This fact, said the committee, which was headed by Thomas F. McDonald, was "conslusive proof that the overwhelming majority of lawyers at this bar conduct their practice in a manner above criticism and discharge their duties to their clients and to the public with the greatest fidelity."

Since last May, the report added, 332 complaints were made to the committee, but only 34 were deemed important enough for investigation and hearing. In many complaints adjustments between the parties were reached, while only three remained for disposition.

Seven disbarment cases have been filed since last May, when there were four cases pending. Six of these cases have been tried since May, with the result that four lawyers were disbarred and one was suspended for five years and one case remained under submission. There were four cases still pending.

DRIVERS' LICENSE LAW AS PROTECTOR OF LIVES

Auto Club Officials Estimate That It Would Cut Death Rate by 100 a Year.

That a Missouri driver's license law will result in saving 100 lives a year, now being taken in automobile accidents, was the forecast of Matt F. Morse and Gus Vahlkamp, secretary and general attorney, respectively, of the Automobile Club of Missouri, in a joint radio discussion last night of the drivers' license bill now pending in the Legislature at Jefferson City.

"Much depends upon intelligent enforcement of any drivers' license law enacted," Vahlkamp said. "In states having license laws the number of suspensions and revocations shows an unmistakable influence upon the number of auto accidents and deaths. Where there are indications of laxity in using the power to suspend or revoke licenses, the accident trend continues upward."

"The bill pending in the House, introduced jointly by the majority and minority floor leaders, contains all the 'teeth' necessary to make it effective," Morse said.

Morse said that 7057 persons had been killed in Missouri traffic accidents since May 1, 1926, when the Highway Department began keeping records, and 72,195 were injured seriously. Final figures are not yet available, he said, but indications are that in Missouri more than 950 lives were lost in traffic accidents in 1934.

MRS. MALINDA M. FRENCH OBSERVES 103RD BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Malinda Mansfield French, who first saw St. Louis when she and her parents went through the town in a covered wagon 99 years ago, will celebrate her 103rd birthday today.

Four candles will be placed on her birthday cake, a large one for the century and three smaller ones for the three years over 100. There will be a small family gathering, at which her son, E. Tom Smith, with whom she resides at 4407 Forest Park boulevard; two grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren will be present.

Born in Kentucky in 1832, she was 4 years old when her parents, the Rev. Robert C. Mansfield, a Presbyterian minister, and his wife, took their family to Mexico, Mo., where her father and another settler laid out the town. On the journey the family camped on the outskirts of St. Louis.

Mrs. French enjoys good health, although her hearing is impaired. During the last few years she has remained indoors, but she has an excellent appetite and reads newspapers every day, sometimes without glasses.

11,703 DEATHS IN ST. LOUIS LAST YEAR; 10,548 IN 1933

Rate Rises in 1934 to 14 Per 1000 Population From 12.6 in Preceding Year.

The death rate in St. Louis increased last year to 14 per 1000 population, compared to a rate of 12.6 per 1000 population in 1933, it was announced yesterday by the St. Louis Community Council.

There were 11,703 deaths here last year, as compared to 10,548 deaths the preceding year. No specific reason was given for the change.

Infants had less chance of survival at the time of birth last year, in St. Louis, than in 1933, the figures show. Total infant mortality was 56 per 1000 live births, as against 45 in 1933. The death rate of Negro infants greatly increased.

In 86 American cities, the death rate was 11.4 per 1000 population in 1934, as compared to 11.0 for 1933. The infant mortality rate in these cities, for the same period, declined from 55 in 1933 to 54 per 1000 live births.

ROBERT T. EHRHARD FUNERAL

Services Tuesday Morning for Drug Store Proprietor.

Funeral services for Robert T. Ehrhard, drug store proprietor, who died Friday of pneumonia at his home, 4864 Lee avenue, will be held at 9 a. m. Tuesday from St. Englebert's Church, 4336 Shreve avenue. Burial will be in St. Peter's Cemetery at St. Charles.

Mr. Ehrhard, 44 years old, operated drug stores at Eighth and Market streets and at 4518 Lee avenue. He was manager of chain drug stores until October, 1933, when he acquired his own stores. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Agnes Ehrhard; his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Ehrhard; four sons and a daughter. A sister and three brothers also survive.

AGAINST HIGHER SALES TAX

The Wellston Chamber of Commerce has adopted a resolution opposing any increase in the present State sales tax of ½ of 1 per cent. Gov. Park has asked the Legislature to increase the rate to 1 per cent.

Members of the chamber were of the opinion that the present tax, if collected from all required to pay it, would provide adequate revenue.

Judge Bernreuter to Speak.

Louis Bernreuter, circuit judge in the Third Illinois district for 24 years, will speak Tuesday evening at Hotel Auditorium, Eighteenth and Pine streets, on "What's Next." The program is sponsored by the St. Louis division of Technocracy, Inc.

Boys' Harmonica Band Concert.

The Boys' Harmonica Band of the North Side Y. M. C. A. will give its third annual concert at 8 p. m. Friday at the Y. M. C. A. Building, 3100 North Grand boulevard.

Scientific Discoveries of Byrd Expedition

cal party was topping off preparations for a long thrust into the Queen Maud Range on a biological reconnoissance into the unexplored western margin of Marie Byrd Land.

Dr. Bramhall and Morgan were making the plateau party ready for a dash onto the polar plateau, the former with the object of gathering magnetic data in a region where such data are extremely inadequate, the latter to delve into the secrets hidden by glaciation with an apparatus never before tried in the polar regions—a seismic sounding device.

June, in Tractor 1, was already coming home after a splendid thrust to the southwestern angle of the Edsel Ford Range, having made the surprising discovery of a high plateau rising on the coast just east of the Rockefeller Mountains and flowing unbrokenly through King Edward VII, Scott and Marie Byrd Lands.

Demas was grooming two tractors assigned to support the geological and platteau parties, and Capt. Innes Taylor, in charge of trail operations, was everywhere helpful. Pilot William Bowlin and the men of the aviation unit were working with perseverance to make the planes ready for the spring flights.

Land Party Gets Under Way.

The Marie Byrd Land party got under way Nov. 16, the geological parties left in company two days later, and the tractors, following in the wake of the latter units, cleared Little America on Nov. 25. We were free then to launch our aerial enterprises.

Antarctic problems more or less interrelated were immediately accessible to approach by aircraft. The first was the problem of the so-called transcontinental strait. For many years it had been supposed than an ice-clad sea-level trough divided the continent. This theory was postulated upon the identical indentations cut in the face of the continent by the Ross and Weddell seas, and upon other persuasive evidence. Until the existence or nonexistence of this strait was affirmed, no one studying Antarctica could say with certainty whether he had to deal with one continent or two.

The second problem grew more or less out of our operations in 1929. On a flight to the northeast on Dec. 5 of that year we discovered east of the 150th meridian the new land which we named Marie Byrd Land. It is a rugged and mountainous land, heavily glaciated. Behind the western front range we saw innumerable peaks. On the journey in Tractor 1 June and his companions reached Mount Grace McKinley, the southwestern peak in the Edsel Ford range. They confirmed the massing peaks in the northeastern quadrant and found that the plateau rolled to the east.

The Marie Byrd Land problems opened up fascinating possibilities: How far eastward did these mountains trend? Did they form a tectonic link in the Andean fold chain which had been traced to Graham Land across the continent? Did this plateau fold southward to the Queen Maud range, to emerge with the high polar plateau, or did it die out somewhere, say on the northern margin of the transcontinental strait? These problems we hoped to solve by a series of flights calculated to strike at strategic points.

First Flight Nov. 15.

Seizing upon the first break in the weather, we launched the first flight on Nov. 15. The course we flew followed the structure of a scalene triangle. The base rested on Little America and the southwestern tip of Edsel Ford Range. The apex rested in the unknown at Lat. 81.05 S., Long. 146.30 W., approximately half-way between the coast of Marie Byrd Land and the Queen Maud Range.

The course recommended itself for these reasons: It would strike at the heart of the white space holding the fate of the supposed strait and search out half the front through which it might cut; it would determine the trend of the newly discovered plateau; it would indicate whether or not Marie Byrd Land were an archipelago or a distinct epicontinental mass separated from the mainland by ice straits or an integral reach of the continent; and, finally, it would bring the base line of this flight track in coincidence with the limit of vision of that of Dec. 5, 1929.

The flight crew comprised the chief pilot, the co-pilot, Bowlin, Navigator Rawson, Chief Radio Operator Bailey and myself. Leaving Little America we first ran down the southeastern leg of the triangle to the apex. Then we ran northward into the Edsel Ford Range at Long. 146.27 W., Lat. 77.30 S., which put us about 22 miles east and a trifle north of Mount Grace McKinley.

Peaks to Southeast.

Then, rising some 11,000 feet above the Edsel Ford Range, we were struck by the massing of peaks to the northeast. It was as if a giant hand had strewn them there like so many pebbles. They streamed eastward and it seemed possible that these mountains skirted the continental front to form a link in the Andean chain.

Most fascinating of all, at the apex of our triangle, at a point where the belt of crevasses traversing the eighty-first parallel slithered off to form a curiously arrested white whirlpool at what appeared to be the foot of the plateau, we found a definite depression. We sounded the elevation with the plane's altimeter—a trick we later used to excellent advantage—and found it to be only 400 feet, nearly 4000 feet below the highest known elevation of the plateau. From what we had seen there was strong reason to believe that if the transcontinental strait did exist it must lie there.

Because the weather is least favorable in that quarter, at the next fair spell we shifted our attack to the east in order to close our operations in that critical area before the rise of the fogs and clouds of Summer. On Nov. 19 June, Bowlin, Rawson, Pelter and Cameraman Petersen were dispatched on a 390-nautical mile penetration into Marie Byrd Land. The purpose was to feel out within the range of the plane the trend of the mountains behind the western front of the Edsel Ford Range, to map them with the camera in their proper relationships and, if possible, to find the coast. The course lay along the seventy-eighth parallel.

Remnant of Volcano.

Clouds massing ahead forced the crew to turn at Lat. 77.55 S., Long. 133 W., but important results accrued. For the last 165 miles of the flight the mountains of Marie Byrd Land, so densely packed behind the western front range, were found to thin out, withdrawing into a range running to the east at the turning point. The crew had before them a massive, broken block which June thought might be an extinct volcano, a not improbable surmise in view of the fact that the Marie Byrd Land party later came upon the remnant of a volcano cone in the Edsel Ford Range.

The plateau, flat as the plains of Kansas, rolled its white gleaming roof in all directions to the horizon, and a sounding by altimeter, corrected later to true barometric pressure, put its elevation at 4300 feet. The coast was nowhere in sight, but throughout the last stage of the flight the crew marked on their port hand a very decided water sky, and, in view of what we know, it is quite likely that the coast of Marie Byard Land will be found to follow the trend of the mountains which lie between the seventy-sixth and the seventy-seventh parallels.

Longest Flight of All.

On Nov. 19 Blackburn's geological party, penetrating unknown areas 375 nautical miles south-southeast of Little America, flashed us an important hint by radio—the sighting of what appeared to be high land to the east of them. Weather held up flight operations for a while, but on the 22d, June, Smith, Rawson, Pelter and Bailey took off on the longest flight of all, a 960-nautical-mile journey which carried them ultimately to Lat. 83.05 S., Long. 119 W.

This flight resulted in important discoveries. As they turned they saw in the vicinity of Lat. 85 between the 110th and 115th meridians a cluster of ice-ridden peaks, presumably eastern prolongations of the Queen Maud Range, approximately 170 nautical miles east of the latitude of the last known peaks of that range. Commencing just a few miles southwest of the depression we had observed on the flight of the 15th they found a plateau rising and rolling unbrokenly to the feet of these new peaks.

Like every effort directed at the solution of unknown matters, the flight did not so much settle familiar problems as to raise new ones. Was this depression only a bight or bay in the Ross shelf ice on the western margin of the plateau? Would deepest penetration prove that these plateaus were one? At all events the fate of the transcontinental strait now lay in a 60-mile gap between the eighty-first and eighty-second parallels east of the one hundred and forty-seventh meridian, and could be settled one way or the other.

Only One Continent.

On Nov. 23 with June, Bowlin, Rawson and Peterson, I took off in the William Horlick to close the gap. Just a little bit south of the apex of the triangular course of the flight of Nov. 15, where we had found the depression, we headed east, sounding the elevation of the ice by altimeter as we went. When we turned at Long. 140 W., Lat. 81.10 S. we found that the surface under us had risen to 1325 feet. On the return we sounded the northern border of the area and found that the elevation was uniformly 1000 feet or higher.

The results were conclusive. The long-sought strait was non-existent. The plateau of Marie Byrd land rolled unbrokenly from the South Pacific Ocean to the Queen Maud Range. The eastern margin of the Ross shelf ice was at last defined by the coast of that plateau. The structural integrity of Antarctica was verified and a troublesome ghost of doubt was laid. Antarctica is one continent.

Now the trail parties, pressing through cold, fog and blizzards to gain distant objectives, came into their own. Blackburn's party, made up of himself, Russell and Paine, with three dog teams, pushed up the untraveled slope of Thorne Glacier to run a geological cross section of this area of the Queen Maud Range. When they paused they had risen 100 miles up the blue ice of the glacier, and, with 20 miles still to go to the shining dome of the polar plateau, the peaks above them had diminished to mere nunataks. There, 180 miles from the South Pole, in the vestiges of a sedimentary strata, they came upon numerous beds of coal and plant fossils.

Behind the coastal front of Marie Byrd Land, Siple's party, comprising himself, Wade, Corey and Stancliffe and three dog teams, traveled with excellent fortune. A sledging party, they had the unique experience of penetrating on a scientific mission into a land first discovered by aircraft five years before. Siple's biological finds were superb. The peaks of this new land, fully a hundred miles from the coast, bore a flourishing life. The pink and gray granites and the steel gray schist were painted with patches of green moss, white lichens and a spectacular red lichen.

Quartz Vein Found.

Wade, the first geologist on the spot, found evidence which may verify what he had surmised after the flight of Nov. 15—that tectonically the mountains of Marie Byrd Land seem to form a massive link in the Andean fold chain between New Zealand and the Antarctic Archipelago, but that the petrographic dissimilarities make the connection less real than apparent. In a three-inch quartz vein slanting down the face of a mountain in the Donald Woodward group he found a deposit of galena and elsewhere deposits of molybdenite and chalcopyrite from which lead, molybdenum and copper may be extracted.

The party brought back a rich harvest of geological and biological specimens. Siple gathered no less than two dozen different species of lichens and mosses, an excellent haul considering the fact that up to then scarcely a hundred different species had been found in the Antarctic, and most of these on sub-Antarctic islands. He also returned with samples of ice and water teeming with microscopic life.

The plateau party converted a misfortune into an accomplishment. The inability of the tractors to break past the crevasses along the eighty-first parallel in spite of gallant efforts forced Morgan and Dr. Bramhall, whose work was dependent upon instruments too heavy to be transported by dog teams, to throw their lot in with the tractors which were then directed on a long curving course that ultimately carried them into Marie Byrd Land south of the Edsel Ford range and back through Scott land.

In this unexplored area Morgan made a valuable series of seismic soundings which will give us an inkling of the depth of the ice sheet and the character of the underlying land on the same track. Dr. Bramhall, using a dip circle and an askania balance, obtained a valuable record of the distribution of magnetic elements in these regions.

Although the results have only been partly analyzed, certain conclusions are already evident. Bramhall had reported that existing isogonic charts for the south polar regions, based as they are on very meager data, conform in general to the present state of the earth's magnetic field. His observations, however, indicate that a more or less uniform shifting of the lines as much as two or three degrees will be necessary.

Sums Up Results.

Summing up, we can say that the results of the expedition are nearly all that we could rightfully hope for. Thanks to flight operations and the three sledging parties striking at strategic points along the front of Marie Byrd Land, we now have a better conception of the area which, in 1930, we lifted above the horizon. We know something of its geology and biology, of the thickness of the ice capping it, and by means of the mapping camera we shall be able to construct a map of its features.

This newest of American discoveries is a magnificent sweep of territory running from the Pacific Ocean to the South Pole, and encompassing more than 200,000 square miles of territory. Superb mountains lift gleaming peaks through the glacial seas covering it, and a grand plateau marches over all but the tallest peaks.

Our particular interest in this direction is to study the circulation of air over the polar regions and to test the theory of the glacial anticyclone. It is a common mistake to think that polar weather is of concern only to the polar regions. The world's meteorology cannot be divided into airtight compartments. The poles exercise a great influence upon world weather and a knowledge of the conditions prevailing in Antarctica has a vital bearing on long-range forecasting not only for the Southern Hemisphere but for the world.

In the same sort of category is the study of terrestrial magnetism, one of the strongest departments not only on this but on the first expedition. With better apparatus over a longer period of time Dr. Bramhall, assisted by Zuhn, has made a continuous registration of magnetic elements at the base station. Such data are of indispensable importance to a full knowledge of the permanent magnetic field of the earth.

While Morgan was running his series of seismic soundings along the tractor track, Dr. Poulter made a series of soundings in the vicinity of Little America, the preliminary results of which threaten to force science to recast its present conception of the Ross Shelf ice as being largely water-borne.

Cosmic Ray Data.

He found that the ice is supported by an anchor on numerous submarine reefs and peaks. In many places where we had thought there was water these instruments showed land above sea level. Scarcely fifteen miles south of Little America a great hill rising in the barrier snow has been identified as an island, the summit of which is 1000 feet above sea level and capped by 400 feet of ice.

Another excellent merit of the apparatus is that with its data we will be able for the first time to limit the probable volume of Antarctica ice to a seasonable figure.

The cosmic-ray research is another innovation which has had highly creditable results. It was begun aboard the Ruppert by Dr. Poulter, Dr. Bramhall and Mr. Zuhn, carried across the Pacific, extended into new regions during the eastern cruise and made an integral part of the routine program at Little America. Recently, in order to determine whether or not the significant variations in cosmic-ray activity noted at high altitudes and lower latitudes occur at high altitude in high latitudes, we sent the apparatus to an altitude of 12,500 feet in one of the planes.

The data, which have been only partly analyzed, have confirmed Dr. Compton's theory of cosmic rays as consisting in their major part of electrically charged particles of great penetrating power originating in remote space, which rain in a continuous bombardment through the earth's atmosphere. A variation of intensity of cosmic-ray radiation with geomagnetic latitude has been determined. Of equal and perhaps greater interest, the observations at Little America show an unexpectedly high absolute value and a slow increase in intensity which may presage some period variation.

Polar meteorology was likewise given a boost upward. In September, with the temperature still between 50 and 60 degrees below zero, Haines initiated a series of high-altitude aerological soundings, the first of the kind ever undertaken in the South Polar regions. The autogyro was equipped with a barograph for making a continuous registration of temperature, barometric pressure and humidity at different altitudes. Through September until the gyro crashed, McCormick made such flights on every clear day. Now that the major flights are safely past and a stand-by plane is not required for emergency purposes we have been able to resume these flights. The data, Haines believes, are of great value in understanding the general circulation of the air in these latitudes.

Domenico Martinelli of Lucca was among the heads who directed subsequent imperial architecture—Harrack Palace and the Liechtenstein Palaces; Lorenzo Mattielli of Vincenza populated the Gardens of the Schwarzenberg with statues, etc.; the Venetian, Giovanni Giuliani, was the master of Donner, the principal Austrian Baroque sculptor; Father Andrea Pozzo inspired painters of great frescoes on walls and ceilings; Nicola Pacassi finished the Castle of Schoenbrun; Gregorio Guglielmi frescoed the Academy of Science.

A Mediating Force.

In the light of the past, it is clear that the possibility of intensifying the cultural relations between Italy and Austria exists and that the possibility of Austria's becoming the mediating force among the various cultures of Europe also exists.

It is certainly an important fact that Austria has a common language with Germany, but it is none the less important that Austria has a common religion with Italy and begins, as it was one time said, from St. Stephen's Square.

I believe that with the passing of years, with the strengthening of the states, with improvement in economy, all will be convinced that Austria can exist as a second German state in Europe—German, but master of its destiny.

Ohio Has Turned To Sales Tax to Finance Relief

by the State or any of its subdivisions are not taxable.

A matter of some concern is the fact that mail order sales made in the State by firms located in other states are not taxable, being in interstate commerce and outside the power of the State to tax. Some articles which are subject to special excise taxes, such as cigarettes, beer and gasoline, are not subject to the sales tax so long as the special excise taxes are retained.

A farmer who sells the produce of his own farm on his own premises is not subject to the tax, but if he maintains a stand elsewhere or buys produce for resale, or peddles his commodities, his sales are subject to the tax. A casual sale, however, by one not engaged in the business of retailing, is not taxable.

Detailed Records Required.

The law contains strict provisions for checking up on the tax liability of all vendors. Merchants are required to keep accurate records of all their stamp purchases, and may be required by the Tax Commission to retain for certain periods the vendor's part of all stamps canceled for customers. Their books are expected to show every separate sales transaction and the amount of tax thereon.

Naturally, both retailers and the public expect a good deal of confusion in the operation of the law, but Tax Commission officials think it is the best system yet devised.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 19.

WITH all the talk of more musical films this year than ever before your old friend, J. J. Shubert, of Municipal Opera and New York fame, is coming out here to find out what it's all about. If he thinks the time is ripe to make a jump from Broadway and musical comedy to the screens he will transfer the scene of his activities to Flickerville.

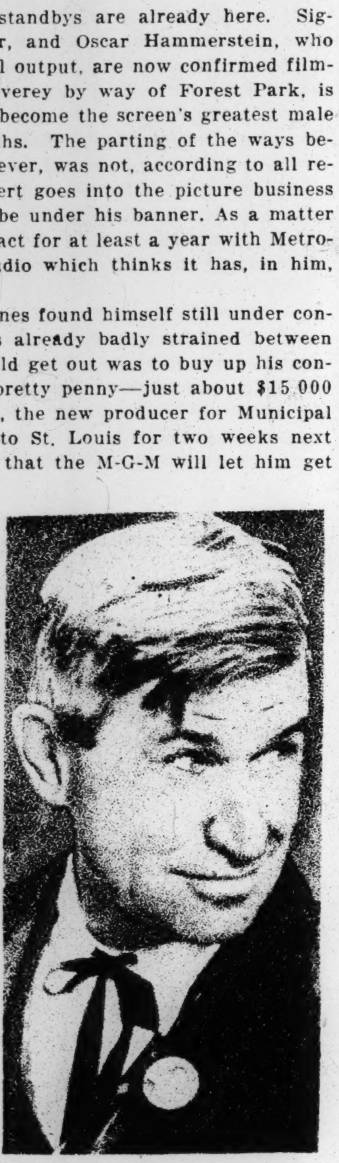
Jake, who has, as you very well know, turned over the keys of the summer opera season in St. Louis to someone else—by request—is pretty well sold on the outdoor musical comedy thing. Right now he is debating between the films and a three-way summer season, something like the St. Louis brand of entertainment, in Cincinnati, Detroit and Kansas City. Maybe he would even consider the Hollywood field.

Shubert arrives here today. His son, Johnny, is already in Hollywood and has lost no time getting into pictures, having made a connection with the production department of one of the major studios. Johnny, just out of college, was looked upon as being the heir-at-law to the Shubert musical comedy business along New York's Main Street. His jump to California and his quick tie-up with the films, followed by the announcement of his father's determination to come West, would indicate that the J. J. end of the Shubert firm was deeply interested in the galloping tintypes.

* * *

A GOOD many of the Shubert standbys are already here. Sigmund Romberg, the composer, and Oscar Hammerstein, who writes the books to his musical output, are now confirmed filmites. Allan Jones, a Shubert discoverey by way of Forest Park, is set, unless our guess is way off, to become the screen's greatest male sensation within the next few months. The parting of the ways between J. J. Shubert and Allan, however, was not, according to all reports entirely pleasant and if Shubert goes into the picture business out here young Mr. Jones will not be under his banner. As a matter of fact Jones is tied up with a contract for at least a year with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and that is the studio which thinks it has, in him, the find of the century.

When the screen offer came Jones found himself still under contract to Shubert with the relations already badly strained between them. The only way the singer could get out was to buy up his contract with J. J. and it cost him a pretty penny—just about $15 000 to be exact. It is said that Schwab, the new producer for Municipal Opera, has asked Jones to return to St. Louis for two weeks next summer but it seems hardly likely that the M-G-M will let him get away for that length of time.



Will Rogers in "The County Chairman," Fox.

Unlike most stars who are rushed out to Hollywood by airplane and then kept sitting around for weeks before being put to work, Jones arrived here one morning and that same afternoon was singing a song to Jean Harlow in the picture "Reckless." He is already set for the lead in a big musical which is ready for production but which is being held back until he finishes his work in the Harlow-Bill Powell affair.

EVERYBODY out here has become song-conscious and vocal cords are being unpacked all over Hollywood. Those with known voices like Jeanette MacDonald, Evelyn Laye, Bing Crosby, Ramon Novarro, John Boles among others, find themselves in greater demand than ever. Even Wallace Beery and Leo Carillo have been heard secretly, more or less, practicing the scales and both of them admit that even though they may not sing well they sure can sing loud.

Joan Crawford is to be one of the surprise singers of the new season. Joan has been taking voice lessons, under cover, for months and in her next picture she will try it out. Louise Fazenda is another one who is going musical, in a small way, with a song in "The Winning Ticket" and Robert Montgomery is sounding his A's for a bit of a tune in "Piccadilly Jim." Jean Harlow, too, is trying her wings, having done pretty well with the song, "Hold Your Man." She will not sing with Allan Jones, however, in "Reckless." Mady Christians, recently imported from Europe by M-G-M is to burst into song in her next film also. It will not be a novelty for her, though, as she sang in several of her foreign pictures just as she did on the stage over there.

THE Metro studio, by the way, is making up another comedy team by combining Una Merkel and Charles Butterworth. They are soon to begin work in "Public Enemy No. 2," which will not be a gangster film except in a laugh-searching way. Butterworth, the frozen-faced comic, is to play a timid little clerk who is mistaken for a notorious outlaw. Miss Merkel will be the girl who gets him out of trouble.

Both Una and Charlie are to be in the first picture in which Allan Jones will have the lead and both will sing, too. The main vocal attractions will, however, be Jones and the very lovely Evelyn Laye.

Noel Coward Into Films.

Noel Coward, English playwright and actor, will be introduced to screen audiences in the next picture to be made by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur at the Eastern Service Studio on Long Island. The picture is tentatively known as "Miracle in Forty-ninth street." In their first production, "Crime Without Passion," Hecht and MacArthur presented Claude Rains, Margo and Whitney Bourne, all newcomers. Their current picture, "Once in a Blue Moon" introduces Jimmy Savo, pantomime comedian.

Little Theater Play, "Best Sellers," Set For Thursday Night

"BEST SELLERS," a French satire on the publishing business, will open at the Little Theater, 812 Union boulevard, Thursday night, as the dramatic group resumes its repertory season.

The first performance has been sold out to the Players' Club. There will be no performance Friday night but beginning Saturday night, the play will be sponsored by the College Club and open to the public. A week's performances, with the exception of next Sunday night, will be given under the College Club sponsorship.

"Best Sellers," which was written by Edouard Bourdet under the title of "Vient de Paraitre" or "Just off the Press," has gone under a variety of names in successive presentations in England and the United States. Dorothy Cheston, friend of Arnold Bennett, who bought the English rights to the play and translated it, called it "The Winner."

Eventually in New York, the piece became "Best Sellers," with Ernest Truex and Peggy Wood in the principal roles. The plot centers around an important literary prize won by a treasury clerk, through a mistake by the jury.

Eugene Wood will appear as the author and Arline Hiken, Maury Tuckerman, Robert Shampaine and Gordon Hall take other important parts. In the cast also are Sol Gross Jr., William Alexander, Richard Pease, Fred Hirsch and Grace Gooding. F. Cowles Strickland, Little Theater director, directed the piece at Stockbridge, Mass., and on Broadway.

Schnabel to Play "Emperor" Concerto With Symphony

ARTUR SCHNABEL, famous piano teacher and pianist, will appear as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the Municipal Auditorium Friday at 2:30 p. m. and Saturday at 8:30 p. m., playing the Beethoven "Emperor" Concerto under the baton of Vladimir Golschmann. The program will also be notable for the first performances of Archangelo Corelli's G Minor Concerto Grosso and the Fifth Symphony of Jean Sibelius.

Schnabel made his first appearance in St. Louis as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra last season, playing the Beethoven Concerto No. 3 in C Minor. It was one of the most brilliant debuts in the orchestra's history, and his success was sensational. No pianist of his time is regarded as a greater authority in the interpretation of Beethoven.

Schnabel's career at the keyboard began when he was but a child, and at the age of 10 he was accepted as a pupil by the great teacher, Leschetizky, with whom he continued to study for five years—all the regular instruction he ever had. In the course of the last 15 years he himself in Vienna has established a position as piano pedagogue comparable only to that held by his great master. Among his pupils have been Henri Deering, Corinne Frederick and Willard MacGregor, all young St. Louis pianists who have achieved distinction in their art.

Much interest attaches to the Corelli Concerto Grosso which Golschmann will present, as it has been revised for modern orchestra by Rhene-Baton, the distinguished French composer. Corelli, one of the early Italian masters of the seventeenth century, laid the foundation of violin playing, while at the same time establishing the basic structure of the orchestra as it has existed from his time to that of the great symphony ensembles of today.

The Fifth Symphony of Jean Sibelius was first performed at Helingsfors in 1914. London did not hear it until after the war and it was first performed in this country in October of that same year by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra. It is extremely nationalistic in its character, but instead of celebrating the Finnish scene as do Sibelius' earlier symphonies, this seems to deal with the epic adventures of some great hero amid that setting.

The complete program is:

Concerto Grosso, No. 8 in G minor. . Corelli
(Revised by Rhene-Baton)
I. Vivace—Grave—Allegro
II. Adagio—Allegro—Adagio
III. Vivace—Allegro
(First St. Louis performance.)
Concerto No. 5 in E Flat, "Emperor," for Piano and Orchestra, Opus. 73—Beethoven
I. Allegro
II. Adagio un poco moto
III. Rondo: Allegro ma non troppo
Intermission.
Symphony No. 5 in E flat major. . Sibelius
I. Tempo Molo moderato
II. Allegro moderato
III. Andente mosso; quasi allegretto
IV. Allegro molto un pochettino largamento

Ted Shawn Dancers At Auditorium Feb. 18

Ted Shawn and his ensemble of men dancers will appear for one performance at the Auditorium Monday evening, Feb. 18, according to arrangements made with Guy Golterman, St. Louis opera producer.

Shawn's organization, composed of nine young men, is incorporated. The members share ownership of a country place in Massachusetts, where summers are spent in rehearsal, and two cars which carry them on tour in the winter. They share in profits of the tours.

Mae West's Newest Capers.

Mae West's new picture, "Now I'm a Lady," promises further surprises. It is now revealed that she will wear trousers in the opening scenes and will sing, at some time, the aria, "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice" from "Samson and "Delilah."

Charles Butterworth in "Student Tour," Ambassador.

Carminati's Full Title.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS :: :: By Colvin McPherson

IN those pictures where he has to carry the entire burden of amusement, where the plot is padded and the audience restless, Will Rogers is not at his best. Several times he has been merely thrown at the public (as in "Too Busy to Work" and "Handy Andy") with grave hazards to his popularity. In contrast, when he has a vehicle which allows moments of relaxation in other characters, Rogers can give that excess of entertainment which makes him America's most popular man at the box office. He is favored, at the Fox, with "The County Chairman," the old George Ade stage success, which goes back to the days of band concerts, school picnics and Theodore Roosevelt for its setting. Will is the political schemer who plays both ends against the middle to elect his young law partner, Kent Taylor, to the office of county prosecutor. The opposing candidate is Berton Churchill, Rogers' undying screen enemy, and Churchill's daughter, Evelyn Venable, the goal of Taylor's affections. Not an unusual set of complications but adequately developed and with quite enough opportunity for Rogers to show that he understands his place in the camera. Afterward, it must be recognized that the mere sight of that black behemoth, Stepin Fechit, taps off laughter, that Evelyn Venable is a more real "Belle of the Nineties" than Mae West and that the era itself is delightful. It certainly is not a bet overlooked if horses can be made to seem frantic at the sight of a horseless carriage, when most nags today would be bored to bits. "The County Chairman" has a second feature with it, a so-so mystery called "Secret of the Chateau," in which crooks go literary and murder people for books.

The First World War.

LAURENCE STALLINGS has done a great service to history teachers, if not to humanity at large, in "The First World War," his vivid and shrewdly-edited account of the late frenzy of the nations. From official archives he has taken priceless views of the period before and during the conflict. Separately, many of them would have no more than passing significance. Fitted together, they convey, as nothing else possibly could, an idea of what the World War was. "The First World War," except for a few moments, is free from obvious horrors. It has not that object. Yet it is keenly interesting and the voice which accompanies it presents an account something like that of an attorney reviewing a crime for a jury. Stallings wrote the comment but it is the rich, insinuating voice of the actor, Pedro de Cordoba, which weaves in the irony and mockery and, with its air of prophecy, makes the war a dramatic thing. Of the Kaiser, often pictured, De Cordoba remarks, "He is said to have a kind heart" or "He stands beside the road (reviewing troops) and is a friend of every man"; of the Emperor Franz Joseph, "He is cheered, for men love war"; of the little Tsarevitch (later to be shot to death), "He is afflicted with an incurable disease but his sufferings will soon end"; of Lenin (then a revolutionary figure), "He will lie buried in Red Square—a god." What effect for peace the picture can have is hard to predict. The entry of America into the war is cheered much as if a cowboy hero were at last heading for the scene of a monstrous villainy. Perhaps even Stallings' whip-lashing with news-reel shots of today falls a little lightly. The second picture on the Missouri bill, with a stage show, is "Crimson Romance," an example of how the idea of war can degenerate in the minds of movie makers.

Biography of a Bachelor Girl.

ANY who have pleasant recollections of Ina Claire in "Biography" will not find the same snap and zest in "Biography of a Bachelor Girl," which is the studio idea of the same thing for Ann Harding. The picture is at Loew's this week, with "The Band Plays On." Changes made in the play are principally in setting and an elaboration required as a result. The camera gets away from Miss Harding's studio to an ocean liner, a publishing office, a lodge in Maine. The ending has been turned to the romantic, but for any who did not see Miss Claire, "Biography of a Bachelor Girl" is not bad. "The Band Plays On" tells the story of four back lot comrades who make football their main interest in life.

* * *

Student Tour.

"STUDENT TOUR," at the Ambassador, is just unfortunate. It moves a college campus aboard an ocean liner and sets out for England, by way of China, India and the Mediterranean, getting off at all ports to look for comedy and finding scarcely enough to mail home to Aunt Minnie. The picture is musical, after a style, and insists that a champion rowing crew has to learn philosophy before it can be eligible to race against Oxford or Cambridge or some of those academies. Even admitting the athletes couldn't pass philosophy, wasn't there geology or something in the commerce school? Bob Murphy's "International Revue," a little rarer than well done, is the accompanying stage show.

* * *

The Church Mouse.

EACH movie actress in her time, no doubt, has played the part of a stenographer who starts out as a tacky party and ends up as Paris-gowned and the boss' wife. Offhand, I think only of Norma Shearer as giving any thrills as such, in a silent called "'His Secretary." Currently it is Laura La Plante who takes her initiation, in "The Church Mouse," at the Shubert. The product, from English studios, has a handful of genuine laughs and, of course, is done with a greater laxity than is ventured in America now. "Grand Old Girl," which the Shubert also is offering, is of so little merit that it might be dismissed in a few words except that, since it aspires to paint a portrait of the best of school teachers and wastes a fine actress in the attempt, it must be judged only as gross carelessness.

"ROMANCE in Manhattan," about an immigrant young man in the country illegally, and "Bordertown," concerning a Mexican boy who gets to be a gambling house proprietor, are held over at the Orpheum.

Lenore Ulric Returns After Seven Years Away

One-Time Belasco Star to Appear in "Pagan Lady" This Week at the American Theater.

GETTING back to St. Louis after a seven-year absence, Lenore Ulric will begin a week's appearance in "Pagan Lady" at the American Theater tonight. The play, by William DuBois, was one in which she appeared in New York in 1930, and which has been her vehicle for several seasons on the road.

In "Pagan Lady," Miss Ulric takes the role of Dot Hunter, a young woman light of heart, careless of morals and glib of tongue. The scene is a resort hotel in Florida in prohibition days and the girl's lover, Dingo Mike, a rum-runner and gangster who uses the hotel as his base of operations.

Two evangelists, unaware of the nature of the hotel, take lodgings there while conducting a religious revival nearby. With Mike away temporarily, Dot becomes infatuated with the younger of the ministers, who likes her in spite of himself. The return of the bootlegger not only provides a vein of humor but provides the principal action.

In the supporting cast are Gerald Kent, Robert Lowes, John F. Morrissey, Richard S. Bishop, Louise Kirtland, Jane Ferrell, Charles Harrison and Walter De Luna. Matinee performances will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

* * *

MISS ULRIC'S last appearance here was in "Lulu Belle," probably the most popular dramatic piece ever presented at the American. Previously the star had played in St. Louis in "Kiki." Her other stage successes were "Tiger Rose," "Mima" and "The Son-Daughter." She has made several motion pictures.

A native of New Ulm, Minn., Miss Ulric had done a good deal of barnstorming and repertory troupes through the Middle West before she tackled Broadway. Almost immediately she was able to get an interview with the late David Belasco and obtained a contract which was not only highly successful for the actress but for the producer as well. For years, Miss Ulric was the mainstay of the Belasco fortune and reputation. When talking pictures came in, she was lured to Hollywood, but returned to the producer's banner in "Mima," one of his last offerings.

FOLLOWING "Pagan Lady," the American will be dark for eight days, but will then enter on a period of extended activity. George M. Cohan in "Ah, Wilderness," will arrive the night of Feb. 4, for a week's engagement, and will be followed by Cornelia Otis Skinner and the Abbey Players.

In "Ah, Wilderness," the author, Eugene O'Neill, shelves the morbid and inhibited Americans who have occupied his attention for years and becomes the protagonist of an ordinary New England family. The story is set in the days when a sin indicated the end of all things. Cohan plays the role of a father who tries to initiate his son into undiscussed phases of life and Elisha Cook Jr., the youth beset by problems of adolescence, ideas inspired by reading Swinburne, Wilde and "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," and an affection for a young woman not in polite society.

Four Years' Work On "Lives of Bengal Lancer" Completed

FOUR years of work to complete a spectacular motion picture based on "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," the Francis Yeats-Brown book, have been completed and the film, which features Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, Richard Cromwell, Sir Guy Standing and Kathleen Burke, is scheduled for release in the next few weeks.

The first preparation for the picture was an expedition to India under the direction of Ernest B. Schoedsack, film explorer. The cameramen returned with intimate scenes of Indian life—the native production of the famous Khyber rifles, never photographed before, scenes of camel trains in the Khyber pass, military formations of the Bengal Lancers, and atmospheric shots of Delhi, Peshawar and tribal camps near the Afghan border.

Two location camps were then built in California, to tie-in production scenes with the genuine background. On a ranch in the Malibu Hills district, a Bengal Lancer cantonment was reproduced. Near the base of Mount Whitney, other scenes were found to match the mountainous part of Northwest India. Horses, pack mules, 50 camels, an elephant, two leopards, several sacred white oxen, monkeys, boars, parrots, Ganges herons and peacocks were rounded up for further reality. The studio even enlisted 40 real Hindus from the California olive country.

Erie Canal Play Bought for Movies

WINFIELD SHEEHAN has closed deal with Max Gordon, by which Fox Films acquires picture rights to the current New York stage hit, "The Farmer Takes a Wife."

"The Farmer Takes a Wife," now playing at the Forty-sixth Street Theater, is a comedy-drama written by Frank B. Elser and Marc Connelly, and based on "Rome Haul," the Walter D. Edmonds novel dealing with life on the Erie Canal. Sheehan has already designated Janet Gaynor for the leading role. Spencer Tracy and Roger Imhof will also play important parts.

LOANS UNDER FHA GUARANTEE BEGUN HERE LAST WEEK

Starting with between 250 and 275 applications for insured mortgage loans the FHA went into full swing last Tuesday. This merely consisted of receiving applications from banks, B. and L. associations and other institutions approved as mortgagees under Title II of the Federal Housing Act. Delay was occasioned by preparation of a mortgage blank conforming with Missouri legal requirements. Subsequent steps toward completion of the loan, as guaranteed by the Federal Government, include appraisal by Federal agents, fee for which is paid by the applicant. This causes delay according to the time required for the appraisal and incidental routine, which at most is only a few days.

Within the first hour after opening of the FHA district office, in the Ambassador Building, five applications for loans were submitted by approved mortgagees. The total for the day, however, was only seven. These were divided between loans for new construction and refunding of existing loans. Each day since Tuesday the inflow of applications has tended to support the advance information of Meredith C. Jones, district director, as to the number of prospective loans almost or quite in readiness for submission. Nearly all of these are in St. Louis and St. Louis County. A fairly large percentage of the applications sought to obtain the maximum, $16,000, and a still greater number applied for from $7500 to $10,000. This suggested that new construction of homes to follow the loans will be of attractive types. In several instances those seeking the maximum sum are known to have building plans for substantially more expensive residences.

Nine applications for loans aggregating $77,000 was the total for the first week, ended yesterday, it was stated at the district director's office. Of the nine applications, seven were submitted Tuesday, the opening day. Slowness of the movement at the outset was no surprise at St. Louis headquarters, who have definite knowledge of nearly 300 mortgages in the hands of approved mortgagees, the great majority of them in St. Louis and St. Louis County institutions. The reason for it, as stated, is that, while the applications for loans have been filed with institutions, the required fee to cover costs, etc., has been held in abeyance until the insurance feature is ready, collection of which takes more or less time. When the papers reach the FHA offices here, appraisals by its agents must be made, requiring from 10 to 15 days, as estimated, and favorable report is equivalent to completion of the transaction.

That action by Congress is needed to correct weakness in the National Housing Act, if that and other steps taken by the Federal Government in the mortgage and housing field are to secure their objectives, especially liquidity of the mortgage, is the belief of Walter Schmidt, chairman of the Committee on Real Estate Finance of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The subject will be discussed at the mid-winter meeting of real estate operators at Houston, Tex., next week.

The National Housing Act, and the regulations adopted for its operation, limit within narrow bonds those who can buy an insured mortgage, Schmidt is quoted as having said. No individual can own one, nor can many funds and corporations who might invest in mortgages. The only persons who can buy insured mortgages are State and Federal inspected institutions. The insured mortgage is thus still frozen investment. A purchaser must be found for it when cash is needed.

The only practicable way to liquefy the mortgage is to create, under Federal auspices, a central discount bank which stands ready at all times to buy sound mortgages, securing the necessary funds therefor by bond issues against mortgages in hand. If the Government guarantees these bonds, only small cash capital would be required. If it is unwilling to do so, then the discount bank could be granted substantial capital, which would bring public acceptance to its own bonds without guarantee. The discount bank should be authorized to buy conservative mortgages on any type of improved urban real estate, but higher percentages of value could be permitted on home mortgages. It would act definitely for reduction of the interest rate, since its bonds would be salable at a low interest yield."

MODERNIZATION PLEDGES NEAR $12,000,000 MARK

Improvements of residential and business buildings at a total cost of $11,961,859 have been pledged by property owners of St. Louis and St. Louis County communities during the better housing campaign, it was announced yesterday at headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce Building.

Completion of work costing $625,773 has been reported. Members of the campaign field force now are making a recheck to determine the amount of work completed, and to learn from property owners when they will undertake improvements in fulfillment of pledges. The field force has canvassed 214,012 buildings in the city and county, and obtained signed pledges from 43,580 property owners agreeing to expend specified amounts for improvement of buildings they own.

Work is continuing on the two houses which have been moved to Municipal Plaza for demonstration purposes in the campaign. When one of the houses has been modernized and furnished as a model home, it will be thrown open to the public. The other, which will be permitted to stand in its present state of dilapidation, to provide a contrast with the improved house, will be equipped with old bathroom fixtures and furniture, and also opened to the public.

Following are the types of improvements pledged and the number of each: Painting, 26,312; carpentry, 17,522; papering, 15,217; roofing and sheet metal, 7516; concrete and cement, 5784; plumbing, 5256; plastering, 5033; alterations, 4547; heating equipment, 4141; flooring, 3730; electrical work, 3332; landscaping, 2280; masonry, 2236; additions, 1957; new construction, 880; air conditioning, 276; power plants, 255; elevators, 130; miscellaneous, 11,630.

His services in the new field will be on a broad scale for which he is well equipped, including purchases of homes and investment properties or other branches of the business, such as loans, insurance, and care and management of apartment buildings or business properties.

FENCE COMPANY LEASES EAST SIDE BRANCH SPACE

The Interlocking Fence Co. of Morton, Ill., will open a branch at 126 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, on Feb. 1, it was announced yesterday through John Ring Jr., director of the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Bureau, who co-operated with the company in making its plans to establish a branch in the St. Louis district.

Occuping 9600 square feet of floor space, the branch will serve Southern Illinois, Missouri and Southern Iowa in the distribution of fencing barb wire, steel posts and other products manufactured by the company. Only three or four persons probably will be employed at first, Ben Hauter, treasurer of the company, informed Ring, but more men likely will be added later.

J. R. Stegman, real estate agent for the National Stock Yards Co., handled the leasing of the space for the branch, which is to be in a building owned by the stock yards company. The lease is for five years.

RESIDENCES, BUNGALOWS AND FLATS RECENTLY SOLD

Sarles to Hilda Smith; 4730 Ashland avenue, seven-room residence, for Ida Bessler to Anna Traub; 4526 St. Louis avenue, four-room cottage, for M. Murray to a client of the Gitt-Steinbaum Realty Co.; 4137 Garfield avenue, four-room home, for Ida Bessler to Anna Traub; 1909-11 Bacon street, four-family flat, for Frank J. Prendeville to a client of Associated Realtors; 4926 Aldine place, four-family flat, for a client of the Glick Realty Co. to John Ostermann and wife; 4609-11 Elmbank avenue, four-family flat, for Ida Bessler to a client of Frank Gilbert, of the Associated Realty Co.; 7015 Tulane avenue, six-six single flat, for Joseph A. Fiengeritt to Anna Zeid.

TWO BUILDINGS LEASED, ONE FOR RELIEF SERVICE

The Federal Transit Bureau, a department of the State and Federal relief undertakings, has leased the seven-story building at Twenty-first and Olive streets from the Hamilton-Brown Shoe Co. as headquarters of the bureau. Necessary improvements are being made, and occupancy will begin Feb. 1. The Andrean Leasing Co. represented the Transit Bureau and the Apex Realty Co. the Hamilton-Brown Co.

The Francis T. O'Grady Foods Specialties has taken a long-term lease on the storeroom at 1007 Locust street in the Kinloch Building. The company has been in business here for several years and is now at 319 North Tenth street. Alterations are being made and the company will take possession Feb. 1. The Andrean Leasing Co. represented the O'Grady firm and Eugene Christy the owner, the Central States Life Insurance Co.

AUTOMOBILE ROW SPACE TAKEN UNDER LONG LEASE

The storeroom at 3120 Locust street was taken under lease for a long term last week by H. J. Chorlin, the transaction taking place through the O'Reilly Real Estate Co. The premises are in the heart of automobile row, the lessee being in that business.

FINANCE COMPANY LEASES NINTH AND OLIVE CORNER

The Personal Finance Co. has leased larger and more attractive quarters in the Frisco building, Ninth and Olive streets. The newly acquired space, on the second floor corner, was until recently occupied by the Drosten Jewelry Co., and the Personal Finance Co. took possession promptly when necessary alterations had been completed. This company, which specializes in small loans, the maximum being $300, has been in business in St. Louis and adjacent area for several years. It also has offices in Wellston and East St. Louis. Ralph S. Stone is manager of the downtown office. The lease was made through the Isaac T. Cook Co.

MEREDITH C. JONES TO BE SPEAKER AT REALTY MEET

Meredith C. Jones, regional director of the Federal Housing Administration for the Eastern District of Missouri, with headquarters in St. Louis, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the brokers' division of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange at noon Tuesday, Jan. 22, at the American Annex Hotel. His subject will be "The Regulations Under Title II of the National Housing Act," which deals with the insurance of mortgages.

ST. LOUIS REALTY MEN DEPART FOR TEXAS MONDAY

Will Be Accompanied to Houston, for National Meet, by Delegation From Three States and Washington.

Chester A. Dougherty, president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange; Cyrus Crane Willmore, a director of the local body and also of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; Joseph W. Hannauer and Charles J. Daly, past presidents of the exchange and former national directors; Delbert S. Wenzlick, H. O. Byrd and Clarence C. Lang, executive secretary of the exchange, will depart Monday evening, Jan. 21, for Houston, Tex., to attend the annual mid-winter business meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, at the Rice Hotel, sessions to be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The St. Louis delegation will be accompanied on the trip from here by realtors from Ohio, Connecticut, Minnesota and Washington, D. C.

Action to be asked of Congress to complete the steps already taken for liquification of the mortgage and stabilization of real estate mortgage credit will be discussed at the Houston meeting, which will be devoted mainly to formulate objectives for the year. These will include: 1, the whole national program for housing advance, looking to filling important gaps in the long-term credit structure, and guiding urban rebuilding, particularly new home building; 2, state tax modernization for real estate relief, in which reports will be received on specific legislation to be sought in at least 35 states; 3, proposed market study, on a scale never before attempted, to guide the business of real estate; 4, professional advancement in these specialized fields: brokerage, property management, appraisal, mortgage finance, land development and home building, industrial property and farm brokerage and management; 5, closer and stronger organization for real estate boards and for real estate.

Repairing the national mortgage structure will be a principal subject before the general sessions on Friday, at which J. Howard Ardrey, deputy administrator of FHA, will discuss the question, to be followed by opportunity for inquiries regarding it.

The program of activity for 1935 will be outlined at the concluding general sessions, Friday afternoon, by Walter S. Schmidt, president-elect.

Important proposals for professional advancement in various fields of the real estate business will come before the specialized institutes and divisions of the association, in simultaneous meetings Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning.

Formal installation of President-elect Schmidt, other officers of the association, and of heads of its institutes and divisions, will take place at a banquet Friday evening.

The annual international realtor golf tournament will be held on the links of the River Oaks Country Club on Saturday, Jan. 26.

Delegates will leave Houston Saturday evening for an all-expense trip to Mexico City. The party, who will be officially welcomed in Mexico City Jan. 29, will make an eight-day exploration of the capital's ancient and picturesque environs, returning to San Antonio Feb. 7.

LONG HITCH ENDS IN RENEWAL OF LEASE TO HUETTE

Foreign Owner of Sixth St. Store Finally Reaches View That Enables Tenant for 20 Years to Remain.

With a record of 20 years in the store at 420 North Sixth street, the W. B. Huette Shoe Co. last week renewed its lease for a further occupancy of several years. The lease was negotiated by Arthur S. Martin & Son, who represented both parties in interest. The company will decorate and otherwise modernize the store, making it attractive to the highest degree for its retailing of popular priced men's and women's shoes.

Closing of the lease transaction brought an end to uncertainty on the part of the Huette Company, arising from lack of full understanding of certain conditions by the foreign owners of the property. This made it slow and difficult to bring the two interests into agreement, but Arthur S. Martin, head of the realty company, handled the matter with patience and skill, succeeding as stated.

The Huette Company also has a store at 718 Olive street, which it leased about a year ago from the John R. Thompson Co.

WASHINGTON AVE. LEASE CLOSED FOR NEW BUSINESS

George Bradshaw, formerly with Bradshaw-Spilker-Dorfmont, has severed his connection with that firm and leased, through the Mullen-Walters Realty Co., Inc., the store and basement in the eight-story building at 1206 Washington avenue, owned by the Tober Realty Co. and which has been remodeled and new modernistic fronts installed. It is planned by the lessee to redecorate the premises throughout, including terrazzo floors, and to install a steel stairway from first floor to basement. The business is a ladies' ready-to-wear apparel. The Mullen-Walters company represented the lessee.

Harry Rickenschl, doing business as the Delmar Fixture Co., has leased the two-story building at 807-9 North Eighth street, to be used in the business of office and store fixtures. The premises gives the company double the space formerly occupied. All parties in this transaction were represented by the Mullin-Walters company.

ATTRACTIVE HOME NEARS COMPLETION IN CLAYTON

Another attractive residence is nearing completion in the Claverach Park subdivision, at 45 Hillvale drive, Clayton, it was stated by the John C. Greulich Realty & Investment Co., who arranged the financing of it. Construction is by the Charles H. Schroeder Bldg. & Construction Co. Walter Dennis, owner of the residence, is president of a furniture company in Alton. The residence has eight rooms, reception hall, sleeping porch, dining porch and three baths. All of the first floor rooms have rough finish walls and terrazzo floors, while the second floor, having a master bedroom, two other bedrooms and maid's room, will have panelled walls and hardwood floors. The house is being equipped with a modern air-conditioning plant for heating. The basement will contain a large rathskeller, and there is a garage in the rear.

THREE NEW REAL ESTATE COURSES AT WASHINGTON U.

M. J. Slonim and Prof. C. E. Cullen to Direct Studies Set for New Semester.

Courses in real estate appraisal, real estate title and conveyancing and real estate fundamentals and land economics, beginning with the new semester at Washington University are designed to appeal to realtors, sales and office forces and to property owners. Registration is from Jan. 21 to Feb. 2, inclusive.

The course in real estate appraisal will consist of 15 lectures, commencing Tuesday evening, Feb. 5, being conducted by M. J. Slonim, who has been teaching real estate fundamentals and land economics for seven years. He was educated at the University of Pennsylvania, New York University and Sorbonne University, Paris. Students may, under supervision of the instructor, prepare actual appraisals of properties for discussion in class.

Slonim will also conduct the course on real estate fundamentals and land economics, which opens Wednesday evening, Feb. 6. Real estate financing and marketing, also city planning, condemnation, taxation and similar subjects will be taught in this course.

Prof. Charles E. Cullen of the faculty of Washington Law School, recognized as an authority on real estate law, will tutor the class on real estate title and conveyancing, which will consist of 15 lectures and begin Thursday evening, Feb. 7. He will cover methods of acquiring the various interests in land analyzed in the preceding semester.

FIVE LEASES OF BUSINESS QUARTERS REPORTED CLOSED

Arthur H. Fuldner, manager of the commercial leasing department of Oreon E. & R. G. Scott, announces having closed the following leases last week:

William H. & Nelson Cunliff Co., general contractors, 3327 Lindell boulevard, new quarters across the street, at 3320 Lindell. The space, containing approximately 2000 square feet, will be remodeled.

John G. Phiambolis, advertising publicity agent, new quarters in the State National Life Building, 4 North Eighth street.

Federated Agencies, Inc., general insurance and real estate, in the State National Life Building, larger quarters in the same building.

Kirsch Co. of Sturgis, Mich., manufacturers of builders' hardware and a line of curtain and drapery rods, quarters in St. Louis at 2125 Pine street. This office, which will be opened at once, will be in charge of C. W. Deter.

REPORTS RECENT SALES OF TEN REALTY UNITS

The Wenzlick Sales and Management Organization, Inc., announces the following sales:

AUTHORITY EXPLAINS FHA ACT TO REALTY SALESMEN

A meeting of the Real Estate Salesmen's Association of St. Louis, presided over by President Samuel L. Wimer, was held Friday at the American Annex. It was addressed by Jos. M. Hobbs, chief underwriter of the Federal Housing Administration. After briefly explaining the four articles of the Act he told how the Federal Housing Act would operate not only to the benefit of business in general, but also to their individual interest.

There were about 40 members present.

MAPLEWOOD AND NORTH SIDE BUSINESS PROPERTIES LEASED

The Edward Glik Co. reports having leased the storeroom, 7161 Manchester avenue, Maplewood, to the Barlow Trim Shop, dealers in awnings, tents and similar products.

The Glik Co. also leased the southwest corner of Hamilton and Easton avenues to O. V. Jones for the sale of used cars. Thomas F. Stephens of the First National Co. represented the lessor.

REPORTS GAIN IN FAVOR OF REALTY AS LOANS BASIS

For the first time in 27 years, money for loans on real estate at 4½ per cent is available in substantial volume in St. Louis, according to John Franciscus of Franciscus & Maginn. In the same connection, it was stated last week by other real estate interests handling loans on real property that bankers have recently been regarding with favor loans upon that security.

Trustees for Steel Range Co.

Federal Judge Wham has appointed trustees for the Eureka Steel Range Co. of O'Fallon, Ill., which recently filed a petition to reorganize under provisions of the Corporation Bankruptcy Act. Trustees are Nic Gansmann of Belleville and Walter L. Vocke, St. Louis.

IN MEMORIAM

BERGHOLTZ, EDWARD—In loving memory of our dear brother, who died one year ago, Jan. 18, 1934. Sadly missed by BROTHER & SISTER.

BODE, BERTHA W.—In memory of my dear wife and our mother, who died Jan. 14, 1934. Sadly missed by BODE FAMILY.

BOEHLOW, ROBERT—In remembrance. Sadly missed by WIFE AND CHILDREN.

BROWN, DUTE — In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, who departed this life on Jan. 18, 1932.
Though God hath chosen to call him
And his life's work is done,
Yet never can death take from us
The memory of this one.
And sure as the twilight shadows
Bring forth the evening star,
We'll meet this loved one once again
When we have crossed the bar.
May the Lord watch between me and thee
While we are absent one from another.
Lovingly, RUBY J. BROWN AND DAUGHTERS.

CHESNIK, OFFICER JOSEPH—In fond memory of my dear husband who departed from me Jan. 22, 1933.
Sweet to remember him who once was here
And who though absent is just as dear.
WIFE ELIZABETH.

COURTNEY, JOHN J.—Died Jan. 20th, 1934.

COURTNEY, JAMES P.—Died Oct. 17th, 1931. Their memory is as dear today as in the hour they passed away. Mass at 7:45, Jan. 23rd at Sacred Heart Church. Sadly missed by PARENTS, SISTERS AND ALL WHO LOVED THEM.

DINAN, THOMAS B.—In memory, died Jan. 30, 1931. Rest in peace.
HIS SISTER, HELEN AYRES.

HEMENWAY, MRS. A. C.—In memory of our dear mother, who passed away Jan. 23, 1932.
Surrounded by friends I am lonesome;
In the midst of joy I am blue;
A smile on my face I've a heartache,
Longing, dear mother for you.
Sadly missed by HER DAUGHTERS LOIS AND BEULAH.

HUETTEL, BARBARA—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life Jan. 18, 1931.
Dear mother, can it be true
Four years have passed since God called you?
The call was short, the shock severe
To part with one we loved so dear.
Sadly missed by her DAUGHTERS.

The flowers we place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for you, who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, FATHER, SISTER AND ALL THOSE WHO LOVED HER.

JENNINGS, MARY—In loving memory of our dear mother, who departed this life Jan. 22, 1931. Sadly missed by daughter, son-in-law and grandson.
BARDETT FAMILY.

KEAREY, GEORGE Y.—Who passed away Jan. 18, 1933. In loving memory.
A light has from our household gone,
A voice we love is stilled;
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND FAMILY.

KAEMMERER, EVELYN—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, died Jan. 20, 1934. Sadly missed by FAMILY and all who loved her.

LA CHANCE, ADOLPH—In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away Jan. 19, 1932.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN AND FRIENDS.

MADDOCK, LOUISE GLEASON—
Two years have passed since that sad day
The one we loved was called away;
God took her, it was His will
But in our hearts she is with us still.
DAUGHTER AND SONS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

MAHER, WILLIAM M.—In loving memory of our dear son and brother who passed away Jan. 15, 1934.
Oh dear William, how I miss you
None but your mother's heart could tell;
How my poor heart did ache
When you went to Heaven to dwell.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, SISTERS, BROTHERS, FRIENDS and MARYLAND HOTEL BELLMEN and EMPLOYES.

SALTLER, HENRY W.—In loving remembrance of my dear husband, who departed this life Jan. 20, 1934. Deep in our hearts you are remembered. Oh, how we miss you. Happy memories cling around your name. Every day we think of you.
Sadly missed by WIFE AND SISTER.

SCHOTT, MARIE — In memory of our mother, Mrs. Marie Schott, who died Jan. 11, 1935.
A shadow fell upon our lives when Death, the Reaper, came
And took our mother dear away from earthly care and pain.
But when the mist has passed away
We'll meet dear mother some sweet day,
And may God help us all in time
To awaken in a brighter clime.
THE FAMILY.

SCHROEDER, EMELIE—In loving memory, departed this life Jan. 20, 1934:
Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear.
Fond memories linger every day;
Remembrance keeps her near.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, HUSBAND AND DAUGHTER.

PERMANENT POSITIONS NEW, COMPLETE LINE

Recent promotions and additional new lines have made openings which we will fill with intelligent, sincere, neat-appearing men over 25.

Several serious-minded men, able to supply character references, can establish themselves in a permanent, profitable, dignified business so broad and complete that it is not affected by seasonal changes. Protected customer contact, not one-call sales, built our business. Liberal basis of compensation ranging from $150 per month up, depending on the man, his sincerity and his desire and ability to follow a definite successful program. No investment now or later.

EVERY EXECUTIVE AND KEY MAN IN OUR ORGANIZATION HAS BEEN SELECTED FROM IT.

A car and sales experience desirable, but not essential, as we prefer to give the men selected the same intensive merchandising training on our complete line, which has made our St. Louis organization the national leader.

SALESMEN WANTED

ARE YOU STILL LOOKING

For that position that means money and promotion? Now that you have failed to find it with others, come in and learn the opportunities and working conditions never before offered salesmen in our sale of Westinghouse Refrigerators, Electrical Appliances, in St. Louis, St. Louis County and East St. Louis.

Never before has a direct factory distributor offered their salesmen such opportunities to make money or such quick promotion. Building an organization means promotion. See Mr. Whiteman, Monday 10 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Arthur R. Lindberg Co.
222 N. Grand at Lindell

MEN—STEADY WORK

We will hire six men at once who live in St. Louis, train them thoroughly at our factory branch at our expense, and employ them immediately in permanent positions, full time.

Married men preferred, as these positions are responsible and we require no investment or deposit—but you must be reputable and able to learn this work as taught. This is steady, profitable sales work, but our method of putting the prospect into the market for our invention is so unusual that you must be trained in it. While learning, new men must be satisfied on earnings of $35.00 to $45.00 per week, but later can increase this substantially. Previous experience not important because our method is so unusual, but applicants must be willing to work hard and study to qualify for the higher incomes.

Apply Monday, between 9:15 and 1:15, at 512 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th & Olive Sts.

Alabama

FARMERS in Baldwin County, Alabama, are fortunately located; desirable climate, productive soils, good home conditions, abundant rainfall, several thousand carloads of early produce are shipped to northern markets annually, growers receiving cash at shipping points. The early crops are followed by second crops on the same land. Baldwin County is a proved, good, prosperous general farming, livestock, poultry and trucking region; about 80 per cent of the farmers on lower Baldwin are from the North. Good land still available at reasonable prices. For illustrated literature, write E. J. Hoddy, General Development Agent, Dept. B-94, Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., Louisville, Ky.

California

IN CALIFORNIA SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

PEERLESS FIXTURE CO., 1900 Locust.

DID you see the alterations at Friton Jewelry, 121 N. 7th? I got that job because I was lowest bidder, but still I gave him a first-class job; he is more than satisfied; ask him.

At Grand-Arsenal I have just completed jobs for Gertrude Koch and Lillian Pearce—those stores wouldn't look out of place on New York's Fifth avenue. Are they satisfied? Just ask them.

I know my business; can do high-grade, modern work at low prices. Ask any of the hundreds of people for whom I've opened stores; my 35 years' experience in this business saves you money. W. D. Ellinger, store outfitter, 1617 Washington. GArfield 4216.

Horses and Mules.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Jan. 19.—A large number of buyers and an active demand imparted vigor to the horse and mule market the past week. Receipts were of fairly good volume at better than 1000 head on commission, but the offering was easily absorbed at generally strong rates.

Cotton mules retained recent advances and some of the other grades of mules firmed slightly. Big, cheap material sold well, as did also young stock, 14.3 up.

Horses experienced the strongest trade since spring. Good buyers appeared in Southern grades, farm mares and fillies, while quotations for Eastern horses firmed.

*NATIVE HORSE QUOTATIONS.

Good to choice draft $120@150; medium to good draft $90@110; good to choice chunks $95@125; smooth-mouthed chunks $70@90; young farm mares $90@115; southern mares $50@85; small cheap horses $30@50.

*MULE QUOTATIONS.

Farm mules, 15.2 to 16 hands, $110@140; colt mules, good size and bone, $80@125; colt mules, small, $50@75; draft mules $125@150; mine mules, 15.3 to 16 hands, $120@140; mine mules, 14 to 15 hands, $75@100; choice cotton mules, 15.1 to 16 hands, $135@160; choice cotton mules, 14.2 to 15 hands, $110@125; small green mules, over 3 years old, $45@70.

*Quotations are for average animals and do not cover those of outstanding quality or the very cheapest grade.

BUTTER PRICE HIGHEST IN NEARLY FOUR YEARS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—Butter prices in Chicago today ran up to the highest level in nearly four years. January storage butter touched 31⅝ cents, an overnight gain of almost a cent a pound.

Active buying of butter was based largely on the fact that the total movement of butter out of this country's four principal storage centers exceeded last year by 155,000 pounds. Holdings in those cities are about 25 per cent of a year ago total, a circumstance attributed in the main to effects of widespread drouth and consequent dearth of feedstuffs and forage.

VEGETABLE MARKET

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE Market, Jan. 19.—The following report on prices paid here today to produce dealers by purchasers of round lots of vegetables was made by the "St. Louis Daily Market Reporter":

POTATOES—Trading was light and the market easy, though price ranges were generally unchanged. New potatoes moved slowly.

POTATOES — 100-lb. sacks Idaho russets, $1.50@1.60; Maine carmen $1.45@1.50. Wisconsin rurals 95c@$1.10, cobblers $1.20, Colorado russets $1.55, McClures $2.25, Washington russets $1.50@1.55, Michigan rurals 90c@$1, Nebraska triumphs $1.90@2, Wyoming triumphs $1.90@2, Michigan rurals 95c@$1, Idaho russets in 15-lb. sacks 28c each.

NEW POTATOES—Texas triumphs 50-lb. sacks $1.35@1.40, bu crates $1.75@1.85, Oklahoma 50-lb. sacks $1.25@1.35.

ARTICHOKES—California boxes, $3; ½ boxes, $1.50@1.75.

BEANS—Mexican hampers round stringless, $5@5.50; bountiful, $4.50; Florida hampers round stringless, $5@5.50.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Raw sugar was unchanged today. Although no sales were confirmed, it was revealed that late yesterday a local refiner bought 34,200 bags of Puerto Rican for February arrival at 2.80, and an outport refiner 30,000 bags of Cuban for March shipment at 2.79. The former represented an advance of 3 points, and there appeared to be nothing availiable today below that level, while some holders were asking slightly higher.

Price changes in futures were narrow and after opening from 1 point higher to 1 point lower, prices eased slightly under increased liquidation and selling by producing interests. The market closed unchanged to 2 points lower in the old contract and unchanged to 1 lower in the new. Sales were 10,600 tons in each contract, including considerable exchanging between months. In the No. 1 contract March sold off from 1.88 to 1.87, May from 1.93 to 1.92 and July from 1.97 to 1.96, with final prices at the lower levels.

Refined was quiet and unchanged at 4.30 for fine granulated.

JURIES CONVICT FIVE, VOTE NO ACQUITTALS

Three 10-Year Sentences for Robbery—Bartender Found Guilty of Attempted Extortion

Five men were tried in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court last week and all were convicted.

Frank Kennedy, two-time ex-convict and one of three men charged with the murders of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Abeln, in front of one of their tobacco shops on South Broadway in December, 1933, was given a life sentence in the penitentiary. An indictment for the killing of Mrs. Abeln still remains untried on the court docket.

Three charged with robbery under the Henry law were given minimum punishment of 10 years in the penitentiary. They are Arthur Taylor, 29-year-old Negro, found guilty of holding up the grocery store of Frank Yawitz, 2739 Clark avenue, Dec. 15, 1933, when $43 was taken; Roy Riley, 27, 3615 St. Louis avenue, who held up Sam Handelman in his Grand boulevard mercantile establishment last May 7, taking $105, and Tony T. Czerwinski, 25, who held up a filling station attendant Sept. 17 last, taking $18.

Lester Baker, 28, a North Side bartender, was found guilty of attempted extortion, and was given maximum punishment of two and one-half years in the penitentiary.

Other defendants who entered pleas of guilty, received the following sentence: John Bridges, burglary, 2 years; Mary Eleby, manslaughter, 5 years; George Douglas, Louis Rodenhauser, Alvin Griffith, burglary, 2 years; Ira Germany, manslaughter, one year; Lawrence Manuel, larceny from dwelling, one year; Willie Butler, operating automobile without owners' consent, 30 days; Garvester Bracken, larceny of automobile, 60 days; Charles Johnson, Wilbert White, larceny of automobile, 30 days; Lawrence Byrd, assault to kill, six months; Earl Barton, driving automobile without owners' consent, 60 days, paroled; William Davis, Otto Webb, driving automobile without owners' consent, 30 days, paroled; Edmond Botts Jr., Alvin Reinert, larceny of automobile, six months; Woodrow Mallott, Virgil Spires, Lloyd Sweet, malicious trespass, six months, paroled; Sherman Lunnie, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days; Jackson Taylor, manslaughter, 16 months; William Gibbons, larceny from dwelling, six months; Bessie Tard, manslaughter, one year; John Creamer, Steve Palazzolo, malicious trespass and Stanley Borlog, setting up gaming device, $50 fine.

J. D. ROCKEFELLER JR. OWNS $200,000,000 IN OIL STOCK

Reports Holdings in Three Companies to Securities Commission; Other Magnates List Shares.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Speculation on the corporation holdings of the wealthy men of the country is being answered in part by the new Securities and Stock Exchange Commission.

The Commission disclosed today that John D. Rockefeller Jr., owns more than $200,000,000 in stock in three oil companies.

Under the Securities-Exchange Act, directors and large stock holders of corporations, must report to the commission how much they have invested in them. They do not have to disclose other holdings, however.

In his report today, Rockefeller said he recently disposed of $48,254,540 in the shares of Standard Oil of California, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Socony Vacuum Corporation. S. S. Kresge, chain store magnate, has about $26,000,000 in shares of the Kresge Co., he reported. C. F. Kettering, General Motors Corporation director, and inventor of many of that company's devices, listed his holdings at $16,000,000.

Holdings of the munitions making Du Ponts of Delaware total $24,000,000 in General Motors Corporation, and in E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and Co. This does not include Irenee Du Pont, whose stock has not been reported.

W. R. Timken of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., has shares valued at $10,000,000 in his company. Charles S. Cannon owns $6,866,000 in the Cannon Mills Co.

Seymour H. Knox, a director of F. W. Woolworth, holds a total of nearly $5,000,000 of Woolworth common. Richard T. Crane Jr., has about $9,000,000 of Crane Company stock.

POLICE ASKED TO SEARCH FOR FAKE DOG CATCHERS

Three Men in Truck Like City's Have Been Picking Up Valuable Pets.

Police have been asked to look for three men, who for three weeks have been posing as city dog catchers, using a screened truck similar to those of the city in carrying off valuable dogs they pick up from the streets.

J. C. Josse, superintendent of the City Pound, told police that in the last three weeks owners of dogs have come to the pound to claim their pets, which the owners insisted had been taken by the city dog catchers. Josse notified the police after the missing animals were not found at the pound and the employes said they had not captured them.

One of the missing dogs was the property of Frank Klotzer, 6103 Lotus avenue, who told Josse that neighbors had informed him that his dog had been carried off last Thursday in a screened truck by three men, assumed to have been city employes.

HOLTCAMP COURT TURNED OVER $729,000 TO SCHOOLS

Former Probate Judge Kept Record of Surplus Funds During 28 Years in Office.

During the 28-year tenure of Charles W. Holtcamp as Judge of the Probate Court a total of $729,532 was turned over by the court to the Board of Education, as shown in records kept by him.

It is provided that all surplus probate funds less 10 per cent, to which the judge of the court is personally entitled as fees in addition to regular compensation of $8000 a year, are to be added to the public school funds of the city. The balance of fees collected are used for maintenance of the court in payment of clerk hire, other salaries and expenses.

The largest net excess was $80,443, in 1929. This included $56,274 accruing from the 2½ per cent of State inheritance taxes collected here and which are added to the general revenues of the Probate Court in payment for assessing inheritance taxes against estates. That year the inheritance taxes surpassed the amount collected in other years due to a large tax paid by the estate of the late Paul Brown, capitalist.

Other lucrative years for the Probate Court were in 1928, when the net excess was $64,280; $55,495 for 1930, $48,224 in 1931, $45,680 in 1926 and $34,695 in 1927. The surplus last year was $36,654.

Judge Holtcamp retired from the bench Jan. 1, being succeeded by Judge Glendy B. Arnold. He had served seven terms of four years each and in that time his extra compensation accruing from the 10 per cent of gross surplus was approximately $75,000, according to reports filed.

NORTH DAKOTA GOVERNOR, IMPEACHED, KEEPS OFFICE

Advised by Attorney-General House Action Is Incomplete; Contemplates Legal Action.

By the Associated Press.

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 19.—Gov. Thomas H. Moodie refuses to give up office although the North Dakota House adopted a resolution to impeach him. It is alleged Moodie has not lived in North Dakota for five consecutive years as the law requires in the case of one chosen Governor. Moodie ordered the withdrawal of two National Guardsmen who had been put on duty to prevent any forcible attempt to oust him. He said he was contemplating legal action.

Opinions differed whether Moodie's suspension—provided in the case of impeached officers until their cases are decided by the Senate—would take effect immediately. Attorney-General P. O. Sathre, affiliated with the Non-Partisan League group, which sponsored the impeachment, advised the Governor that yesterday's action by the House was incomplete because a board of managers was not appointed.

A board of five managers to conduct the impeachment trial was chosen today with Representative Math Dahl as chairman. Dahl introduced the impeachment resolution. The board is expected to begin its work immediately so that the articles may be presented to the bar of the Senate by Monday to pave the way for immediate suspension of Moodie pending trial.

Moodie's supporters contend, however, another vote, on the articles of impeachment, must be taken in the House before the Governor can be suspended, while Non-Partisan League leaders insist the presentation of the articles to the Senate will complete the action incident to suspension.

STOCKHOLDERS SEEK TO OUST HEAD OF MONTE CARLO CASINO

They Assert Rene Leon Has Been Extravagant, and Point to Asserted Deficit.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—The discontent stockholders felt with the proceeds of their investments has started a battle over the management of Monte Carlo's biggest corporation, which operates the gambling Casino.

The Societe des Bains de Mer de Monaco (Monaca Sea Baths Co.) is the name of the corporation, but it has nothing to do with sea bathing. Its principal activity is roulette in addition to the operation of hotels, dance resorts and other Monte Carlo amusement centers.

A group of stockholders, disgruntled over the slump in their dividends, will attempt to remove Rene Leon, managing director, at the stockholders' meeting next April. They charge the corporation now has an operating deficit of 5,000,000 francs ($330,000), that extravagant improvements have been made on many of its properties; that nearly $3,000,000 worth of unproductive property has been maintained, and that the management has "blundered" by failing to protect Monte Carlo's long standing roulette monopoly against the establishment of competing gambling enterprises at nearby French resorts. Leon has taken exception to the charges and insists the company's assets exceeded its liabilities by $660,000 following distribution of about $500,000 in dividends last April.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Son Breaks in Door of Los Angeles Home; Wound in Back of Head.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—The body of Mrs. J. W. Norwood, 58 years old, was fonud in her home here late today by her son, Frederick W. Norwood. Norwood, registrar at a hospital, said he forced in a door. A bullet had been fired through the back of the head.

Norwood said his mother, widow of a minister, lived quietly and was not in the habit of keeping large sums of money in the place. He knew of no enemies.

HISTORY OF SCOUTING PAGEANT AT CIRCUS

The history of scouting in America, beginning in 1910 and continuing into the future, will be depicted as one of the 15 events of the Silver Jubilee Scout Circus to be held in the Arena Feb. 8 and 9.

The historical pageant event will consist of 11 scenes, the first showing William D. Boyce of Chicago learning of the scout movement in England, through a good turn done him by a London boy.

Succeeding scenes will relate publication of the scout handbook; introduction of sea scouting; beginning of the merit badge program in 1913; patriotic services, such as selling Liberty Bonds and working in produce gardens during the war; the adoption of the program of patriotic pilgrimages as part of the program in 1923, with scouts shown visiting graves of Theodore Roosevelt, George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and the Unknown Soldier; training men for leadership, 1925; scout service following the tornado here in 1927; introduction of cubbing in 1929; fourth world jamboree, 1933; and the 10-year scouting program, 1932 to 1942.

The Tornado Scene.

In the tornado scene lights will be extinguished and synthetic thunder will be heard while a set representing wrecked buildings is being prepared. Then scouts will be seen helping take injured from the ruins, carrying messages, and helping at relief stations.

In the event illustrating first aid, the young performers will risk life and limb in burning houses, auto collisions, and other mishaps to provide for their companions who will demonstrate rescues and first aid treatment.

The finale of the circus, "Pioneer Days," will combine the best features of a wild West show and a village construction exhibition, giving a Boy Scout version of the dawn of civilization in the West. First will be shown scouts costumed as Indians, enjoying their ceremonial dances. They will disperse as a covered wagon train approaches, but return later to scalp the hardy pioneers, who have made camp and gone to sleep.

In the nick of time, however, a band of rope-twirling, whip-cracking cowboys will appear and put the redskins to rout, causing a number of them to bite the dust. Members of the caravan, supplemented by several hundred other scouts, will then erect a stockade with block houses and observation towers at the corners, and various types of scout camp shelters within.

The annual banquet and election of officers of the St. Louis Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be held at the Stix, Baer & Fuller dining room the evening of Jan. 28.

Bags were distributed by scouts yesterday for the collection of old clothes to be made next Saturday by the Goodwill Industries in a community good turn being performed by scouts in connection with their Silver Jubilee celebration. Old paper, bedding and furniture will also be collected.

Kirkwood scouts, who are providing timber for the stockade to be built in the Arena during the Scout Circus, last week brought in material they had obtained from a farm near Chesterfield. There they cut down more than 600 willow trees, regarded as a nuisance by farmers, and took advantage of the outing to pass outdoors tests.

Troop Notes.

The reunion of former members of Troop 2, the oldest troop in St. Louis, has been postponed from Feb. 10 to Feb. 17 to avoid conflict with the scout circus. Attempts are being made to reach all former members of the troop to invite them to the reunion, which will be at a regular service at Pilgrim Congregational Church, Union boulevard and Kensington avenue.

The Lion's Club of Clayton has taken over sponsorship of the sea Scout Ship "Polaris," of which First Congregational Church was previously sponsor.

The Polish Catholic Union, Our Lady Queen of Poland, No. 766, is sponsoring Troop 24, which has just been organized and which will meet at St. Mary's Church.

Scout commissioners of Central District and their wives were entertained by the District Administration Committee at the Pythian Building, Wednesday evening. A farewell present was given to Ernest Robson, a field commissioner, who is leaving the city.

Webster Groves 7 has started publication of a scout paper devoted to the interests of the troop. William Parks Jr. is editor.

Cheney Award for 1934 Omitted.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The War Department announced today no "Cheney award for 1934" would be made to officers or men of the Army Air Corps. The Cheney award has been given each year for an outstanding act of valor, fortitude or self-sacrifice in connection with aircraft and carries with it an emolument of $5000. Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, Chief of Air Corps, said "The Board of Awards was of the opinion that it should not be cheapened by being awarded for any but a most highly meritorious act."

TULSA, Ok., Jan. 19. — Tulsa and St. Louis, leaders and runners up in the American Hockey Association, fought a fierce overtime battle to a 3-3 tie on the local ice tonight.

There were 14 penalties called in the 80 minutes of play, bringing furious four and five-man rushes by both teams, sparkling defense work behind the Blue line and stops from keyed up goal tenders that looked impossible to make.

The crowd numbered 4861 fans.

BAER REITERATES HIS REFUSAL TO BOX FOR GARDEN PROMOTERS

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 19.—Max Baer, heavyweight champion of the fight world, and his party, came to town today—to a welcome by Mayor R. E. L. Chancey and more than 1000 men, women and children. Baer came here to box Tony Cancela, former local high school football star, in a four-round exhibition match Monday night.

Max refused to discuss the possibilities of a change in the management at Madison Square Garden, or the prospects of fighting for Dempsey.

"I'll fight for the milk fund any time they want me, but I will not fight for the Garden," was his statement on the New York situation.

TEN DOWN AT TURN, GOLFER CONCEDES 36-HOLE MATCH

By the Associated Press.

Washington Park Race Track Sold to Chicago Syndicate

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.

A SYNDICATE of Chicagoans including John P. Harding, restaurant owner and sportsman, today purchased the Washington Park race track from the American Turf Association, which is headed by Col. Matt J. Winn, of Louisville, Ky.

Associated with Harding, according to reports, were Patrick J. Nash, Democratic National Committeeman, and others high in Illinois politics.

Under the new owners, Harding will be president of the track and Roy Carruthers, former general manager at the Arlington Park track, will be the new general manager, it was announced.

No purchase price was revealed.

Browns Give Up Hadley And Obtain Cash in Three-Cornered Deal

By J. Roy Stockton.

Irving Hadley, right-handed pitcher who won ten and lost 16 games for the Browns last year, has been traded to the Washington Senators for Catcher Luke Sewell and cash; Sewell has been sold to the Chicago White Sox and the money obtained in the transactions will be used to purchase badly-needed outfielders, Manager Hornsby announced last night.

"We made the deal because we considered it the best way of getting what we wanted," Hornsby explained. "We tried to arrange a trade for outfielders, but nobody would give us what we wanted. The offer from Washington was so attractive that we took it and will use the cash now to get what we need."

Hornsby did not mention the players he would try to obtain, but it became known during the December meeting of the major leagues that he was dickering with the Detroit Tigers and it is not a bad guess to expect the Rajah to obtain Outfielder Gerald Walker from the American League champions.

Walker fell out of Mickey Cochrane's lap last summer, when he was caught off base several times and was fined for careless baserunning. It was reported that he was on the market and Hornsby immediately made it known that he would like to have the young fly chaser.

$30,000 Cash for Browns.

In announcing the deal, the Browns did not disclose the amount of money obtained but including the cash from Chicago for Sewell, the total probably is approximately $30,000, which will be enough to add the needed outfielders to the Brownie roster. At present there are only four fly-chasers on the squad—Ray Pepper, Sammy West, Beau Bell and Debbs Garms.

Hadley will be 31 years old July 5. He was the hardest-working pitcher in the American League in 1933 when he hurled 317 innings, winning 15 and losing 20 games. He also was the most generous pitcher in the league, walking 141 batters. Last season he won 10 games and lost 16.

Walker, who is sought by the Browns, will be 26 years old March 19. He was with Detroit during part of 1931 and all of 1932, 1933 and 1934. Last year he batted .300 in 98 games and his safeties included six home runs.

Not So Bad on Baselines.

His work on the base paths would indicate that Mickey Cochrane was a bit critical. Gerald stole 20 bases and was caught stealing only nine times.

"We do not believe in selling players for cash," Hornsby explained, "but we felt that we could spare Hadley and could improve the team materially by taking the attractive Washington offer and spending the money for young players. Hadley is a good pitcher, but we will be stronger in the long run by reason of the deal. But I don't want the fans to get the idea that we're peddling our players."

Hal Finney Hurt in Tractor Accident.

By the Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 19.—Badly bruised while demonstrating a tractor in Attala County, Hal Finney, 28-year-old catcher under contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates, was in a hospital today. The tractor rolled under a tree and a limb snapped back and hit him on the head.

SEMIFINALS AND FINALS WILL BE HELD FRIDAY IN THE ARENA RING

By W. J. McGoogan.

Four knockouts and eight technical knockouts featured the orgy of slugging with which the three nights of elimination bouts for the Post-Dispatch Community Center boxing tournament closed last night, reducing the field to 32 who will contest the semi-finals and finals for the city wide championship at the Arena next Friday evening.

The survivors today begin an intensive training with road work, starting at Jefferson Memorial at 10 a. m.

There were 26 contests last night and the Sherman Park gymnasium was jammed with the largest crowd to attend in the three nights. Extra bleachers and chairs had to be placed on the floor to accommodate more than 2500 spectators, who saw one of the wildest punching carnivals to take place in a St. Louis ring in many years.

Bouts Packed With Action.

The bouts seemed to be much better than the first two nights, largely because the boys knew they were boxing for a place in the championship round and they refused to concede defeat.

Despite all the knockouts, however, it was a little flyweight contest which provided the crowd with its biggest kick of the evening and there was no knockout, but Fred Evans won the decision over Rickey Messina after three rounds of sensational battling which saw both boys on the floor and up again more than once.

Messina was the first to go down

TIGERS NOSE OUT NEBRASKA; SCORE 32-31

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 19.—University of Missouri marred Nebraska's undefeated record in the Big Six Conference basketball race by nosing it out, 32 to 31, here tonight in a frantic struggle all the way.

The game shoved Oklahoma, which broke even with University of Kansas in a two-game series earlier in the week, into undisputed possession of the Conference leadership.

Nebraska, defeating Iowa State in its only other Big Six game this season, found the Tigers pitching an early bid and trailed at the half, 18 to 15.

Parsons, guard, and Baker, forward, came from behind in the last three minutes for the Cornhuskers to threaten the Tiger triumph, but Missouri held a scant point lead to the end, despite the loss of Ken Jorgensen on fouls. Jorgensen led individual scoring honors tonight with 12 points.

Crowds at New York's "Garden" Largest in History of the Arena

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—All sports attendance records since the new Madison Square Garden was built in 1926 have been broken this season, and for the first time since May 31, 1933, the corporation is returning a direct profit on its operations.

Col. John Reed Kilpatrick, president, said today that from June 1, 1934, start of the corporation's fiscal year, through Jan. 15, a total of 175,444 more persons attended sports events in the Garden than during the same period in 1933-34.

In 1933-34, the attendance was 806,611 for 103 events, while 99 events in 1934-35 drew 982,055.

All the varied sports activities contributed to the increase, Kilpatrick said, except professional wrestling and the hockey games played by the New York Rangers.

Kilpatrick attributes the increased figures largely to collegiate basketball, promoted in the Garden for the first time by Ned Irish, a former sports writer; professional tennis, the growing popularity of six-day bicycle races and professional, collegiate and amateur hockey.

Despite the fact that last night's fight between Bob Olin, the light heavyweight champion, and John Henry Lewis, was called off, Kilpatrick said the Garden will pass the one million mark for sports attendance this season with tomorrow night's hockey game between the Rangers and the Montreal Canadiens—another new Garden record.

OTTO STEIN CAPTURES THREE OUT OF FOUR INDIANAPOLIS MATCHES

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 19. — Otto Stein, Jr., St. Louis, champion match-game bowler, won three of four matches in an exhibition appearance here tonight. Stein accumulated a total of 2511 pins for the 12 games to average a fraction better than 208. He will complete his series here tomorrow and then go to Cleveland. Scores of the matches follow:

That Vitreous Maxillary.

WHEN Jimmy Maloney, once known as the "Boston Strong Boy" because South Boston thought he was destined to become another John L. Sullivan, enters the ring with Max Baer at Miami, this week, he should wear a pillow on each jaw.

Jimmy's jaw should be labeled "fragile." In fact, it has proved a most expensive piece of glassware to James. One good, solid tap and it cracks—and so does Jimmy. "Glass Jaw Jimmy" he came to be called, rather scornfully, as though it were all Maloney's fault.

MALONEY

But Jimmy, like all knights of the vitreous maxillary, was more to be pitied than censured. It takes a courageous man to step into the ring with a dangerous hitter, knowing that the first failure to cover his jaw means "curtains." In a sense he is a cripple fighting against a sound man.

What a wow Maloney might have been had he owned a shatterproof jaw! But he didn't and James soon found out what a handicap that was. Unknowns put him down and frequently out. Such battlers as Leo Gates, Tom Heeney and Johnny Risko, among others, turned the trick. And, but for a bell ending the fight, even so poor a fighter as "King Solomon" would have been able to claim the honor—if any.

* * *

Go Easy, Max!

NOW Jimmy has been persuaded to get into the ring at Miami this week with a man who ranks among the hardest hitters of all time—Champion Max Baer. And, lest we jump to the conclusion that the four-round event is just an exhibition, one might point to the Levinsky-Baer barnstorming bout which saw the Kingfish knocked senseless.

Max may decide to test his power on the Maloney jaw and then James will have to do all his stuff to keep the big fellow off. Go easy, Max—Jimmy was a good guy, especially when he had it.

He's There in a Pinch.

JIMMY hasn't got it, now. That's why he's a traffic cop in Miami. It's also why they are tossing this bit of "pie" to him, by TORONTO, Can., Jan. 19.—Trailing once during the fray, the Toronto Maple Leafs ran wild here tonight, defeating the St. Louis Eagles 6 to 2 and sending them even deeper into the cellar of the International section of the National Hockey League.

Only 9000 saw the Leafs battle their way from behind to down the Eagles.

The visitors faded badly in the final stage of the game. They had only 12 players in uniform and the pace seemed to tell on them.

It was 'King' Clancy who scored what proved to be the winning tally late in the second period.

It was the 19th loss for the Eagles in 27 starts, and they were not impressive. It was the third time St. Louis has bowed to the Leafs, earning a tie once.

Hal "Lucky" Cotton was the hero of the Toronto fans in a game which ended rough and tough. Cotton bagged a goal and assisted in two others.

Bowman Out With Injury.

Play was but 35 seconds old, when the Leafs scored. Hollett rushed down center, evaded Frew and passed over to Conacher on left wing. Conacher's bullet shot gave Beveridge no chance.

With Joe Primeau in the penalty box, Cowley tied it up for the Eagles on a hard shot from 20 feet out. The pass came from Finnigan behind the net, and Lamb figured in the play.

Both teams finished the period short-handed, Boll and Pete Kelly being chased.

Howe put the Eagles in front after nine minutes of the second period after a close passing attack with Brydson and Voss. He scored from only a few feet out.

Twenty seconds later, the Eagles were granted a penalty shot when Hollett spilled Voss who was almost through but Brydson missed.

Eagles' Defense Wobbly.

Two minutes later, the Leafs went into the lead, when Clancy pushed the disc past Beveridge after taking a relay from Art Jackson and Horner.

Before the period ended, Horner made it 4—2 when Hal Cotton slipped him a perfect pass from the left boards. The Eagles' rear guard looked wobbly.

Primeau was injured in the second period, and will be out for three weeks with a dislocated shoulder.

The Leafs broke fast three abreast early in the third period and Cotton slipped the rubber over to Clancy who drove to the net but Beveridge saved in great style, but Kelly was in like a flash for the rebound and scored.

Frew and Thoms got into a fist fight late in the second. Both were banished.

St. Louis sent in five forwards during the last two minutes, but failed to dent the Leaf armor.

Cotton and Blair caught the Eagles down the ice, and the former scored with eight seconds to go on Blair's pass.

CONCORDIA PARK—St. Francis de Sales vs. St. John the Baptist, R. J. Wall, 2 p. m.; St. Agnes vs. St. Hedwig, V. Sandusky, 3:30 p. m.

The Municipal Soccer League plays its fourteenth and semifinal round of games today and there is a possibility that only one of the nine divisional titles will remain undecided. Four of the five still undecided can be settled today.

The one division sure of having no title decided today is Fairground No. 4, where the Wellstons and Balsanos are tied. They do not play each other either.

Because of a late start by several teams, only one of the five divisions not decided has participated in each of the 13 rounds. That one is Concordia Park where the St. Hedwigs can step into the city championship playoffs in any one of these ways—one, by losing while the runner-up St. John the Baptist team is defeated; two, by winning and three, by tying.

In the other three divisions the situations are as follows:

The Spanish Caballeros can clinch the Carondelet Park No. 2 title by winning if the German Sport Club ties or beats the Unbacked Wonders.

Carlstroms Play Americans.

The Carlstroms play the second-place American Zincs and a victory will give them a championship.

It is possible for Irish Village at least to clinch a title tie if they beat the runner-up Trojans; or, they can settle the affair by trimming the Trojans.

Sheldon Leads Scorers.

J. Sheldon of the Wellstons is the highest scorer among the 244 Muny players who have scored one or more goals this season. He has counted a dozen goals. In second place are two players, H. Maher of the Voglers and W. Murphy of Holy Rosary.

The leading scorers follow:

12 Goals—J. Sheldon, Wellston.

10 Goals—H. Maher, Voglers; W. Murphy, Holy Rosary.

9 Goals—W. Fogarty, Alpen Braus; E. McInerney, Wellstons; P. Marino, Balsanos.

8 Goals—G. Rudloff, Kellys.

By Reno Hahn

A little known group of St. Louis track athletes who are the rulers in their particular world are preparing for another series of conquests this season and are training now for an indoor meet to be held in the 138th Infantry Armory, Brooklyn, N. Y., on March 9.

This group is the Polish Falcons of St. Louis, No. 45 of District No. 2. They have won seven of the National Polish Falcon meets held in he last nine years and have more than 100 trophies collected in various events.

The Brooklyn meet is to be an open affair and is sponsored by the Polish Falcons of America, New York division, and has the sanction of the National A. A. U. There will be special events for those of Polish extraction.

The St. Louis athletes are being trained by Bruno Smorcinski. He is in charge of six runners from last year's national champions who will make the trip and possibly two others will go also.

Record Holders on Squad.

Heading the list is Tony Ritkewicz, winner of the 400-meter sprint last year. Tony holds the Falcons' record for the event with a time of 53.2 seconds. He also competes in the 800 meters run and the relays.

Next comes Joe Kuczejczyk who holds the record for the 1500 meters run. Kuczejczyk and Tony won places last year on a track team that will probably go to Poland this summer to represent the United States Poles in an international meet for those of Polish extraction living in other countries.

Others on the squad who will make the Brooklyn trip are Charles Hebda, star of Central High School's tennis team, who will compete in the 5000 meters; Mike Ritkewicz in the 100 and 200-meters; Al Podgorny, 100 meters, and Clement Knefel, in the two dashes. The six runners will compete also in the relays at 400 and 1600 meters.

There will be no field events in the Brooklyn meet.

Joseph Tryniecki in the 400 meters and Toddy Podgorny in the dashes are two other runners who may make the trip.

Organization 26 Years Old.

The Polish Falcons have an organization that is 26 years old and fosters many athletic teams in addition to its track and field group. The St. Louis group has won the national team competition many times. In those meets, gymnastics and other sports as well as track, figure in the point totals.

The track squad has been the most successful, however, its relay teams having lost only one race in the nine years that the local group has been competing in the national meets. Last year, in the national affair at Rockford, Ill., the St. Louisans took 67 out of a possible 88 points in track. The St. Louis runners hold all the national Polish Falcon relay records.

The team at present is working out at the Polish Falcons' building, Twentieth street and St. Louis avenue, but may change to the Downtown Y. M. C. A. to take advantage of the better facilities there.

According to Smorcinski, the athletes are now in serious training and are keeping regular hours, with none of them smoking, drinking, or otherwise violating any training rules.

sending him against Max Baer. He needs the dough.

Maloney made a lot of money; but, as with almost every other fighter of note, it got away from him. Soon or late they all wake up broke, with extremely rare exceptions. Fighters usually buy everything but Government bonds—and that explains what happens to their fortunes, rolled up at the cost of plenty of punishment.

* * *

If Maloney were in top shape, he might lead Maxie a very merry four rounds, for he's a shifty fellow and hard to hit. If they go to it, ringsiders may see a more attractive show than the main event—a battle between Frankie Klick and Barney Ross.

* * *

He "Showed Up" Carnera.

MALONEY was the first man to break the long string of victories, many of them being pushovers, which Primo etched into the record during that memorable campaign of 1930. The Man Mountain in 22 engagements gained 22 victories, of which 21 were recorded as knockouts, and one a decision due to a foul.

He then entered a match with Maloney in Jimmy's home town, Boston. Jimmy turned, twisted and ducked and hid that glass jaw for 10 rounds. Then the Boston officials announced a decision for Maloney. The glassware had been saved.

* * *

The roar that followed resulted in a second match, this time at Miami, and on that occasion Primo, because of rib-fracture, entered the ring with his entire right side bandaged. He had only a momentary effort to use his right hand, then gave it up and relied solely on the left.

And again Jimmy's jaw was saved. For that Carnera left arm, although of the length and size of a wagon tongue, carried little authority.

Carnera, fighting with one hand, earned the decision, however. But the myth of the irresistible power and punch of the giant Italian had been materially abated. In fact, almost from that moment, Carnera's supposedly man-killing wallop left him for ever and he entered the realm of the powder-puff punchers.

And that was about Jimmy Maloney's last real contribution to ring literature.

Why Joe Louis Is Climbing.

WHEN Joe Louis, Detroit Negro heavyweight, boxed at the national amateur championships here, last spring, one of the things that amazed onlookers was his poise. "He behaves like an old time professional," critics remarked.

He handled himself with a fine poise and his use of both hands was far above the amateur level. And there was a mighty good reason for it—his boxing instructor was the once-famous Negro fighter, Jack Blackburn.

This name is not familiar to the present generation but from 1903 to 1909 inclusive, Blackburn was rated among the great fighters of his day.

* * *

Fought Langford Three Draws.

HE FOUGHT Sam Langford three fights for a total of 37 rounds and the famous left-hook king could not gain a decision over Blackburn. The three fights were draws.

As a lightweight he fought the "Old Master," Joe Gans, but after losing the first time, he gained an unofficial verdict over Gans in their final "no-decision" contest.

Blackburn fought and whipped most of the leading men in the light and welterweight divisions and others who weighed still more.

In 1909 Blackburn's career came to a close when he shot a man. He was sent to prison and remained there four years until pardoned. That wrecked his career. But his ancient skill and knowledge are now being reflected in the showing of Louis, his protege.

Perhaps if there were a few more Jack Blackburn and Jimmy Barrys to teach the present generation how to box, the pugilistic sport would not be in such a low state as it has been for several years.

Cotton Tops British Pros.

By the Associated Press.

THIRD HEARING IS ORDERED IN GUNNERS' SUIT

Chile Walsh, coach of the St. Louis Gunners professional football team, underwent a grilling by Rodowe H. Abeken yesterday in the second day's session of the hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy John A. Hope, and he will undergo further questioning next Wednesday afternoon. Abeken, representing five Gunner players, filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the club and against Walsh and Edward J. Butler, president of the organization. He is endeavoring to establish a partnership between Butler and Walsh in their conduct of the affairs of the club. The bankruptcy trial will be heard by Federal Judge Davis on Jan. 26.

Walsh yesterday said that his contract as coach called for $5000 and 10 per cent of the net profits. Both he and Butler have admitted there was no profit, net or otherwise. Walsh said that the Gunner corporation still owes him about $2000 on his contract.

In the course of the two days of questioning it was disclosed that Butler and Walsh own the National Football League franchise under which the Gunners played several games. They have paid $8500 of the $22,800 purchase price, they said, and are obligated to complete the purchase in six months installments of $3500 each. The next payment, Walsh said, is due in May. Butler has testified that he and Walsh signed checks drawn against the Gunners' Athletic Association, the corporate name of the club.

Butler, in answer to Abeken's questions, said that he is broke. His only assets, he said, are three pieces of real estate, all mortgaged, and an automobile. He estimated his debts at from $8000 to $10,000.

Webster Defeats Kirkwood and Ties for Lead

In a rough and tumble basketball game in which each team committed 18 personal fouls, Webster Groves swamped Kirkwood, 32 to 12, last night on the Webster floor. The winners went into a tie with University for the Suburban League lead, each with five victories and one defeat.

PITTSBURG FIVE BEATS NOTRE DAME

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 19.—In the fourteenth renewal of their series, the University of Pittsburgh basketball team tonight defeated Notre Dame. The final score was 26-22. It marked Pitt's ninth victory of the string, the Irish having won five.

Marty Peters, Notre Dame's big center, popped a field goal shortly before the end of the half, but, as the whistle blew, Pitt was on the long end of an 11-9 tally.

Skip Hughes, Pitt's forward, had four baskets and one foul, winning the game's high-point honors. Peters led the Notre Dame scoring with a trio of baskets and a foul.

CHANGES MADE IN PRINCIPIA'S COACHING STAFF

By Davison Obear.

Frederic E. Morgan, director of The Principia, has announced several changes in the athletic department made necessary by the removal of the College to Elsah, Ill., next month. Separate athletic directors for the College and Academy have been named.

The College men's athletic department will be under the supervision of G. E. Hubbell, dean of men, Bertram Clark, assistant dean, will act as athletic director. Hubbell has been a member of the College athletic committee for many years and was the first president of the Missouri State Junior College Conference when it was organized in 1927.

Bert Clark is a former Principia and Missouri University athlete. Since coming to Principia as a member of the faculty Clark has served as head coach of the football and tennis teams. The College will have track and tennis teams this spring and a golf team will also be organized if there is sufficient interest in that sport, Clark stated.

The Principia Academy athletics will be supervised by a special committee with Chauncy B. Nelson serving as Athletic Director. Nelson is a former Principia and Nebraska University football star. He will continue his duties as dean of Upper School boys. For a number of years Nelson was coach of the Academy B football and basketball teams. He stated that the spring activities would consist of track and tennis.

Lee McCandless, another former Principian, who has served as Athletic Director for the past eight years, has been appointed Supervisor of the Principia Lower School. Shortly after assuming his duties as athletic director in September, 1926, McCandless advocated the adoption of the California exponent system of athletic competition. This plan provided team play for every student.

McCandless assisted in the organization of the A B C League which is composed of four schools, Country Day, John Burroughs, Western Military Academy and Principia. A number of other schools have followed the example and formed A B C teams.

Ray Newton Is Leading Bowlers With 1469 Total

Ray Newton, of the Wooster Lambert bowling team, rolled a total of 1469 pins Thursday to lead the third round of the local elimination bowling tourney.

Newton, who is rolling as sixth man on the Hermann team, which is competing in a home and home match with the Pabst Blue Ribbons of Chicago this week-end, received permission from the National Bowling Proprietor's Association who are sponsoring the tourney, to shoot his games in advance of the regular round. Newton bowled his games on the Rogers Recreation drives and came out with games of 278, 237, 227, 266, 218, and 2343 for an average of 244.5. Harold Schaefer had a 1328 total which included a 298-game.

Lowell Jackson and Sam Garofalo, also of the Hermanns, rolled their games in advance, with Jackson shooting 1284 and Garofalo 1720. The games were bowled at the Saratoga Recreation.

Hary Frederic, who paced the field after the first round, was next in line with 1268, followed by Cone Hermann 1262.

The final half of the twelve-game round will be bowled tonight at the Carondelet and Fairgrounds Recreations.

At Saratoga: Hy. Koelfing, 1116; Chas. Nitsch, 1183; Sam Garofalo, 1270; J. Gosney, 1164; Lou Haar, 1134; Clar. Kaley, 1093; Lowell Jackson, 1286; Vic Stauder, 1062; Erv. Brunsman, 1098; Hank Summers, 1200; E. Quasebarth, 1213; Frank Mataya, 1079.

Central Eleven Favored To Win Over Millers In Cup Game Today

By Dent McSkimming.

You can write your own ticket if you want to pick the Ben Millers to win this afternoon's national soccer cup match from the Centrals. Considering the fact that the Millers haven't won a game all season, having lost 10 and tied two in league competition, while the Centrals are national champions and have won eight and lost only two games this season, it is difficult to see how today's game can be anything but a triumph for Alex McNab's club.

Except for the fact that Billy Gonsalves is not playing up to his best form, the Central forward line is stronger than it was last season when it won the United States championship for Stix, Baer & Fuller. The halfback combination is not nearly so effective since Lehman and Eddie Kane are not the equal of Bill Watson and Bill McPherson, members of last year's team, who are no longer in St. Louis. The fullback line, too, is weaker than it was last spring but the goalie, McGowan, is better by reason of a year's experience.

Jack Dwyer, owner of the Centrals, has said that he will take steps to strengthen his defense as soon as his club gets past this first-round game.

"I certainly don't consider the Millers a set-up," said Dwyer. "We will be lucky if we get through without having them score a couple of goals, and that means we may have to score three or more. That's a tough assignment for any team in a cup match when players go at top speed from start to finish."

If Manager Eddie Croak had been able to place on the field every Sunday the lineup that he intends to start today he probably would have won at least half his league games. There isn't a weak spot in his team as he has it lined up for this afternoon, unless it be in goal. If the combination clicks it should score against the Centrals or any other club. Mulroy, Kickham, Stratmann and Cueto are among the outstanding players in local soccer history. It just happens that the club hasn't been at full strength all season, hence it hasn't developed teamwork. It looks to be in for a drubbing.

Ribby Murphy will referee and the start, according to league officials, is scheduled for 2:15 p. m.

Pawtucket Wins Cup Game.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Jan. 19.—Pawtucket Celtics defeated American Steel and Wire of Worcester two to one at Coats Field this afternoon in the first game of their first round national soccer cup series. Miller, American Steel fullback, put the ball accidentally into his own goal to give Celtic their first goal. Lindley made it two to nothing before half time. Silvia scored for the visitors early in second half. Three penalty kicks were missed, two by Celtics, one by American Steel.

Thornton's game with the Pawtucket Rangers, scheduled for Sunday, has been postponed.

Philadelphia Germans Tie.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Jan. 19.—The Philadelphia Germans, leaders in the American Soccer League, and Kensington Bluebells played a one-goal draw this afternoon at Rifle Club grounds here in the special elimination round of the National Challenge Soccer Cup competition. Both teams battled fiercely on the snow-covered pitch but could not break the tie during two extra periods of 15 minutes each.

Marshall put Kensington in the lead after 17 minutes of the opening period and Leutkenfedder knotted the count nine minutes after the restart.

and took a nine count after a hard punch by Evans in the opening round. But the little gamecock came back in the second round to floor Evans twice, once for nine and once for seven. In the final round neither went down but it was nothing but their nerve which kept them erect, for each took a severe pounding.

Jones Loses on T. K. O.

One pre-tournament favorite fell by the wayside in the knockouts for Al Novack scored a t. k. o. over Norman Jones, husky county high school athlete, in the third round having knocked Jones down in each of the first two rounds.

It was the triumph of a boxer over a puncher for Novack's superior knowledge of the use of a left jab gave him the opportunity to send home crashing rights which defeated Jones.

Those who scored knockouts in which the opponent was counted out were Tony Monaco who kayoed Joe Tarnowski in the second round; Joe Hart over Bill Cramer in the first round; John Randa over Bill Renick, first round, and Howard Wirth over Ralph Bullard, first round.

Milton Blives, a County League football player and an athlete in other sports, suffered a technical knockout in the first round of his match with Ed Hacker. He was on the floor as the bell rang ending the round just as Referee Harry Kessler tolled nine but Bessler raised Hacker's hand.

Monaco, taller than Tarnowski, was more aggressive but little Joe was putting up a great battle until he ran into a stiff right hand punch and took a nine count. He got up gamely but another punch put him down for the full 10.

Randa connected with a punch to Renick's chin and as Bill fell his head struck the floor a resounding whack, which had much to do with his being counted out.

Joe Hart Scores Kayo.

Later, Hart with a short vicious attack, made short shift of Carmer in the lightweight class, winning on a knockout within the first minute of the opening round.

Harry Dare disposed of Harry Steffen in the first round in the bantamweight division. Dare caught Steffen with a blow just as the bout opened and Steffen went down. He got up and Dare floored him again. That ended the contest for Harry Kessler, without stopping to count, merely indicated that Dare was the victor.

Cy Manderback and Frank Sgroi fought a bitter lightweight battle through most of the three rounds, but Sgroi took so much punishment that Harry Kessler again had to decide to intercede in the final session.

POST-DISPATCH SEMI-FINALISTS

Following are the boys who won their way to the semi-finals of the Post-Dispatch Community Center boxing tournament in the three nights of eliminations at Sherman Park. They will meet next Friday night at The Arena to decide the city wide championships.

Welterweights—147 pounds — Al Novack, Bill Beustring, John Randa, Joe Kobylinski.

Middleweights — 160 pounds — John Ryan, Dorcy Chaffin, Paul Patterson, John Porter.

Flyweight, 112 pounds—Frank Ritchie, Fred Evans, Les Hammond, Jack Easton.

Light heavyweights, 175 pounds — Ed Hacker, Ivo Hannecke, Howard Wirth, Al Sanders.

Lefts and Rights.

Two forfeits slightly marred the program of 26 contests. Woody Kriegbaum forfeited to Joe Kobylinski, while in the welterweight class Earl Miller forfeited to Dorcy Chaffin in the middleweight division.

Billy Merritt in the flyweight class who lost on a technical knockout in the first round to Frank Ritchie, is a brother of Ocie Merritt, a rather prominent boxer here.

Jack Easton scored a technical knockout over Tom Bishop in the third round of their flyweight battle, Bishop hitting the floor three times before Harry Kessler stopped it.

William Palubiak, a very short but sturdy little fellow caught the crowd immediately with his bouncing tactics and they were for him but he wasn't good enough to defeat Les Hammond.

Paul Patterson, a middleweight, one of the classiest boxers in the group showed that he could change his stride when necesary in defeating Tony Kussin. Paul saw that his left jabs wouldn't do it all for him against the longer reach of his opponent so he shifted to a right hand body attack in the final round and got the verdict.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Jan. 19.—Picking up speed in the last half tonight, Illinois defeated Michigan's makeshift team, 34 to 22, for its third Big Ten basketball victory in five starts.

The Wolverines, operating without four regulars who were suspended by Coach Franklin Cappon for non-observance of training rules, made a battle of it during the first half which ended with the Illini leading by one point. A field goal by Myers at the start of the second half gave the Wolverines a one-point edge, but from there on Illinois drew steadily away.

Frank Froschauer led Illinois with 10 points, nine of them scored in the first half. He dropped in four field goals in the first 20 minutes.

Indiana Drops Iowa From Lead, Winning 40-35

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Jan. 19.—Indiana turned the Western Conference basketball race into a free-for-all tonight by downing the Conference-leading Iowa Hawkeyes in a second half thriller, 40 to 35.

The Hawkeyes got off to a 24 to 15 lead in the first half, but slowed up midway in the second and the Hoosiers quickly overtook them. The Iowa team played without substitutions and Indiana used but one.

In the first half the work of John Barko, leading Conference scorer, who added 13 points to his total tonight, stood out for Iowa.

In the second period, however, Stout, Kehrt and Gunning of Indiana led a three-man attack which the Iowans couldn't stop. With five minutes of the period gone, Indiana had forged into a 29 to 28 lead.

Northwestern Scores First Victory Over Badgers.

By the Associated Press.

EVANSTON, Ind., Jan. 19.—Coming back after three straight defeats, Northwestern defeated Wisconsin tonight, 36 to 31, for its first victory of the Big Ten basketball season.

Wisconsin took the lead early in the game and held it until about midway of the second period when the Wildcats spurted to go out ahead. In a space of three minutes the score was tied three times before Northwestern finally pulled away. Northwestern used only five men and they slipped through the famous Badger defense for 13 field goals. Lyle Fisher scored six of them.

RUMORED FUCHS WILL BUY OUT ADAMS WITH LEAGUE FUNDS

BUT INTERESTED PARTIES REFUSE TO DISCUSS THE BRAVES' FUTURE

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 19. — Apparently pledged to silence about the National League's relief plans for their Boston Braves, Emil Fuchs and Charles F. Adams, president and vice-president respectively, returned home today to clean up their end of a financial deal that must be completed on or before Feb. 5.

During yesterday's 13-hour special League meeting in New York, which saw Fuchs abandon the Braves Field dog-racing plans that brought his dire financial troubles under a glaring spotlight, he and Adams were given less than three weeks of grace to contact "certain parties" who must be reckoned with before Ford C. Frick, young National League head, can announce a satisfactory solution of the first Major problem to beset his presidency.

Must See Small Stockholders.

These "certain parties," although Frick, Fuchs and Adams carefully avoided saying so, are the minority stockholders of the Boston Braves, most of whom are friendly to Fuchs.

Few of them have been financially interested in the Braves for more than a year, for Fuchs persuaded many of his friends to invest in the club last season, after the National League granted him a heavy loan. This loan came after Adams, who had carried the financial burden for several successful seasons, served notice that he was not to be called upon for further financial assistance.

The official instructions to contact these "certain parties" indicated to those "in the know" about the Braves' financial affairs that the League had promised Fuchs another loan large enough either to buy out Adams' interests outright or repurchase enough of his stock to regain control.

Among these "certain parties," it is believed, are Gov. James M. Curley and a group of his political friends. Last season, when some new stockholders were added to the Braves' list, Paul Curley, son of the Governor, replaced Weston Adams, a large stockholder in his own right, as the Braves' traveling secretary. Young Curley still is occupying that position.

Adams Ready to Step Out.

It is known that Adams would welcome such an arrangement. He has often said that he would not take over the club and that his only aim was to salvage as much of his baseball investment as was possible.

Having assured his fellow magnates that dogs never will race in Braves Field, the popular Fuchs probably has regained their sympathy and support. Any possibility of the Braves going into new hands disappeared with Fuch's announcement he would continue as the Braves' president with Bill McKechnie as his manager.

Therefore it seems assured the Braves, with the same old faces, will be doing business at the same old stand, with the help of a few new pocketbooks.

DOWNTOWN Y. M. C. A. HANDBALL TOURNEY WILL OPEN ON FEB. 2

The eighth annual downtown Y. M. C. A. handball championships will be held at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. beginning Saturday, Feb. 2, continuing through the following week with the finals, Feb. 9, it has been announced by J. S. Whitmore, associate director of physical education. The tournament will consist of both class A and B singles and doubles.

The winners of the class A singles and doubles will represent St. Louis in the national Y. M. C. A. handball championships at Memphis Feb. 19 to 23.

Entries in the tournament will close Jan. 29.

SEABACK TO SHOW IN BILLIARD EXHIBITIONS HERE DURING THE WEEK

Charles Seaback, one of the leading pocket-billiard players of the country, will appear in five exhibitions here during the week. He will open his stand at the Broadway Billiard Hall, 1615 South Broadway, this evening at 7 o'clock.

Tomorrow he will appear at Sansone's Recreation and Aratas, while Tuesday he will play at Petersons and the Arway.

FIRST PLACE AT STAKE IN DE MOLAY CIRCUIT

Harmony Chapter, the defending champion and Sentinel, winner of six previous titles, tied for the leadership in the De Molay Basketball League, each winning four consecutive games, are due to fight it out this afternoon. The game will feature the three to be played at the St. James gymnasium, College and Blair avenue, and will start at 2:45 o'clock.

Carondelet will try to break its four-game losing streak when they face the Maplewood sharpshooters in the opening game at 1:45 o'clock, while Perfections goal will be their third victory, meeting St. Louis Chapter at 3:45.

Braves' Troubles Over?—Ford Frick Tells Emil Fuchs They Are

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Ford Frick (left), president of the National League, and Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, at the league's special meeting in New York, called to untangle the Boston club's difficulties. After the meeting it was announced that President Fuchs would remain with the Braves and that the club would again play at Braves Field. Details were withheld.

Because no dogs will be allowed,
Of course excepting "hot."

To save the honor of the game,
And keep it pure and free
From all malign alliances,
Mechanical appliances,
And dogs of low degree.

Why, Indeed?

Pop Foster, manager of Jimmy McLarnin, asks "why should Jimmy fight for $15,000 when he can get $60,000?" That's a fair question. To the one giving the correct answer we will give an order on our grocer for a bunch of kale big enough to choke a horse.

Carnera used to have so many managers it was like splitting hairs to divide the spoils.

One of the reforms proposed by the New York State Athletic Commission was to abolish manager, thereby making more room for cash customers. Some time on a card of four bouts involving eight box fighters the ratio of managers to customers was about 1 to 10.

They toil not, neither do they spin
But get the dough, lose, draw or win.

In some cases the manager gets as much as 50 per cent of the earnings. Whereas if the glove artists got their engagements through a booking agency they would get by on about 5 per cent.

And in the final analysis about all the senior member of the firm of "We" does is book engagements for his performer.

Of course he has charge of the finances, being an expert in long and short division.

The Phillies may not be the best ball club in the world but it is the only one in the major leagues that combines the offices of coach and captain. Hans Lobert is them.

The Philadelphia club will have to pay Burt Shotton $15,000 this year on that hangover contract unless they can get some other club to give Burt a job and assume some of salary. In the meanwhile Burt is down in Winterhaven, Fla., trying to cure a bad slice.

Downfall of Last Year's Stars Is Outstanding Reason for the Eagles' Failure, Quain States

By W. J. McGoogan.

Trials and tribulations of operating a losing hockey club in the National League are not new, but nonetheless painful to Redmond Quain, president of the St. Louis Eagles.

Quain has been virtually in charge of the Eagles for several seasons both as the Ottawa Senators and the Eagles. It was he who convinced his cousin, Frank Ahearn, that it would be a good move to bring the team to St. Louis after it had fared so badly in Ottawa last season. Ahearn is actually the owner of the team.

But it didn't fare half so badly last season as it will this, either artistically or financially.

Quain was here the other day and watched his club lose to the Chicago Black Hawks, 5-1, after which he traded Jerry Shannon to Boston for Frank Jerwa.

He remarked that you didn't have to look far to see the cause of the Eagles' failure this season for five men who last season accounted for nearly 50 goals between them fell down so badly that it was necessary to get rid of them all and get new men in their places.

Stars of Last Season Fail.

They were Nick Wasnie, who scored 11 goals and had six assists in 1933-34; Earl Roche, 13 goals, 16 assists; Jerry Shannon, 11-15; Max Kaminsky, 9-17, and Desse Roche, 14-10.

This season they had these figures before the Eagles dropped them: Wasnie, 3-1; Shannon, 2-2; Earl Roche, 1; D. Roche, 0, and Kaminsky, 0.

Since then all but Wasnie have signed with other major league teams and are doing better, but their failure in the early part of the season placed the Eagles in a bad spot.

That is Quain's theory at least and his building has all been done in the forward lines. He has added virtually two new lines to his club in the acquisition of Vic Ripley, Joe Lamb, Pete Kelly, Fido Purpur and now Jerwa.

But many fans who have followed the Eagles through the valley of despair feel that the building process has been going on at the wrong end of the team. They feel that it is the defense which is woefully lacking rather than the forward lines.

Ayers Greatly Improved.

Vernon Ayers, huge defense man, is greatly improved over what he was at the start of the season, but seems still to be lacking the necessary speed and intuition of a major league defense man.

Irvin Frew is a hard checker and so is Scotty Bowman. Neither is much shakes at handling the puck, however, and where other defense men score occasionally or at least open up a play for their forwards the Eagle pair doesn't seem to be able to get going in the direction of the enemy goal.

But Quain feels that he has a good defense. He thinks that Beveridge has played well in goal since that 11—2 defeat by Detroit. Except for a few lapses so he has. But Bill has a bad habit of letting too many long shots get away from him and that has a bad effect on the team. So it would seem that there should be some attention given to the men behind the St. Louis blue line when rebuilding is considered.

Of course it already is too late to do much about getting anywhere in this year's race, although the playoff system—that much abused feature of hockey leagues—still leaves a loop hole for the Eagles to get into the championship series.

Will Show Financial Loss.

That the Eagles will show considerable financial loss this season goes without saying. How serious the loss is to be of course depends on the team for the rest of the season. But except for four or five miracles it will be very heavy.

And that brings up the question as to what is to happen to the club next year. Quain candidly admits that it is for sale. He, with his associates in Ottawa, feel that remote control is not good. They believe that if the club were owned by St Louis people it would be to the interest of all. So it probably would, but who would buy at this time? Because, in addition to the purchase price the purchaser would face the necessity of spending many thousands of dollars to improve the team and would probably have to be prepared to stand losses for another season or two until the team would be fit to make a championship noise, then the tide at the box office might turn.

That St. Louis likes major league hockey has been proved this year for a team with the record of the Eagles in any other city very likely would not have done so well as the St. Louis club and the lease with the Arena is distinctly advantageous.

With all these considerations, Quain says if his company is in the hockey business next season it will be in St. Louis and if anybody purchases the team he sees no reason why it should be moved from here. But also he said if he can find a buyer he won't care what the purchaser does with the club.

Wrestling Program.

Charley Kuehn and Tony Garibaldi will meet in one of the three 30-minute time-limit matches supporting the two finish bouts on Bill Schwabe's wrestling card Wednesday at the Coliseum. Gus Wisbar, St. Louis 165-pounder, faces Dick Heibel of Overland, Mo., and Al Haemmerle, St. Louis County welterweight champion from Maplewood, takes on Frank Maher, also of the county, in the headliners.

DR. HOLLINGSWORTH WINS PISTOL SHOOT

Although Dr. P. R. Hollingsworth and C. E. Burgdorf were tied with a score of 280 for the weekly shoot of the St. Louis Pistol and Revolver Club, Dr. Hollingsworth was given first place because he shot 93 in his rapid fire event to 90 for Burgdorf in the same event.

The scores:

Name.	Slow.	Timed.	Rapid.
Dr. P. R. Hollingsworth	96	91	93
C. E. Burgdorf	96	94	90
Geo. J. Brenner	97	85	83
E. C. Frechmann	92	86	82
Geo. C. Groner	88	86	84
G. Huebler	91	79	82
C. G. Metzler	90	58	75
E. H. Gehlert	79	64	66
W. H. Milius	80	78	45
O. Scheffels	80	59	56

The 25-yard target was used and the scores were shot from the 20-yard line.

Course of fire. Thirty shots for record. Ten shots slow fire, 10 shots timed fired and 10 shots rapid fire. Rapid and timed fire fired in strings of five shots each.

U. S. OLYMPIC SKATING TEAM PICKED; BRETZ MAY BE SPARE

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 19. —John Bretz, St. Louis skater, may be one of the members of the Olympic skating team that will go to Berlin in 1936. Bretz's name will be among those under scrutiny for an alternate position by the American Olympic Board in its meeting next October because of his strong showing in the 500 and 1500-meter events here this week.

If Bretz is picked as one of the alternates by the board, he will team with Eddie Schroeder, who won the 1500, 5000 and 10,000 meter races in the trials, Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee, who won the 500-meter run, Allan Potts of New York, high average scorer in the short distance runs, and Robert Peterson of Milwaukee, who scored the high average in the longer events.

Others under consideration by the Olympic Board are Val Bialas, Utica, N. Y.; Al Kucers, Chicago, and Harvey Goegline, Milwaukee skater. All placed high in the skating events.

Bretz Fails to Skate.

Bretz developed a case of flu Tuesday night and did not skate in today's final. Lamar Ottesen and Truman Connell, the other St. Louis entrants in the first tourney St. Louis skaters have ever entered, skate the shorter distances and weren't scheduled to enter the 10,000-meter trials today.

Schroeder took his third event of the four matches when he completely outclassed the field in the 10,000. His time was 19:12.6, 12.5 ahead of his nearest rival, Peterson.

Schroeder, who skated together with Val Bialas of Utica, N. Y., in the seventh heat of the day's racing, led the New York racer every inch of the 25 laps.

Peterson posted a time of 19:25.1 in the opening heat to bear Harvey Goegline by four seconds. He held the fastest time of the race until Schroeder spun off his fast time in the gruelling 6-mile run.

Jim Jaros of St. Paul finished ahead of Walter Jaeger, of Milwaukee, in the second race of the day when he went around the course in 19:39.2, three-tenths of a second better than Jaeger.

Kemper Referees Races.

Henry Kemper of St. Louis, president of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States, who was chief referee for the Minneapolis races, said that probably Schroeder would captain the 1936 Olympic team. Kemper, who will go with the skaters to Berlin, said that Lamb probably would skate the 500-meter event, Potts the 1500, Peterson the 5000, and Schroeder the 10,000. At the last Olympics Schroeder won the 5000-meter race.

The ice was perfect, but there was a light, chilly wind blowing that made it cold for both the skaters and the hundred or so spectators. Jaros' left foot was nearly frozen when he finished the race.

Connell and Ottesen of St. Louis placed in the events in which they skated this week. Connell, who won the exhibition tourney at Stillwater, Minn., three days ago, placed seventh in the 500-meter and Ottesen won tenth place in the 1500-meter event.

Bowling Notes

Only 12 bowlers remain in the Detroit match game eliminations, with Johnny Crimmins leading after the fifth round, completed last Sunday. Crimmins averaged 211 for his 12 games, scoring 1373 at the Rainbow Recreation and 1283 at the Chene-Trombley Recreation, for a total of 2656. Along with Crimmins, the following bowlers will compete in the sixth round: Archie Johnson, Walter Reppenhagen, Joe Green, Cass Grygier, Fred Wolf, Fred Cardella, Harold Allen, Joe Norris, Charley Kotarski, Fred Beckle and Charley Goodrow. The last six are seeded" bowlers.

Ted Gillet of the Will Docters and Ray Newton of the Grand-St. Louis team, featured last week's round of the Vescovo Scratch League, Gillett turning in a 277-game and Newton topping high three with 684, three pins better than Sam Garofalo. Other goods scores were: Gillett 649, Weinstein 651, Ted Menze 621, Cliff De Wees 665, Elmer Seiler 611, McCrunden 630, Coen Hermann 610 and Hank Summers 641. League matches resulted as follows: Will Docters 3, Webster Groves 0; Grand-St. Louis 3, Irish Village 0; Allhoffs 2, Falstaffs 1; Ilsas 2, Budweisers 1.

Bill Smith turned in a 686 with a high count of 267 and helped the Coopers take three games from the Cycles in the Grand-St. Louis Handicap League. In the other matches, the Walter Pannells won three from the Schlitz team, the Club House took two from the Fitzsimmons and the Lewis Five two from the Delaneys.

The high scorer in the Cinderella Handicap League were: H. Michel 639, Walter Kerr 626, P. Ross 607 and V. Thomas 605. The Gebkens took two of three games from the Grunows in the feature match. Mike Dressner is leading the league in average with 199.

All matches in the Corona Girls' Catholic Club League at Rogers Recreation this week were won on two to one counts, the Crickets winning from the Bees, the Chiggers defeating the Lady Bugs and the Katy Dids taking the odd game from the Fireflies. The Katy Dids shot the high three and high single team games for the evening with 1639 and 598 respectively, while Miss D. Janssen had a high three of 474 and a high single of 179. The Lady Bugs are in first place with a record of 33 victories and 21 defeats and are holding a one-game margin over the second place Crickets.

Joe Anzalone was the best bowler in the Washington Business Men's League last week, shooting a 706 series for the White Ways, who took three games from the Bernards. Johnny Gromacki toppled 698 pins to pace the Nesters in their two-game victory over the Senator Brogans. Al Weaver had a 659 for the losers. In the other matches, the Meyers took two from the Roehlks and the Mark Twains won two from the Beckers.

The Cherokee Cigars totaled 3060 and made a clean sweep of their match with the Arsenals in the Cherokee Business Men's League at the Cinderella Recreation. Sid Kastner totaled 683 with a high count of 253 to lead the bowlers. E. Sablatnik had a 628 for second high.

Gelbert Is Hopeful.

CHARLEY GELBERT'S fight to return to active duty with the Cardinals will be one of the most interesting features at the world champions' 1935 spring training camp. Charley has been out for two years as a result of a hunting accident and only recently he underwent a skin-grafting operation to stimulate the closing of the wound in his leg, above the ankle, by a shotgun charge.

A dispatch from Gettysburg, Pa., says the former Redbird shortstop, to demonstrate that he was ready to come back, circled the bases in 17½ seconds. Considering that Gelbert has been inactive for two years, that isn't bad time. The record is held by Evar Swanson, who as a member of the Cincinnati Reds, ran around the bases Sept. 15, 1929, in 13 2-5 seconds. Hans Lobert previously held the record, having circled the sacks from a standing start on Oct. 9, 1910, in 13 4-5 and Hans, now coach and captain of Jimmy Wilson's Phillies, does not recognize Swanson's mark. He explains that he ran from a standing start, the time starting when the starter said "go," whereas Swanson stood at the plate with bat in hand and had a start of several feet as he offered at the ball with his bat and dashed for first.

PERSONS who have followed Gelbert's courageous struggle to return to baseball are hoping that he makes the grade. It will be remarkable if he does. It was feared for a time that he might lose the leg and when that danger was averted it was considered only a remote possibility that he would ever be able to play even minor league baseball again. But Charley never gave up.

As the accident was not in line of duty, he has been off the payroll, "voluntarily retired," for two years and had it not been for an insurance policy he would have been dependent on relatives. Just before the mishap, Charley and his bride had built a home. It wasn't paid for, but a friend in St. Louis went to the rescue and advanced enough to pay off the mortgage, which makes him a pretty good friend.

Now Charley says his left leg is as good as new and that he will make the grade. If he is right, Leo Durocher will have a fight on his hands. Gelbert was on his way to the honor of being the best shortstop in the business when the accident put him on the shelf. A two-year layoff, however, would be a serious handicap for a man who had had no accident. But Gelbert has shown that he is a man of boundless courage and determination. Fortitude can do a lot in the miracle business.

Cochrane and Frisch.

FROM a woman fan in Moberly, Mo., comes a belated, but still very indignant protest because Mickey Cochrane was selected in an Associated Press poll, as the outstanding major league manager of the 1934 season.

"Frisch should have had the honor without question," writes the woman fan, who signs "T. D. B." And she presents a good case.

Cochrane had all possible breaks as he piloted the Tigers to the championship of the American League. His infield was intact all year. Had there been an injury it would have been fatal. His pitching staff clicked, and for that of course, Mickey must be given much of the credit. But whereas the breaks were with him, they certainly were not with Frisch and the Cardinals.

Bill Walker suffered a fractured arm just as he had arrived as a dependable starting pitcher. Pepper Martin was out much of the season with injuries. Virgil Davis, counted on to do the bulk of the catching, pulled up lame and then went into a batting slump. Then there was the revolt of the Deans, which certainly put the Fordham Flash on the spot and a very hot one.

A Consolation Award.

AND after all, the Cardinals won the world series, defeating the Tigers. And it was a double by Frankie Frisch in the seventh game, that turned the tide of battle in that final struggle. Frisch did everything a manager could do and a little bit more. He was brilliant in the field and dangerous at the plate.

Perhaps the best way to look at it is that for Mickey it was a consolation award. Frisch and the Cardinals grabbed the winners' share of the spoils. The voters probably figured Mickey ought to have something for running second. So they winked and placed him first in the managerial sweepstakes. But they paid off on Frankie Frisch.

Proposed New State Game Law Would Further Protect Wild Life And Put Teeth in Enforcement

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 19.—Tightening of Missouri's game and fish laws to eliminate commercialization of the State's wild life resources and simplify enforcement, will be sought in a broad legislative program to be introduced in the General Assembly early next week.

The changes, recommended by Wilbur C. Buford, State Game and Fish Commissioner, Chief of Wardens, Joe E. Green, on the basis of experience and a survey by the U. S. Biological Survey, in co-operation with the Federal Bureau of Fisheries.

Among the major proposed changes are revisions to bring the State's law into conformity with the Federal regulations.

The changes, Buford said today, also will "eliminate commercialization of game birds, fish and wild animals," simplify enforcement of the laws and put "sharp teeth" in them.

Among the changes which would be made are the following:

Make it a crime "to attempt to hunt, kill or entrap birds, fish or animals" in violation of law. Heretofore, game wardens, for the most part, have had little success with prosecutions unless they caught violators red-handed.

Increase the non-resident hunting license from $10 to $15.

Make it the duty of wardens to kill stray cats, which annually kill thousands of birds in the State.

Change the quail season from Nov. 10-Dec. 31 to the last Thursday in November-Feb. 1. This change is designed to save young quail.

Change the duck season from Sept. 5-April 30 to Sept. 5-Dec. 31 to bring it into conformity with Federal laws.

Advance the three-day open season on deer one month (from latter part of October to latter part of November) and make two-point bucks eligible for the kill. Only four-point bucks now are eligible.

Change the squirrel season from June 1-Nov. 30 to July 1-Nov. 30.

A closed season for rabbits. The open season would be Oct. 1-Feb. 15.

Make it unlawful to transport live wild rabbits out of the State for commercial purposes.

Change the season on fur-bearing animals from Nov. 15-Jan. 1 to Dec. 1-Feb. 15.

Make it unlawful to kill any wild game with the aid of a light from an automobile.

An indefinite closed season for raccoon, otter, beaver and mink.

Authorize the Game Commissioner, with the approval of the Governor, to proclaim a closed season in any county on any game bird or wild animal if petitioned for by at least 100 householders.

Increase the minimum length of bass that may be taken legally from eight to 10 inches, and a uniform black bass law conforming with Federal regulations.

License guides and require that they be skilled.

Require women to take out a license to fish, except in county of residence. Women now do not need a license to fish in Missouri, except under certain restrictions, in some State parks.

Give the Game and Fish Commissioner power to revoke licenses for violation of game and fish laws, and deny violators right to a license for two years.

Set a definite creel limit irrespective of the time a person has been fishing; limit of 50 for a two-day creel limit for game fish for a one calendar week. The limit is 25 game fish a day now.

Prohibit possession or use of fishing nets except under license of Game and Fish Department.

Limit trot lines to 50 hooks.

Make it unlawful to transport minnows for commercial purposes outside of county in which originally seined.

A closed season for bullfrogs from Sept. 1 to April 1, and require hunters to have hunting licenses.

Killing deer illegally and dynamiting fish would remain the only two felonies, all other violations being misdemeanors.

The Game and Fish Commissioner would be given authority to forbid fishing in any waters where game fish are being propagated under one suggested revision.

Another provision would give the Game and Fish Commissioner authority to bring suit in the name of the State to enjoin corporations and individuals from contaminating fishing waters.

One of the many amendments suggested by Buford would outlaw "pot shots" at game birds. This provision, in line with present Federal regulations, provides that "no person shall hunt, kill or take game birds on, over or within 100 yards of a place that has been baited with salt, grain or other foods."

CITY SERIES BETWEEN BEARS AND BILLIKENS OPENS TUESDAY

St. Louis University, with a better basketball record so far this season than Washington University boasts, will meet the Bears, Tuesday night at the Billikens' gymnasium in the first game of the series to decide the City Collegiate Championship.

In their seven college games, the Billikens have lost three, those to Duquesne, Illinois and De Paul, all of which are rated among the leading teams in the country. On the other hand, the Bears are under the .500 mark with four victories and five defeats in their nine contests.

Even the figures seem to favor the Billikens, for Coach Mike Nyikos' boys have averaged 33.43 points per game to 30.31 for the enemy. The Bears' average provides a sharp contrast for Washington has a percentage of 24.67 points to 29.45 for the opponents.

In spite of the records, the game probably will be close, because this is a tradditional battle in which both fives aim to do their best. In addition to that the Billikens will have had a 10-day layoff which may not help Charles Dirksen, Bob Cochran and company.

After a consistently bad road campaign, during which the Bears dropped successive decisions to Grinnell, Creighton and Drake, Washington returned home to repulse Tulsa, a recent addition to the Missouri Valley conference, 21 to 13. That victory put the Bears' conference average at the .500 mark with three victories and as many defeats.

SHAW-STEPHENS GIRLS MAKE 100 POINTS IN WINNING TWO GAMES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 19. By defeating the erstwhile unbeaten McClellan team, city league leaders of Chattanooga, by a score of 55-15 here tonight, the Shaw-Stephens American Legion girls' basketball team of Maplewood, Mo., made a clean sweep of their three-game weekend series in the south.

A 45-43 triumph over Cleveland at Cleveland, Tenn., in a Saturday afternoon game satisfied most of the fans who were turned away from the doors Friday night when an overflow crowd saw the Shaw-Stephens girls hand the Cleveland club its first defeat in three years on its home court. The score of that game was 35-17.

The Shaw-Stephens scoring punch was in evidence in the game here tonight when Mattie Collins went on a spurt that netted nine field goals for 18 points.

TED CLARK EASY WINNER OF HANDICAP AT SANTA ANITA

JABOT SECOND; WACOCHE THIRD; TWENTY GRAND IS AGAIN DECLARED

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19. — Ted Clark carried the silks of C. N. Mooney to a surprise victory in the San Felipe $2500 Handicap of a mile at Santa Anita Park today.

The five-year-old chestnut horse by Chatterton out of Uncle's Lassie collected $2060 and paid $11.20 to win, $4.60 to place and $3.80 to show. His time was 1:37 3-5.

A length and a half behind was Jabot of the C. V. Whitney Stable, with Wacoche third by a length. Faireno and Mad Frump, overnight favorites, were sixth and seventh respectively.

Ted Clark went into the lead by three and one-half lengths off the first turn, increased it to four on the back stretch, lost ground slightly on the final turn and then held his position in the drive home.

Four were scratched from the race, due to the heavy track. These were Twenty Grand, High Glee, Teralice and Gillie. It was the sixth time Twenty Grand had been declared here.

New Deal Wins by a Head at Miami.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 19.—Running back to the fine form he showed as a three-year-old last year, J. W. Parrish's New Deal just lasted today to take the Granada Handicap of one mile at Hialeah Park.

Eddie Arcaro, the little Newport, Ky., jockey, gave the son of Broadway Jones a strong whip finish to get the Parrish silks home a head victor over Late Date, from the Brentwood Stable. Fred Alger Jr.'s consistent Sabula was third, losing the place by five lengths.

Sharing interest on the program, witnessed by a crowd of 10,000, was the one mile of the Seminole Purse, in which eight three-year-olds, most of them eligible for the Florida Derby, faced the barrier. The winner turned up in William Woodward's Foxy Agnes, a daughter of Gallant Fox, which stepped off the eight furlongs in 1:37 4-5 under the light impost of 101 pounds.

The mutuel handle for the day was $262,000

Two Track Records Broken at San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 19.—Two track records were lowered at Alamo Downs today. H. C. Rumage's Pharatime cut the time for five and one-half furlongs from 1:05 1-5 to 1:04 2-5 in winning the featured Norge Handicap and E. L. Vaughan's Wise Player traveled one mile and 70 yards in 1:41 1-5, as compared to the old mark of 1:41 3-5 to take the supporting feature, known as the Builders Exchange Handicap. Both were outsiders, Pharatime paying $14.30 and Wise Player, $15.90.

PRINCIPIA BASKETBALL TEAM WINS, SOCCER ELEVEN IS DEFEATED

The Principia Academy "C" basketball team coached by Lee McCandless defeated the "B" team from Western Military Academy 20 to 12 in an ABC League contest at Howard Gym yesterday afternoon. Principia led 12 to 8 at the half. Robert Wallace, forward, was high point man for the winners with two field baskets and four free throws for a total of 8 points. Sol Wall, guard, led the visitors with 9 points scored on three field goals and the same number of free throws.

Western captured the "A" soccer contest on the Principia field 5 to 1 yesterday afternoon. Al Armata scored two of the five goals for Western.

CENTRAL CATHOLIC FIVE OF E. ST. LOUIS WINS IN LAST 90 SECONDS

After trailing until the last 90 seconds of play, two field goals in the final minute and a half enabled the Central Catholic High team of East St. Louis to gain a 14 to 11 victory over the Southside Catholic High five yesterday on the Central floor.

With only 90 seconds left to play, and Southside leading, 11 to 10, Bill Greswick, Central forward, found the hoop for two field goals, the margin of victory. The Southside team held a 5 to 3 lead at the end of the first half.

Volleyball Tourney Today.

Triple "A" will hold a volleyball tournament this afternoon at 2 o'clock on its outdoor courts in Forest Park. Four teams will compete. The squads of Captain George Sanford and Harry Steeb meet in the first game, and those of Forest Stuckman and Dr. Ray Hollinshead are paired in the other.

THREE TIE FOR SACRAMENTO LEAD WITH 70

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 19.—A quartet of the country's leading professionals bettered par by two strokes today to tie for 18-hole leadership in the $2500 Sacramento open golf tournament.

Gene Sarazen, New York; Charles Lacey, Great Neck, L. I.; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., and Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., turned in 70s over the long windswept municipal links.

Only a stroke behind and themselves one under par, were Jimmy Thomson, Long Beach, Cal., and Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J.

BEAUMONT AND M'KINLEY FIVES PLAY TOMORROW FOR LEAGUE LEAD

By Harold Tuthill.

A game worthy of the championship will take place in the City High School League basketball race tomorrow afternoon when the undefeated Beaumont and McKinley fives will struggle on the Beaumont floor. The games, usually played on Thursday and Friday, have been shifted this week due to the mid-year graduations, and three contests will be held tomorrow.

In the other contests of the afternoon, Blewett plays at Cleveland, and Soldan and Central, each with a .500 percentage, will meet at McBride.

McKinley is credited with being the leading team in the circuit because the Goldbugs gained decisions over Roosevelt and Central, whereas Beaumont has won only one game, that from Soldan by a 28 to 18 score. If McKinley comes through with its third victory, the Goldbugs probably will acquire the crown won by Soldan last year.

Cleveland should not have a lot of trouble in disposing of Blewett for its second victory in three starts, while Soldan appears to have a slight edge on Central.

This will be the last week of play for many of the basketeers. Chief among the absentees will be Adolph "Iggy" Uhlemeyer, Beaumont's outstanding forward. Uhlemeyer's loss partially will be compensated for by the return of Art Kerls, regular guard during the last campaign. Kerls had a little scholastic difficulty last June, but he has pulled up his grades since that time and once more will be eligible.

Swan songs on the McKinley squad will be sung by Rich O'Connell, four-letterman and Fred Johnson, both forwards. At Cleveland, Harton Schneider, who has been Uhlemeyer's chief competitor, will bid the Carondelet squad fond adieu, while Harold Wright, southpaw pitcher, will say goodby to the Central squad after this week. This group of boys are certain to be ineligible.

The standings of the teams:

	W.	L.	Pts.	Op. Pts.
McKinley	2	0	80	49
Beaumont	1	0	28	18
Soldan	1	1	53	49
Cleveland	1	1	55	38
Central	1	1	43	67
Blewett	0	1	21	35
Roosevelt	0	2	34	68

To Make Waterfowl Check.

MISSOURI's game wardens will assist in the national census of waterfowl surviving the last hunting season, Joe Green, Chief of Wardens for the Missouri Game and Fish Department, said last week. The check-up will be started Jan. 21 and will continue until the end of the month.

Harry Barmeier, United States Game Protector for the area which includes Missouri and Illinois and who will be in charge of the census in this part of the country, completed arrangements for the Missouri wardens to assist in the enumeration while on a trip to Jefferson City.

"It is desired that the estimates of the numbers of different species be made so far as possible on the same area each day of the week," Barmeier said. "This will make it possible to interpret any sudden increase in one area that may be offset by a decrease in another."

This will be the first nation-wide census ever taken by the United States Biological Survey on the proposed basis. The results obtained will be used by the United States Department of Agriculture to determine future waterfowl shooting policies.

Good Fishing Promised.

Promise of good trout fishing at Roaring River is shown in the report of Faye Roller, hatchery superintendent at Roaring River State Park, that 175,000 baby rainbow trout are being cared for at that place. The trout fishing season opens March 1.

Entries Close Jan. 27.

Jan. 27 has been the date set for the final entries in the American amateur field trials to be held at Sturgeon Feb. 11 to 18.

Special events during the field trials include a "dog strutters' ball" the evening of Feb. 12; a bench show at Centralia, Feb. 13, and a special open stake trials following the running of the American amateur.

One of the features of the trials, those in charge say, will be an ample number of good riding horses for owners of contesting dogs and for the gallery. Charles Green, secretary of the Missouri State Fair and one of the country's outstanding riding and jumping horse judges, is in charge of the committee to obtain horses for the trials. Some of the best animals from the Boone, Audrain and Randolph County stables will be used during the trials.

Black Bear Doing Damage.

A black bear, believed long extinct in Missouri, is reported to have been causing damage to livestock in South Central Missouri. . . . Bull frogs would be protected by a closed season between Jan. 1 to June 13 under a proposal now before the Missouri Legislature. . . . A new forestry unit to include parts of St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, Perry, Madison and Iron counties has been recommended to the National Forestry Reservation Commission. The new unit would be the seventh in the State and would provide employment of approximately 2000 men. . . . Fly casting is a new sport being followed by a junior sportsmen's club in the Jefferson City High School. . . . The trapping season closed Jan. 15. . . . A gray wolf that weighed 50 pounds was killed near Centralia one day last week. . . . A non-stop fishing marathon started early last week has enabled Guy Godfrey of Eldon to claim the title of "fish a week" champion, having caught fish from the Lake of the Ozarks at least once during every week last year.

Deer Seen in Ozarks.

Nearly 7000 bushels of corn has been fed to migrating waterfowl at the refuges on the Lake of the Ozarks this season, Gordon Crosby, superintendent at the Bagnell power dam, said last week. Refuges have been maintained at Horseshoe Bend near the dam and at Hoggles Creek near Warsaw. More than 3500 bushels of corn are being fed to geese and ducks. At one time during the migrations it was estimated there were 35,000 ducks, largely mallards, on the Hoggles Creek refuge.

The American Golden Eye was observed this year on the Lake of the Ozarks for the first time, Crosby said.

Wild turkey and deer are being given protection in the Lake of the Ozarks region and five deer were recently observed near Climax Springs.

Game Has Fared Well.

Game has fared well throughout the present open winter, a check-up over the State shows. There has been no prolonged cold periods and very little sleet and snow to cause food shortages.

Those who are familiar with the feeding habits of Missouri's small game and birds says that the State's wild life can take care of itself very well during winter excepting through periods when ice covers the available food supply. Birds usually can obtain food even when there is snow on the ground, but are helpless to obtain adequate food when the ice film covers the food or forms a crust over the snow.

PRINCIPIA COLLEGE WINS, ACADEMY LOSES IN SWIMMING MEETS

The Principia College swimming team defeated the Downtown Y. M. C. A. second team, 36 to 35, but the Academy lost to Western Military, 58 to 17, in the meets held yesterday afternoon at Principia.

BAIT CASTING CLUB WILL HOLD MEETING

The annual meeting which will mark the silver anniversary of the St. Louis Fly and Bait Casting Club will be held tomorrow night at the Missouri Athletic Association, starting at 6:30 o'clock.

Election of officers, resume of the past season's activities which brought the first national tournament to St. Louis, results of the local events and tentative plans for the coming season are some of the many details which will be taken up during the meeting.

According to Lyle Garrison, president, 1935 will mark the twenty-fifth year that the St. Louis Fly and Bait Casting Club has been in existence and encouraged by the great success of the national tournament here and the fine showing made by local casters, members are looking forward to even greater activity during the 1935 campaign.

Jane Wells, Veiled Prophet Queen, Makes Debut in Gold and Silver Setting at St. Louis Country Club

Dinner Dance Given by Mr. and Mrs. Elzey M. Roberts, Uncle and Aunt of Debutante, Last Large Party of Social Season—Queen Wears Coronation Robes and Carries Arm Bouquet of Pink Bouvardia.

TO MISS JANE WELLS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erastus Wells, was given the unusual distinction of being principal in the opening and closing events of one of St. Louis' most successful debutante seasons. Last October, scarcely more than a year after exchanging her school books for a Mary Institute diploma, she knelt before the Veiled Prophet and received the highest honor within his power to confer—the jeweled crown of Queen of Love and Beauty. Friday night, again attired in her coronation robes, her crown worn as a brooch instead of in her diamond bandeau, she again made a bow, this time to her own special friends, at a dinner dance given in her honor by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Elzey M. Roberts at the St. Louis Country Club. It was the last large party of the season.

The brilliance of precious metals blended in the decorations. Silver, which hid the walls of the three adjoining ballrooms, took on the hue of gold in close proximity to overhanging gilded smilax which formed a continuous frieze about the ceilings and hung in tendrils over doorways and window apertures. Light varied from frosty white in long, silver-bordered cylindrical shades upright on metallic walls, to silver as it glittered through round, tasseled chandelier coverings, and finally to gold—the yellow glow of many candles clustered in gilded columns rising high above the musicians, the debutante table and the receiving line.

Briarcliff roses and steevia on the dinner tables afforded the only color note in the gleaming metallic setting. The bouquets were arranged in gold Grecian urns on silver strips overlaid with gilded smilax. Between the urns candles flickered from low containers.

Miss Wells presided over the horseshoe debutante table seating 111 guests in the alcove dining room. Mr. and Mrs. Roberts entertained a group of their friends at a large U table in the main ballroom, and others were set for the debutante's aunt, Mrs. Lloyd P. Wells, hostess because illness prevented Mrs. Erastus Wells from attending, and for Rolla Wells, grandfather of the guest of honor. The young married set and the stags sat at two long tables on the enclosed veranda. During dinner special entertainment was provided by a strolling accordion player. Drinks were dispensed from a long chromium trimmed bar on the porch.

The receiving line stood in the lounge before a silver screen almost concealed by a bower of pink and white blossoms sent to the guest of honor. Smaller clusters of violets, gardenias and dainty baby orchids rested on small tables about the room.

Mrs. Roberts received in a gown of white Damascus satin brocade, its severity of line broken by pleatings of tulle edging a circular skirt flounce and repeated on broad shoulder bands graduating into a deep V at the low back. Her jewels were opals, strung into a neck-

Betty King Wed To J. J. Green in Church Ceremony

MISS CARYL ELIZABETH KING, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William King, 5260 Washington boulevard, became the bride of John James Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Leigh Green, 12 Kingsbury place, last night at 8:30 o'clock, at the Church of St. Michael and St. George. The Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block officiated. The bride is the first of this season's debutantes to marry.

The church was decorated with white flowers against tall palms and woodwardia ferns. Vases of white snapdragon adorned the altar which was lighted by white tapers. The chancel rail was covered with huckleberry foliage and at the entrance to the chancel were two large standards of Easter lilies. At each side of the altar were palms and ferns in which cathedral candles in six branched candelabra were arranged.

Miss Sally King, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Miss Sarah [illegible] Green, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Carol Meier, Miss Su[illegible] Flint, Miss Alison Jones and Miss Grace Sager, who also made her debut this winter, were bridesmaids. Jane Johansen, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Johansen as flower girl, preceded the bride to the altar. Walter Wes[illegible] Shipley was best man and John Disbrow, Charles Disbrow, [illegible] Disbrow, William King Jr., brother of the bride, Rodney Meyer, Thomas Bond Jr., Boyd Ware, Henry Boeckeler, William Kinnaird, Edward Haverstick and George Stephens were ushers.

Mr. King gave his daughter in marriage. She was gowned in ivory toned satin fashioned on long clinging lines and adornel with lace worn by her great-grandmother on her wedding gown. The high neck line was trimmed with a round bertha of the lace that reached to the shoulders. There were long satin sleeves that came to a point over the hand and the skirt with three panels at the back flared into a train. The veil of ivory tinted tulle was held in place at the back of the head by a braid of ivory satin that

The entertainment will be given under auspices of the hospitality committee, of which Mrs. Henry C. Whiteside is chairman.

Mme. Noe has appeared as a soloist at the Albert Memorial in London, with many symphony orchestras, and as the guest artist in private concerts.

Social Affairs Of St. Louisans At Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 19.

THE first contingent of the winter colony from St. Louis has arrived here to occupy homes owned or leased for the season or to stay at the various hotels.

The switchboard at the Fleetwood Hotel went wild the other afternoon when Stafford L. Lambert of St. Louis returned to the dock in his fast yacht, Flight, with two loud booms from the toy cannon which he has bolted to the deck of the craft. He is here for the season at the home of his mother, Mrs. Florence Parker Busch of St. Louis. Thursday he was host at a luncheon to Col. J. Carroll Cone of Washington, D. C., and Maj. Reed Chambers of New York at the Bath Club.

Mrs. Busch entertained Mrs. T. M. Hastings and Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Hastings Jr. of New York at the Bath Club at luncheon Wednesday. Mrs. Busch's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Sharp Ezell of St. Louis, who have leased a house here for the season, also entertained at luncheon at the Bath Club Wednesday and were guests of Alfred I. Barton of Philadelphia Tuesday night at a dinner party at Ira's Club.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth of New York and St. Louis entertained Thursday at the Surf Club, where they had as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja of Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Denny of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Danforth also entertained at luncheon at the Surf Club last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Ray Carter of St. Louis entertained at the Bath Club luncheon Thursday for their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Brookmire of New York. Mrs. Brookmire was formerly Miss Annie Kennard of St. Louis.

Mrs. Stewart Jamison and Mrs. C. M. Dering of St. Louis were guests at a luncheon Friday at the Bath Club when Mrs. C. R. Lindback of Philadelphia entertained.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Reddington of Rye, N. Y., who recently returned from a West Indian cruise aboard their yacht, Aloma, left Wednesday for a week's cruise among the Florida keys. They have as their guest Miss Lola Belle Taylor of St. Louis, who is passing the winter with them at the Flamingo Hotel. On the yacht with Mr. and Mrs. Reddington are their daughter, Miss Annette Reddington, and Miss Virginia McNulty, also of Rye.

separated to form three narrow bands across the head. The bride carried a lace handkerchief that had belonged to her great-great-aunt. Her bouquet was of calla lilies.

The maid of honor wore sea foam green satin designed with a high neck line and long tight sleeves. The skirt, slit at the front and ending in trains were finished with heavy rows of satin tubing. Suspender straps edged with more of the tubing flared over the shoulders and clips, the gift of the bride trimmed the square neck line. She wore bands of the rolled satin in her hair and carried Hollywood roses, tied with green ribbon. The bridesmaids wore gowns of pale green moire designed like that of the maid of honor. They wore green moire bands about their heads and carried bouquets of deep red roses tied with green ribbon. The flower girl was in a frock of accordion pleated white French voile and carried a basket of white blossoms.

Mrs. King was gowned in black crepe with which she wore a jacket of dark blue crepe shot with silver threads. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Green was in violet velvet trimmed with chinchilla and wore a corsage of orchids.

The ceremony was followed by a reception for about 50 guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. King. In the center of the table was a large wedding cake surrounded by white flowers. After a honeymoon in Honolulu Mr. Green and his bride will live at 5385 Waterman avenue.

The bride was graduated from Mary Institute, where she was crowned May Queen the year of her graduation. She attended Washington University, and was pledged by Kappa Kappa Gamma. She made an informal debut this season. Mr. Green attended St. Louis Country Day School and was graduated from Lawrenceville Preparatory School. He is an alumnus of Brown University class of 1931.

The Queen's gown, with which she carried an armful of pink bouvardia, silver tied, is a glistening ensemble of sheer silver lame and filmy silver lace. The foundation is lame, fashioned on princesse lines to the knees where a circular flounce ripples into a short train. Pointed sections of silver and thread lace, held in place by diamond shaped jeweled ornaments fall loosely over the skirt, and rhinestone straps hold the low bodice in place. The elaborate court train, worn at her coronation, and again last night during the receiving hours, was removed later for dancing.

Women's Ad Club Gridiron Dinner

THE St. Louis Women's Advertising Club will give its first gridiron dinner Tuesday night at 7 o'clock at Hotel Statler. Miss Beatrice Adams, president of the club, has charge of general arrangements and has written a sketch, "Heavenly Hub-Bub," for the party. Others who will take part in the entertainment include Mrs. H. W. Kirn, Miss Gene Ellinger, Miss Helen Hurd, Miss Dorothy Gardner, Miss Helen Martin, Miss Martha Moore, Miss Grace Kinney and Miss Opal Sweazea. The guests will be the wives of the members of the Men's Advertising Club, whose annual gridiron dinner takes place the same night.

The piper is paid—the hand is steady
And whatsoever is put on the pan
Shall be roadsted, forsooth, to a dark, dark tan,
And all who enter the fiery portals
Shall be sarcastic, bombastic mortals.
Are you baffled—puzzled—perplexed?
Are you muttering, "ye gods, what next?"
Are you wondering what this means?
Why, lady, you've waited for this for aeons!
It means, fair femme, this much—no more—
It's time the ladies chalked a score.
So this is your summons—if summons be needed—
And woe unto you if it go by unheeded—
It's a summons to come with a sneer on your lip
And a scathing retort on your tongue's very tip.
A summons, I say, to appear without fail
The date is one-twenty-two-thirty-five.
At seven p. m. you are to arrive
In parlor "A" at the Statler Hotel,
Please mark the date and mark it well!
Come—if only yourself to guard,
(And don't forget to mail the card)'.'

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

WE reported a few weeks since on the slightly decayed and shop-worn social and professional celebrities who live free in bankrupt hotels to give the establishments whatever prestige may go with their names, but it appears that that biggest society racket of all is practiced in the swankier night clubs. In the most impressive of these, and there are three or four that get most of the lorgnette and orchid trade, about half the registered and touted names that you can see lounging at the ringside tables or chivvying the waiters are there on the cuff, pure and simple. They are boob bait, come-on guys, Coney catchers, if you please, and the management tears up their checks when they get ready to leave.

The great bulk of the cash receipts in any night club comes from nonentities and suburbanites who like to dance on the same postage stamp floor with Lady Something and Sir Oswald Monocle or the byblow of some first family who has contrived to figure in a particularly odious scandal. An exception to this is made by film stars. Stage actors and particularly actresses, consider they've done enough for masters of ceremonies by being present at all, let alone paying cash, but movie folk, most of whom are well heeled and on holiday when in New York, almost to a man insist on footing the bill. Edward G. Robinson in Jack and Charlie's the other evening was actually buying a drink for one of the proprietors.

Another source of merriment to the knowing is the salaries reported to be paid to "society" entertainers who blink their big eyes in a cloud of mascara for the bewilderment of the ringside seats. Usually their reported fees can be cut four times to reach an approximation of the truth.

One absolutely authentic entertainer who gets all of his reputedly high salary is the hard working Dwight Fiske, who has maintained an almost complete supremacy in the field of midnight entertainment for three seasons. He is one of the shrewdest satirists ever to leer and scream across a keyboard and the job he has done on Connie Bennett, who once was so foolish as to talk through one of his programs, has become a classic wherever English is spoken.

The Saturday Afternoon Club at the Biltmore Turkish baths is getting a full quota of members these days and is the favored resort of Tammany overlords and other Democratic satraps who come down to steam and soak and splash in its marble pool. Al Smith is as regular as clockwork and usually is accompanied by one or two of his sons. Whenever he is in town Postmaster-General Farley drops in and has an enormous pile of newspapers sent to his lounge chair for casual perusal. Supreme Court Justice McCooey is a frequent member of this convocation, and Magistrates, Aldermen and lesser luminaries make a point of dropping around on Saturdays to pay their respects.

The far end of the poolroom is usually devoted to this group, and it would be a bold or tipsy bather, indeed, who would blunder in among the proconsuls, who only lack togas to be Roman as they sprawl on the stone steps and benches of the tepidarium. Al Smith, however, knows all the regular customers of the baths, whether they're Democrats or not, and waves a genial paw as they pass to steam room or shower. It all combines state councils with salt rubs and massages in the best Baths of Caracalla tradition.

Fright Note: One of the biggest sellers, a Fifth Avenue jeweler reports, during recent months, has been a rabbits' foot mounted with a gold loop for watch chains. They cost 10 foolish dollars each, and he will supply feet of rabbits so high-toned that they are practically socially registered and mounted with platinum for twenty.

The new elegance that is being reflected on every hand about the town, from the New Haven's new pastel coaches to Dick Maney's salutation of everybody as "Sire," is reflected, of all places, at Horn and Hardart's cafeterias, where they are going in for floral displays that would curdle the wits of Max Schling himself. For all we know they get their flowers from that most snooty of blossom vendors, one of whose salesmen recently, when we told him we have five dollars to spend for a corsage, told this department it might have one large gardenia and one not so large. They were regularly three dollars each, he explained, but we could have one slightly inferior, one at a fire sale price of two bucks.

Anyway at the Automat at Broadway and Forty-seventh street every one of the 130 tables gets an elaborate bunch of flowers every day, and not tired old spring flowers either, our spy reports, but swell posies calculated to knock your eye out. Long stem roses with nickel coffee is something to give one pause. A particularly pretty girl in a garden frock, who is known as the "head bus," a curious term, does nothing but look out for the flowers, or that and tell customers they may wear them out for buttonhole ornaments if they wish.

Stewards Named For Kennel Show

THE committee of stewards for the twenty-third annual dog show of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club to be held at the Arena March 23 and 24, includes S. Cupples Scudder, D. Calhoun Jones, Alfred C. Carr Jr., Herbert Elmer LeGear, W. D. Wilkinson, A. Sproule Love, Samuel C. Davis Jr., and Eric Banks. The stewards have charge of the judging rings, of which there will be four this year instead of three, as in the past. Judging will be conducted each forenoon, afternoon and evening, with the grand champion selected Sunday evening, March 24.

Mr. Davis and Mr. LeGear and Mr. Carr also will serve with Delbert L. Findley, chairman, M. J. Connor and Asa B. Wallace on the Bench Show Committee, which selects the judges and has general supervision of the exhibition. Gerald B. O'Reilly, president, announces that the George F. Foley Dog Show organization of Philadelphia, licensed superintendents of the American Kennel Club, has been retained to manage the show. The Foley organization which has managed the largest bench shows in America in the last 25 years, will have local headquarters at 411 Washington avenue.

Campus Notes
From the University of Missouri

By Special Correspondent.
COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 19.

STEPHEN LEACOCK, head of the department of political economy at McGill University, Montreal, opened the Mark Twain centennial celebration at Columbia Wednesday morning when he addressed students on "Mark Twain and American Humor" in the university auditorium.

These men were initiated into Missouri Workshop, dramatic organization, Tuesday night: James Liberman, Zeta Beta Tau, St. Louis; Paul McMillan, Acacia, Maplewood; and Charles Walker, Sigma Chi, Webster Groves.

Dinner guests at sorority houses last Sunday included Morton May of St. Louis, guest at Phi Delta Pi sorority, and Miss Mena Sennott, Waterloo, Ill., guest at Alpha Chi Omega. Miss Ethel English of St. Louis was a dinner guest at Kappa Alpha fraternity house, while Miss Annabelle Blocker, member of Phi Delta Pi; Daniel Safier and Gene Rich, all of St. Louis, were guests of Phi Sigma Delta fraternity.

Mrs. Curtis Betts of Webster Groves was a guest at a luncheon given Wednesday by Mrs. Walter Williams at her home on Francis Quadrangle.

Robert Niedner of St. Charles and Mortimer Rosecan, Sigma Alpha Mu, St. Louis, have been selected as members of the university debating squad.

Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity, held a smoker at Kappa Sigma fraternity house last week-end.

Miss Bernice Glickman of University City, member of Phi Delta Pi sorority, was the violin soloist at a university orchestra concert Tuesday evening.

James P. Hickok and Mr. and Mrs. James E. Baker, all of St. Louis, were guests of Columbia friends last week-end. Mrs. Baker (formerly Miss Mildred Frod) is a former student of the university and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Mu Mu Mu, recently organized interfraternity and intersorority problem club, held a meeting last week-end at the Coronado Cafe. Arthur Lochiner, St. Louis, member of Phi Delta Theta, presided.

Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity held a reception at the chapter house last Sunday night for Rabbi Hadas of Kansas City. Bernard Passer and Mortimer Rosecan, both of St. Louis, were among those in the receiving line.

Miss Marian Lloyd of St. Louis, a student in the university last year and a member of Delta Delta Delta, visited Columbia Sunday.

Miss Helen Wallace, St. Louis, member of Phi Mu, and Miss Bernice Glickman, University City, member of Phi Delta Pi, were made committee members of the Women's Panhellenic Council when the council met last week-end at Alpha Phi sorority house.

The annual inter-semester Panhellenic dance will be given Monday, Jan. 28, in Rothwell Gymnasium.

"Odd Ideas," a play written by Bown Adams, Kirkwood, member of Phi Gamma Delta, was presented Wednesday night by Missouri Workshop. Mrs. Mary Paxton Keeley's "Evelyn Byrd" also was presented, with Richard Buell, St. Louis, member of Zeta Beta Tau, taking part.

Mr. and Mrs. Grund, 3136 Allen avenue, St. Louis; Miss Georgia Grund and Mrs. Grund's mother, Mrs. Jensen, motored to Columbia Wednesday to visit Miss Virginia Grund at Gamma Phi Beta sorority house, and Miss Wilma Grund, Hendrix Hall.

Course in Horticulture.

College Sororities and Fraternities
Panhellenic

THE 10 national sororities which have chapters at Washington University have appointed freshmen girls to assist in serving at the annual scholarship bridge to be given by the Panhellenic Alumnae Association Saturday, Feb. 2, in the Women's Building. Pi Beta Phi will be represented by Jean Winter and Charlotte Widen; Kappa Alpha Theta by Jane Chivvis and Mary Louise Conrades; Delta Gamma, Barbara Schafer and Marie Bischoff; Delta Delta Delta, June Stevens and Mary Jane Wright; Zeta Tau Alpha, Norma Walbrink and Eloise Bogey; Kappa Kappa Gamma, Billie Doctor and Marion Jack; Gamma Phi Beta, Lois Wickman and Carolyn Wright; Phi Mu, Frances Cassell and Virginia Peters; Alpha Chi Omega, Ruth May Saxman and Ellen Oberman; Alpha Xi Delta, Anita Winter and Adele Hauck.

Mrs. George R. Throop, Dean Adele Chomeau Starbird, Miss Alice C. Schriver and Mrs. Blanche Bartlett will be guests of honor. Mrs. Walter Bailey of Beta Sigma Omicron, who is in charge of ticket sales, has announced that Alpha Delta Pi is the first sorority to report its quota of tickets sold.

Mrs. Waverly P. Hays, 7729 Delmar avenue, will be hostess for the January dinner meeting of Alpha Phi alumnae at her home tomorrow evening. Plans will be made for the participation of the alumnae chapter in the silver anniversary celebration of the student chapter at Missouri University the first of March.

The Alpha Chi Omega alumnae chapter will meet Tuesday evening for a buffet supper in the student rooms in the Women's Building. Mrs. Roger Renkel, the hostess, will be assisted by Miss Alice Chedell, Miss Hermoine Hamel and Mrs. Edward Kooreman.

Mrs. Edward R. Huckmann, 1173 Moorlands drive, will entertain the alumnae of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority at her home tomorrow evening. Mrs. Ralph E. Johnston will review Caroline Miller's novel, "Lamb in His Bosom."

The Men's Panhellenic Council of Washington University has voted to set aside a sum of money for printing a hand book of information about fraternities to be given to rushees next fall. The book will include a section of financial obligations entailed in affiliation. At the next meeting of the council the fraternities will vote on the adoption of a plan for preferential rushing. John Weaver, Abe J. Gallant and Milton Mill have been appointed to a committee to plan the pledge banquet to be given after examination week. Panhellenic will also sponsor an inter-fraternity dance next semester.

Phi Delta Theta Fraternity has announced the pledging of Frank Wright.

At the recent national convention of Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity, St. Louis was chosen as the place for the twenty-sixth annual meeting to be held next year.

Mrs. Louise Drury Hamilton of Galesburg, Ill., president of the ninth province of Alpa Xi Delta Sorority, was the guest of the student chapter last week.

The schedule for rush week will be prepared this year by the following members of the Women's Panhellenic Association of Washington University: Miss Annie Meroe Burnet, chairman; Miss Marjorie Stephens, Miss Madelyn Linke, Miss Jeanne Milam, Miss Mildred Vaughan and Miss Genevieve Penny. Miss Jane Stern has been appointed to report on the possibility of having a uniform pledge day for all sorority pledge meetings. The Panhellenic Council has voted that hereafter affiliated sororities will not sponsor ticket sales for any campus organization except for the Hatchet and the annual carnival. The Intersorority Sing sponsored by the Council will be given Feb. 16 with Miss Betty Hanson, chairman; Miss Jeanne Milam and Miss Mary Margaret Hancock, in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Albert C. Leiter was hostess for the January luncheon meeting of the alumnae chapter of Phi Omega Pi sorority, Friday, at the Washington Hotel.

The Kappa Kappa Gamma Mothers' Club will meet at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. John C. Vaughan, 7054 Washington avenue, with Mrs. Fred S. Milam, president, presiding. Miss Adele Seifert will give a talk on "New Books."

Mrs. H. E. Frech, 7070 Lindell boulevard, will be hostess for the January meeting of the Delta Gamma Mothers' Club at her home Friday afternoon. A group of readings will be given by Miss Genevieve Lilie of the Morse School of Expression.

The Alpha Chi Omega Mothers' Club will have a business meeting followed by a tea at the home of Dr. Ellen G. Comfort, River Cliff, 4670 South Broadway, tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Louise Gempp will be assistant hostess. The annual election of officers will be held.

The Sigma Alpha Mu Mothers' Club will meet at 10:30 a. m. Thursday at the fraternity house, 6186 Kingsbury boulevard.

Mrs. Simeon R. Tyler was elected president of the Theta zi Mothers' Club at a meeting held last week. Other officers are: Mrs. Harry Barco, vice-president; Mrs. Orlie H. Wilkening, treasurer, and Mrs. Clarence Garvey, secretary.

WALTER NAGLE, BELLEVILLE STOVE MANUFACTURER, DIES

Walter G. Nagle, president of the Baker-Nagle Co., stove manufacfacturers at Belleville, died yesterday at Bloomington, Ill., of a cerebral hemorrhage suffered on a train Thursday when on his way from Chicago to his home, 902 South Church street, Belleville. He was 44 years old.

After serving overseas as a lieutenant in the Air Corps during the World War, he was discharged at Scott Field and became associated with the stove company, founded by the late Joseph Baker. The same year, 1918, he married Baker's granddaughter, Miss Josephine Baker. He was treasurer of the company until 1927, when he was elected president after the firm was incorporated as the Baker-Nagle Co. He also was chairman of the Belleville City Plan Commission.

Surviving are his wife, two brothers and two sisters. One brother, Arthur G. Nagle, is Deputy Internal Revenue Collector in St. Clair County.

FORMER BALLET RUSSE MEMBER AT PARK PLAZA

Exotic Young Dramatic Dancer Presents Her Imaginative Interpretations in Crystal Terrace.

Miss Warsawska's interpretations are finely styled, fascinating and display a rare talent. She and her sister, Rita, come to the Park Plaza from a long run at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago. The latter, a pianist and coloratura of unusual accomplishments, will appear in the Merry-Go-Round Cocktail Lounge.

Four Diplomats Held Over.

The Four Diplomats, sophisticated song stylists, have been held over. Miss Lois Nixon, rhythm singer, is another addition to the current program of entertainment. No cover charge or minimum charge, except Saturday night — $1.50 minimum charge.

Social Activities In Washington

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.

THE President and Mrs. Roosevelt continue their round of state functions at the White House. The latest was a reception of the judiciary, the next is a dinner on Thursday for the chiefs of the diplomatic corps.

The Vice-President and Mrs. Garner seldom entertain, but a few nights ago they gave a dinner in honor of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. They had practically the entire Cabinet group among their guests and engaging celebrities as Will Rogers, humorist attended. The rose room on the roof of the Washington Hotel, home of the Garners, was the scene of the dinner, and the program afterward was given in the sun parlor.

The military pageant held at Fort Myer to inaugurate the new riding hall was by far the most brilliant performance of horsemanship given at the post in many years. The "Musical Ride" was one of the most interesting features with Washington debutantes, who had practiced for weeks, putting their horses through a series of figures with the ease of veterans.

EVENING CLASSES OPEN FEB. 4

Registration for Second Semester at Washington U.

Registration for the second semester evening classes at Washington University will begin tomorrow and will continue until Saturday, Feb. 2. Classes for the semester will begin Feb. 4.

Civil Service Association Meeting.

The Retired United States Civil Service Employes' Association will meet at 2 p. m. Wednesday at Mount Moriah Temple, Natural Bridge and Garrison avenues.

Kirkwood Guild in Sudermann Play

THE next Kirkwood Theater Guild production, "The Joy of Living," will be given Thursday and Friday nights at 8:30 o'clock in the Legion Hall, Argonne drive.

The play, for members of the guild and their guests, is a tragedy by Herman Sudermann. It deals in a frank manner with the "eternal triangle" and, consequently, is not recommended for children. Two performances will be given.

Edmund Mack and Willard Guest are the directors; Robert Bennett is in charge of settings, and Houston Compton has arranged the interiors.

The cast follows: Count Michael von Kellinghausen, Frank Eubank; Beata, Christine Hedges; Ellen, Mrs. Dean Burnett; Baron Richard von Volkerlingk, William Berthold; Leonie, Lakme Perez; Norbert, Claude Ryan; Baron Ludwig von Volkerlingk, Oliver Blase; Prince Usingen, Houston Compton; Baron von Brachtmann, King Ambler; Herr von Berkelwitz, Gordon Henderson; Dr. Dahlenberg, Dean Burnett; Holtzmann, L. W. Bayes; Meixner, Robert Bennett, and Conrad, Clarence Nichols.

The Guild will have a Sunday tea, March 3, at which a one-act play will be presented. Try-outs for this play will be announced shortly.

Cleveland High Alumni Meeting.

The Cleveland High School Alumni Association will hold its semi-annual reception in honor of the class of January, 1935, Friday at 8 p. m. at the school. The program will include a business meeting and a dance.

British Plans for a Regular Service Between England and Canada by Air — and Their Chief Obstacles.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

"SEPT. 21, 1926—Death raced with Capt. Rene Fonck as he took off today for a New York-to-Paris flight . . ."

"May 20, 1927—Five times in the 3800 feet of the long runway over which Capt. Lindbergh sped in making his take-off, he was close to failure, twice by inches. . . ."

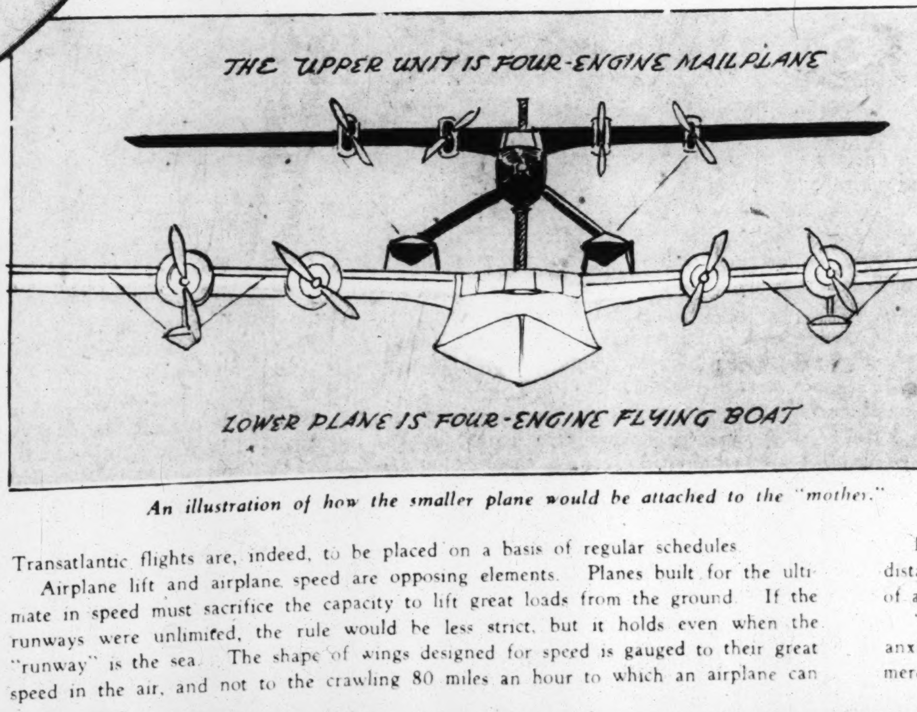
And now, in the dawn of 1935, the British Imperial Airways, planning a regular ail service between England and Canada, have worked out the plans for a revolutionary evice to end forever such hazards of the take-off—a gigantic mother plane to take e small, fleet Transatlantic ship aloft!

Always previously, the amount of fuel which an airplane could lift in taking off s been an inexorable limit on distance flights. More than once aviators who took erties with that limit have paid with their lives. On the other hand, those who bowed it and held down the fuel reserves frequently have fallen short of their goal.

But in addition to the factor of life and death, the new British invention is aimed another obstacle hardly less important in the field of practical aerodynamics, if Transatlantic flights are, indeed, to be placed on a basis of regular schedules.



THE UPPER UNIT IS FOUR-ENGINE MAILPLANE
LOWER PLANE IS FOUR-ENGINE FLYING BOAT

Airplane lift and airplane speed are opposing elements. Planes built for the ultimate in speed must sacrifice the capacity to lift great loads from the ground. If the runways were unlimited, the rule would be less strict, but it holds even when the "runway" is the sea. The shape of wings designed for speed is gauged to their great speed in the air, and not to the crawling 80 miles an hour to which an airplane can accelerate on a runway. The Schneider Cup racers have to get up to about 120 miles an hour to take off, but they have the sea to do it on.

For the other side of the picture, planes with great lifting power are barred from high speeds. The wing shape that gets them off the ground, with great extra loads, offers speed-shrinking, gas-eating wind resistance, once they are in the air. Hence the expectation of "a great advance in performance"—possibly unprecedented speed and economy—in a plane in which lifting power can be virtually disregarded.

The inventor of the new plane is Maj. R. H. Mayo, technical adviser to Imperial Airways, which in the closing weeks of 1934 inaugurated a 12-day air mail service between England and Australia, with departures of four-motor planes every week from Croydon Airport and from Brisbane. It was announced then that preparations were in hand to "forge the last link of the Empire air mail chain—that between the homeland and Canada."

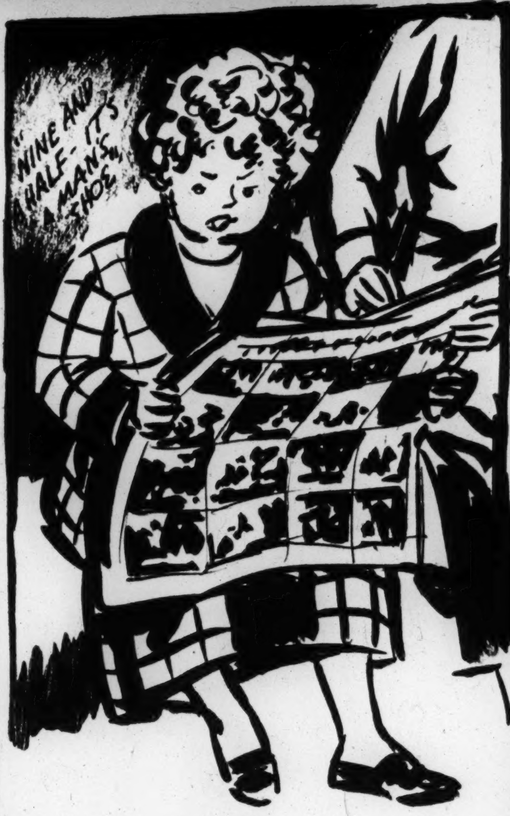
Maj. Mayo calls it "the Mayo Composite Aircraft." The mail-carrier is to be a small seaplane so designed for speed that it could not rise from land or even the sea by its own power. The "elevator" is to be a huge four-engine flying boat, on the back of which the mail plane will be mounted. All the power of both is to be used on the take-off. Utilizing the tremendous lifting power of the big flying boat, they are to rise together to an altitude of 5000 to 10,000 feet. There they are to accelerate to a speed considerably above the take-off speed of the mail plane—or any speed it could attain on the surface—and part company, the mail plane to go on its way, the "elevator" to glide back to its base.

Getting down is not quite such a problem for the Transatlantic plane. Its fuel load, when it reaches its destination across the sea, will be lighter by many gallons, and its landing speed will be just that much lower than at the take-off.

Probably, say St. Louis aviators, the mail plane will be equipped with wing flaps and slots to prevent stalling when it lands. Manipulating the flaps, the pilot bends a portion of the wing downward for extra lift. The slots on the front wing surfaces open automatically to right the plane whenever it tends to stall.

If it works—and aviators seem to think it will—it opens startling vistas in long-distance communication, or, conceivably, invasion. Perhaps it is somewhat indicative of a state of mind in Europe that a British writer comments:

"No doubt, owing to the importance of the invention, the whole aviation world will anxiously await the trials of the Mayo Composite Aircraft, for it not only has commercial, but also military possibilities of a far-reaching nature."

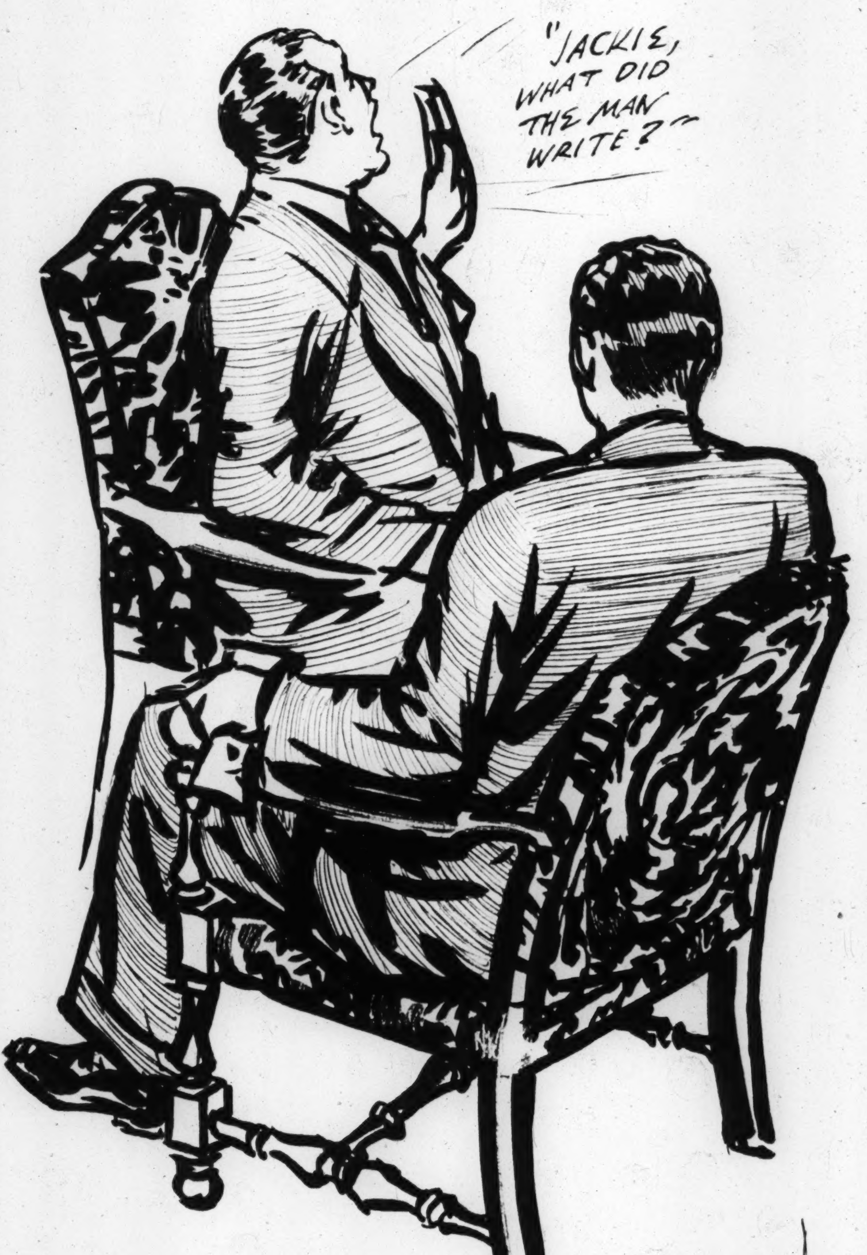


"NINE AND HALF—IT'S A MAN'S SHOE"

An INFANT PRODIGY on the LOOSE

Two portraits of Jackie Merkle.

An Interview With Jackie Merkle, Who Performs Startling Mind-Reading Feats at the Age of 6, But Prefers the Funny Papers.



"JACKIE, WHAT DID THE MAN WRITE?"
WA Byrne

By JACK ALEXANDER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

JACKIE MERKLE, 6 years old, is one of those disconcerting phenomena who, for lack of a better word, are called psychics, which means that he may without notice pick a thought out of your mind with uncanny accuracy and blurt it aloud, or from another room read what you write before the ink is dry. He will also predict events but here he goes awry as often as not, so that one is justified in assuming that he is guessing just as anyone else would.

The boy's unusual talent, whatever it is, is frankly being commercialized on the vaudeville stage but there is little reason to doubt that it is authentic and not furthered by a complicated system of signals and codes. He has stumped some first-class psychologists and none suggested that he was bamboozling them. Perhaps the oddest fact about the prodigy is that he comes from a long line of acrobats, a type of performer not highly regarded for feats of cerebration.

Jackie is an attractive youngster with pink cheeks, a crown of brown curls, light blue eyes and an impulsive manner. He has an IQ of a boy of 12 and a vocabulary that would do credit to a high school graduate. He mispronounces many long words in a babyish way but he knows when to use them. His tastes run to mechanical toys, particularly those with complicated cogwheels. He sops up the comic sections like a sponge and he loves his German Pinscher dog, Baron, which is almost his size. Only one thing distinguishes him from other children—he has a will of iron and sometimes dominates his father.

It is through the parent, Jacques Merkle, who has given up acrobatting around the tank towns, that Jackie performs most of his surprising divinations, a not unusual circumstance in view of the psychological affinities of some persons bound by blood ties. Pere Merkle is a squat, somewhat loud-voiced chap who bellows at his offshoot much as if he were training a police dog, but outside of business hours he is pals with Jackie—if Jackie gets what he wants. Jackie has learned to bellow, too, but he has a change of pace and can converse normally with elaborate politeness.

Jackie had retired for the night (the iron will working again) when the time for the interview arrived. But when he saw there were visitors and a chance for a reading of the funnies, he bounced out of bed, threw on his bathrobe and came running into the living room of the hotel suite. His father had refused to read the funnies to him, on the ground that he was tired, and on this issue Jackie had accepted the gage of battle and jumped into bed, interview or no interview.

After introductions, accompanied by formal scraping by Jackie, the prodigy grabbed the hand of my feminine companion and dragged her into his room. Here he shoved the comic supplement into her hands and peremptorily ordered her to start reading.

"Ah, that boy," Pere Merkle apologized, wiping his brow, "he is the limit. He will be the end of me, yet."

Then, while Jackie hungrily followed the reading of the comics in the adjoining room, words were written on a sheet of hotel stationery in the living room and handed to the father. The latter would scan the jotting for a moment and thereafter shout this question: "Jackie! What did the man write?" And Jackie, diverted for an instant from Popeye's adventures, would reply almost immediately. All the while the huge Pinscher loudly gnawed a beef bone on a newspaper spread before the living room fireplace.

At no time was the father visible to the son, so any prearranged signals would have had to be verbal. Since the question: "What did the man write?" admitted of small chance to communicate ideas by variation of inflection, at least one person was convinced that the thought transference was genuine.

TO START the test, Pere Merkle whispered: "Write the name, well, say, of an automobile. Studebaker or Buick, or maybe some foreign car."

I printed "Isotta-Fraschini."

The first reply was garbled. It sounded like "Otta-seeny." The boy continued his jumbled mouthings in a queer progression of unidentifiable sounds until it came out at last crystal clear—"Isotta-Fraschini, now shut up and let me listen to the lady read the funnies."

Pere Merkle gestured helplessly at the insubordinate command.

"Watch," he said, taking the pencil, "I will write something." He wrote "Buick."

"Jackie," he shouted, "what did I write?"

"Leave me alone," screamed the boy.

"Oh, nuts——Bick, Boock, Buick!"

There was a sound of rustling pages from the next room. "Read more," ordered a childish voice.

"Watch," whispered Pere Merkle with an artful, sly grin. "I will write another word." It was "Studebaker." Jackie knocked it off in record time. The last two performances were hardly impressive because the father and boy could have prearranged them easily. I suggested this to the father. He became indignant.

"Write anything!" he exploded.

I wrote 9½.

"What did the man write, Jackie?" yelled Pere Merkle, folding his arms and preparing for triumph.

"Nine," came the reply. "Please quit interrupting."

The father waxed furious.

"I will take your toys out tomorrow and give them away!" he cried. "Come, Jackie, what did the man write?"

"Nine and a half," came the close-clipped, angry answer. Then, as an afterthought: "It's a man's shoe." Which was exactly right. I had had in mind my shoe size. He had yanked that one out of my mind, not his father's. Or had he simply guessed it?

"Jackie, what kind of watch is the man wearing?" I shoved out my wrist so the father could see it.

"Waltham," the boy said.

"White."

"What time does it say, Jackie?"

"Eight fifty-six." He had hit it on the nose. I looked afterward and there was no clock in his room. Nor was he wearing a watch.

Jackie stubbed his toe on the next word. It was "Popocatapetl," the name of the famous Mexican volcano. He got the first two syllables as "Papa" and then sulkily insisted the word was "parent," which was an understandable evasion of his job.

Such random notations as "aces up," "8 clubs," "a free American country," "goldfish," "Vanity Fair" and proper names such as "Rosemary Conroy" and "E. J. Mueller" were easy after a few syllabic stabs.

I tried "Anita Mueller." He got the first name easily but for a time insisted the second was "Muley." Then he hit exactly upon it, keeping the "mule" sound, however.

"Ho," he cried to the lady who was reading the comics, "that's your maiden name!"

I listed the names of persons at a recent party. Before I could finish them, he was off on his psychic fishing expeditions and by the time the names were written his gibberish would clear up and he would pronounce them properly.

I tried "John A. Vraniak."

"Oh, he's dead," bragged Jackie. "What do you ask me about dead ones for? Somebody killed him. They never will find his body. His name is John A. Vron-yak. He came from Czechoslovakia." John A. Vraniak was the name of a Virden, Ill., Catholic priest who vanished in St. Louis some years back.

"What am I thinking about, Jackie?" I asked, without writing anything. "I have a picture in my mind. What is it?"

"Tell it to my father and I'll get it," he shrieked.

"No, no, Jackie," shouted Pere Merkle, "do what the man says! What is he thinking about?"

"Back, back, back," mumbled the boy. "Oh, I don't know. Back, back, back." Then, "bang, bang, boom!"

THE reply was fragmentary but impressive. The mental picture was that of a famous World War action photograph. It showed an American infantryman, stumbling from the impact of a bullet, one hand going up to his throat. His head and shoulders were thrown sharply back.

Since Jackie couldn't describe the picture exactly, I printed on the letterhead: "Soldier being shot." No sooner had the last letter come into being than he was running around his room shouting: "Bang, bang! Soldier being shot, soldier being shot!"

Then he dashed into the living room and dived among his toys, proudly exhibiting the mechanical locomotive he had put together from an elaborate set.

One of the favorite performances of the child is to visit a local newspaper office in the city where the act is booked and render the reporters goggle-eyed by telling them the names of their children and sundry facts about their past lives. If a girl passes by, he will address her by name. One of his pet practical jokes is to steal flash lamps from newspaper photographers and screw them in the socket in the room of his manager, Harold Rose.

They make a blinding flash when the switch is turned on.

Jackie was born in the La Salle street railroad station, Chicago, rather informally, when his parents were struggling along with an act called "The Flying Merkles." Seven months later the mother, Anna Schwartz Merkle, missed contact with the husband's outstretched hands in Twin Falls, Idaho, and fell to her death. When Jackie was 2 years old, according to a press agent story, he told his father that his lost watch could be found in a New Orleans pawnshop, where Merkle located it. A thief had pawned it, the story runs.

Another story, not well documented, is that Melvin H. Purvis, Department of Justice agent, once asked Jackie where John Dillinger was.

"He's robbing a bank in Indiana," was the answer.

"What bank?"

"Oh, that's too personal. I don't want to get bumped off."

ACCORDING to the story, the evening papers the same day carried a dispatch about Dillinger robbing a bank in South Bend, Indiana.

At Northwestern University Jackie was exhibited before the psychology class of Dr. John J. B. Morgan, psychologist. He amazed Dr. Morgan by defining sleeping sickness as "lethargic encephalitis" and shouting to a student that her name was Brunaleski Pigalle and that she hailed from Dallas, Texas.

He informed another girl that she would spend her holiday in a penitentiary. The student admitted that she intended doing just that, for her master's thesis.

At the conclusion, Dr. Morgan said to his class: "If you can say how it is done, you are smarter than I am."

"When I grow up, I'm going to be a parachute jumper," volunteered Jackie. "Or maybe a lawyer and say habeasas corpusus (his pronunciation)."

Recently, Jackie's press agent took him to see Arthur Greenwood, 7-year-old Brooklyn prodigy whose IQ is higher than Einstein's.

"Hello, Anita," Jackie said, when the maid opened the door. "It's Jackie. Let me in."

"You don't know me," protested the maid.

"Yes, I do. You're Anita Phillips. You come from Baltimore. Your parents came from Warsaw, Poland."

Flabbergasted, the maid admitted the party to the closely watched home of the Greenwood phenomenon, who was executing Bridge's "Sonata for the Piano." Arthur, startled, fractured several arpeggios.

"You're not a student at the Ethical School, where I go," he said grimly.

"I have my own tutor," replied Jackie. "What's this I hear about you passing an intelligence test with a rating of 230?"

"You are correctly informed," snooted Arthur.

"Are you trying to high hat me?" cried Jackie angrily.

That ended the visit.

'Ole' Davil Sea' Still a Menace

Recent Severe Storms—Among the Worst Since 1899—Did Fearful Damage to Navigation but the Percentage of Loss Is Being Steadily Reduced.

SINCE the days of Phenician traders and their puny galleys man has been attempting to make ships that are proof against the raw ferocity of the open sea. The wrack of the hurricane's wave, the chance of collision, the helplessness spread by the fog's shroud, the menace of fire, ice, reef and derelict have been reduced with the aid of science, but still the immutable sea takes its toll.

In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries nearly as many sailing vessels fell victim to pirate, reef, lee shore or the storm's fury as made port. In the nineteenth century, when steam was overcoming the supremacy of sail, the year 1854 was one of the worst for ocean tragedy. The Irish emigrant ship Tayleur was driven onto a lee shore with a loss of 380 lives; the steamer Georgia burned at New Orleans with a loss of 60; the steamer City of Glasgow left Liverpool for Philadelphia with 450 passengers and met an unknown fate; the Powhatan grounded on Long Beach, New York, and 311 perished; the troopship Lady Nugent foundered in an Indian Ocean storm with all 400 aboard; the Arctic sank in a collision in a fog off Cape Race and 350 died; the United States sloop of war Albany sailed for New York with 193 aboard and was never seen after she left Panama.

[illegible]e as the winter of 1898-99, two good-sized freighters left Eastern ports within a week of each other for Europe and never were seen [illegible] In 1909 the British steamer W[illegible]h, crack liner of her day, left Po[illegible]al for London and carried 300 [illegible] to the Port of Missing Ships.

Recently, battered and beaten from stem to stern and keel to truck by [illegible]en, spume-covered seas, lashed by roaring 100-mile-an-hour gales, proud liners and humble freighters [illegible]d from North Atlantic storms [illegible] five days late. Down in Davy Jones' locker lie the British collier Usworth, sunk 800 miles off Newfoundland; 15 of her crew were lost [illegible]n from a Belgian freighter [illegible] to her rescue; the Norwegian freighter Sisto, sunk 600 miles north of the Azores after the liner New York saved her crew of 16, and the French freighter Schraffine 24th, lost in the Bay of Biscay with her crew of 21, the only clew being a life preserver and part of a lifeboat that drifted ashore.

Four ships escaped similar fates by the narrowest of margins. The Japanese freighter Victoria Maru, while 500 miles north of the Azores, was hit by [illegible] waves that killed her captain and her chief officer, knocked her [illegible] officer overboard with the bridge and injured seven of her crew. Off Fire Island, the freighter Severance, with a disabled rudder, wallowed helplessly for 12 hours until she effected repairs. A Coast Guard cutter shot her two towing lines, one a 12-inch hawser, but the seas snapped them like thread. The sturdy two-masted fishing schooner Mary T. Goulard was swept by seas off Nova Scotia that washed the wheelhouse overboard, carrying the helmsmen with it. The Greek collier Meropi finally made port after sending an SOS when she lost her steering gear 500 miles off the Delaware Capes.

Mariners who last fall forecast an unusually severe winter season on the Atlantic, after pointing to abnormally high tides on the Baltic and "peculiar" late summer weather in Europe, are seeing their predictions borne out. But heavy weather is not taking the toll it did in 1898-99, or in the earlier days. Ships are stronger, and if their strength fails, there is the radio to help save them from the Port of Missing Ships.

Liners and most large freighters now are really ships within ships, since they have an "inner skin" above the outer one, separated from it by tubular framing, with the space between fitted with many water-tight compartments.

THE Queen Mary, launched last fall, has as an added safeguard against collision, an unusually strong continuous bulkhead extending 20 feet inside the run of shell plating on each side and so divided that damage could be confined to a small area. Liners also carry transverse bulkheads with hydraulically operated doors that are controlled from the bridge.

Safe as these huge liners are, compared to the average freighter squatting low in the water, they sometimes take a worse beating than a smaller vessel in the same storm. This is because the smaller one usually rises and settles with each big wave, while the liner thrusts through the seas, keeping an even keel, spanning the trough and resisting the waves as solidly as would a breakwater.

The principal strains a ship must withstand come when the ends are deeply immersed in two following waves and the midsection is without its usual support, or when a big wave supports the midships section and the ends are left in the troughs of the sea. The former is known as sagging and the latter as hogging.

There have been rare instances in which ships have been broken in two. In 1901 the British destroyer Cobra, fastest ship afloat, broke in two while bucking waves that had a 30 per cent slope. Shortly thereafter the British Admiralty made the first exhaustive study of the laws of stress and strain governing such conditions. A destroyer was drydocked, first with supports at bow and stern only, and the water lowered six inches at a time. The same experiment was carried out while the destroyer was supported in the middle only.

However, great storms generally mean little more to liners than the prospect of reaching port behind schedule with, at worst, a lifeboat or two washed away, a section of steel railing missing and a few twisted steel stanchions. The queens of the Atlantic disdainfully meet rolling mountains, their sharp bows knifing through and subduing the white-crested monsters. Sometimes, though, one will catch them the wrong way and then passengers tell of having encountered waves of 70, 80 and even 100 feet in height.

The majority of seamen agree that the fairly frequent larger waves run about 40 to 45 feet, with an occasional one reaching 60 feet. Interval between such waves varies from 300 to 500 feet. The United States Hydrographic office has two reports in recent years of waves said to have been 80 feet high. The estimates are regarded rather dubiously. Nevertheless, Vaughan Cornish, English geographer and foremost authority on waves, admits that the estimates are plausible.

Damage to the superstructure of large vessels, 80 feet or so above water, can easily be done by waves of 40 or 50 feet in height. Usually the damaging wave strikes when the ship is not on an even keel and when the stern is lifting as the bow digs into a new wave. As the volume of this wave gets under the bow it begins to lift and at the same time the wave that had raised her stern passes. Then, rising swiftly, the bow acts as a catapult for tons of water, hurling them high into the air, to crash down and sweep the decks.

While these huge waves race along at tremendous speed, they carry the surface water but a little distance with them. An ocean wave, scientists have discovered comparatively recently, is similar to the wave that can be sent through a loose piece of rope when one end is shaken up and down. The wave travels through the rope, but the rope has no forward motion. It merely rises and falls. A piece of timber, when a wave sweeps under, can be seen to rise and fall with a slight to and fro movement.

How a 40-foot wave may give the appearance of being 400 feet in height is explained by Cornish as follows: "There are conditions when waves look like mountains, or, at any rate, like large hills. This happens when the majority of the crests rise well above the line of sight, especially if the atmosphere be rather thick, so that minute detail is obliterated. Four or five ridges, with the intervening three or four troughs, then fill all the space between the eye and the horizon. Being mounted on a deck, there is a feeling or impression that the horizon is at the distance which it would have on land with such an eye-elevation. This would mean a mile or more from ride to ridge, which is 10 times the actual distance; and the apparent height is consequently increased in the same ratio, making a wave of 40 feet look as high as a hill of 400."

Buffeting received from such waves as these cause small freighters and ancient colliers to founder. Riding low in the water and perhaps carrying a cargo that may shift, the freighter runs into seas in which it can only do its best to batter and ram through the vast black and white hills and dark valleys that snarl down upon the vessel.

WAVES as merciless and devastating as they were when they assailed the frail craft of daring Vikings and Phenicians thud with smashing impact on the steel plates. The ship, like a living thing, bounds back, quivering as though run aground. Great steel braces and plates groan and creak as the smashing blows against the ship's sides sound a note of doom that echoes through the hull. The vessel charges into the seas again, dips as though she would plunge to the bottom, throws torrents of water onto the fore deck while the stern, lifted clear of the water, leaves the propellers to race wildly in the air, threatening to tear the engines away from their bedplates. The rudder is carried away and the vessel falls into a trough. An ominous tremor runs along the ship. Boats are torn out of their davits, the bridge carried away, hatches beaten in and holds filled as combers fall in thunderous cascades over the decks, the wind whipping shrouds of spray about the foundering ship as though to hide her fate from the skies.

Perhaps an SOS brings assistance as prompt as that of Captain Fritz Kruse of the liner New York who radioed he would reach the Sisto in two hours, and did so. As long as the distressed ship's radio works, rescuing ships can use direction finders to guide them, thus eliminating the chance of error in the calculated position of the ship.

The direction finder also is useful when a ship about to make port is delayed by fog and unable to fix her position by "shooting the sun." If the ship is approaching New York, the navigating officer will listen on the direction finder for the signals coming from the radio beacons on Cape Cod and on Nantucket Lightship. After getting the call sign he rotates the loop aerial to the direction of the first beacon and notes the bearing on the compass.

THE same procedure is gone through with the second beacon. The bearings then are marked on the chart with pencil lines, their intersection giving the position of the ship. As these beacons are left behind, others come into range and the course can be constantly checked.

Radio also allows the master of a ship to know hours in advance what weather he will encounter. Weather bulletins are broadcast several times each day by approximately 400 stations in 32 countries. In addition, nearly all the stations broadcast warnings such as locations of derelicts and loss or misplacement of navigation buoys. Broadcasting of time signals enables the navigator to correct the chronometers on which he is dependent when taking a sight of the sun or stars for latitude and longitude.

Ships on the same route discuss their weather problems in a casual manner, often giving each other valuable information.

"Hello, Excalibur," radios the Steel Navigator; "we're in latitude 43 degrees, 31 minutes, 10 seconds, longitude 60. How are you?"

"Not so good," comes the reply. "We're being pounded hard by a 70-mile gale in latitude 39 degrees, 32 minutes, 19 seconds that's coming toward you."

Another boon to sailors, particularly those whose lot it was to heave the great deep sea lead, with its 50-pound plumb and 100 fathoms or more of line, is the sonic sounding depth-finding machine. Instead of having to heave the lead, armed with tallow on the bottom, in order to bring up a sample of the ocean bed and so help determine the ship's position, all that is necessary is to watch the sonic depth finder. This electric instrument automatically measures the time necessary for a sound to travel from the ship to the ocean bottom and return as an echo. The period of time is transformed instantaneously into a depth measurement which is flashed on the face of the machine. Thus the

When the Backyard Pirates Searched for Gold—and Found It

This Being the Sea-Going Dry-Land Yarn of Buccaneer Jerry Miller (Aged 10) and His Jolly Crew, Wherein Is Included $480 Buried Long Ago by the Skipper's Great-Grandfather and etc.

DENVER.

THE good ship Hispaniola was a coal truck, Ben Gunn knew less of rum than of strawberry jam, all the language the ship's parrot spoke was what it could pick up from a bridge club, Spyglass Mountain was the Mulvaney's coal shed—but the pirates found buried treasure. And it was time they found something to square themselves, for, long before they reached that point on a recent afternoon, five Denver children were unmistakably in bad with their parents. Piracy is a venturesome occupation, even for 10-year-olds a thousand miles from blue water. Accidents are bound to happen. And accidents had happened.

It all began when Jerry Miller, 10 years old, came across a dog-eared copy of "Treasure Island." Jerry read it, and then his brother Donald, 9; LeRoy Jungerfermon, a playmate, and then the Miller boys' little sisters, Mary Lou and Marjorie.

Forthwith, Mary Lou and Marjorie became George Merry and Ben Gunn; LeRoy was Long John Silver; Donald restyled himself as Tom Morgan, and Jerry claimed the right of prior discovery to be both Jim Hawkins and the captain of the ship. But where was the ship?

Now it happened that in the rear of the home where the Millers lived, with their parents and their Grandpa Flaherty, was a yard, and beyond that fence was a vacant lot, and in the vacant lot a neighbor had left a coal truck. That was the Hispaniola.

Jerry had a piece of chalk in his pocket—what boy hasn't—and with it he wrote the name on the tall ship's grimy sides. Brooms and rags were sails and masts and flags. Mrs. Jungerfermon's Polly was hauled out to the Captain's cabin, but no device could make it swear as a good ship's parrot should.

The crew swarmed aloft, the captain took the helm, chanted "Yo ho ho" as he hauled up anchor, for the capstan was conveniently near the wheel, and surprisingly like the brake lever on a coal truck. The Hispaniola rolled down a gentle incline, ran aground on the Mulvaney's back fence—and Captain and crew ran afoul of the Mulvaney temper, to say nothing of the owner of the truck.

Captain Flint, the pirate's bird, became simply Polly, the kibitzer, back in the Jungerfermons' living room. The Hispaniola went back to the coal trade. The cutlasses returned to the bread board.

Now, a good pirate never gives up a treasure hunt. But Mrs. Miller happened to hear the plans.

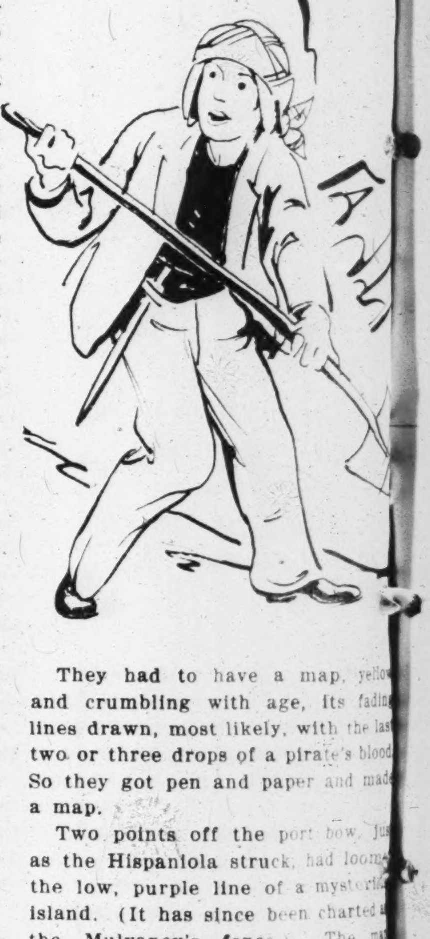
And they played something else, for a while. Fate had spoken. But Fate had to go downtown that afternoon, and the lure of buried treasure called again.



They had to have a map, yellow and crumbling with age, its fading lines drawn, most likely, with the last two or three drops of a pirate's blood. So they got pen and paper and made a map.

Two points off the port bow, just as the Hispaniola struck, had loomed the low, purple line of a mysterious island. (It has since been charted as the Mulvaney's fence.) The map showed Spyglass Mountain on that forbidden shore, right about where Mrs. Mulvaney kept her coal. Skeleton Island was across the alley, misnamed the Johnson garage, and bearings required to locate the "X" were provided by a tall tree that looked a lot like a telephone pole.

CAPTAIN JIM HAWKINS JERRY MILLER sighted his bearings, paced off his distance, drove his heel into the ground where the map said "X," spat upon his hands and called for a spade. A raid on coal sheds and basements equipped four of them. Marjorie stood watch for ene pirates for they might turn up at moment, disguised as Mrs. Miller.

The winter winds in Denver are pretty chilly for a tropical island, and Marjorie, with nothing to do to keep warm, shivered.

"Hurry up! I'm getting cold!" she called. Just then Captain Jerry's spade hit something hard.

"Lookeee!" he shrilled. "Pieces of Eight!"

He scooped up a gold coin and a hands dashed into the house to sh Grandpa Flaherty.

Grandpa dropped everything and got into the game with enthusiasm. In a few minutes they had uncovered $480 in gold. And Grandpa was able to explain the mystery of the long dead pirate who had buried it.

His father-in-law, Jerry's great-grandfather, was Michael Ford, who had no use for banks and kept his money buried. He had died suddenly 15 years ago, without telling where it was, and a long search had failed.

All was forgiven. Grandpa, hoarder, exchanged the gold for currency at the Denver mint, the children got pirate costumes for Christmas and, so far as we can say this far in the game, lived happily ever after.

The 'Mercy Murder' That Stirred All England

Sentenced to Death for Killing Her Imbecile Son, the Jury and Public Opinion Asked for Reprieve—and the King Granted It.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

"I DID it in mercy." That was all she had to say, that quiet, calm little woman of 62, who was recently sentenced to death at the Leeds Assizes for the murder of her 30-year-old imbecile son. They were the only words spoken by Mrs. May Brownhill since she had pleaded "Not guilty" at the beginning of the hearing.

But they will not hang "the Mercy Murderess," as she has come to be called. The British Home Secretary, following the strong recommendation of the jury which convicted her, has, with the consent of King George, granted her a reprieve. The death sentence has been reduced to one of penal servitude for life. Now her lawyers and her husband, a commercial traveler, are working hard for her release.

It was a tragic tale which was unfolded in the hushed Assizes Court at Leeds on that Saturday morning; a story paradoxically different from the usual murder case. Instead of the motive of hate or fear or jealousy, there was only love and undying devotion.

There were many doctors and psychologists in court when the accused, Mrs. Brownhill, 62 years old, of Westminster drive, Burn Bridge, Pannal, near Harrogate, walked firmly into the dock and was charged with killing her 30-year-old son, Denis, by gassing him on the night of September 17.

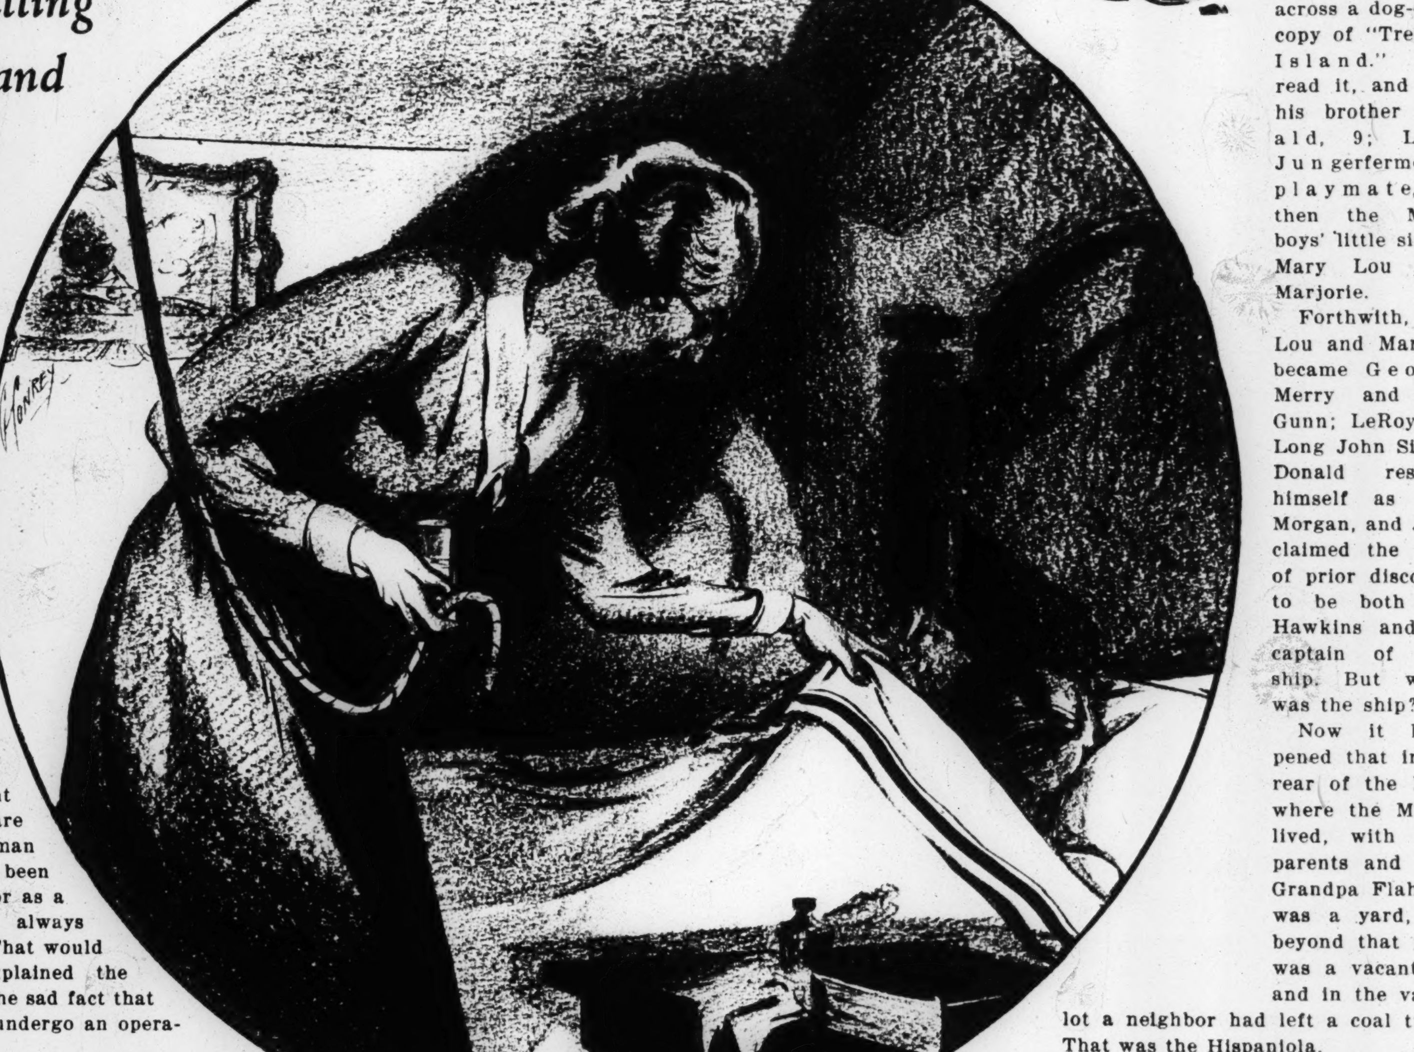
Since her arrest and committal for trial, Mrs. Brownhill had been in a hospital. For days her life was despaired of. Even up to a few days before the trial it was uncertain whether she would be able to stand the strain of the ordeal. But her calm courage nerved her to face her Judge and jury. Dressed in a neat brown coat, with a brown fur collar, Mrs. Brownhill stepped into the dock and, in a firm, cultured voice, pleaded, "Not guilty."

The court was strangely still as Mr. Harold Sutcliffe, the prosecutor, rose to put the case of "Rex vs. May Brownhill." But it was a case which sounded more like a speech for the defense than for the prosecution.

"This woman stands charged with the murder of her imbecile son, to whom she has devoted her life," he began. "It is a case so sad that it is seldom met with, even in a court of this character."

Then he went on to tell how Mrs. Brownhill had devoted herself, night and day, to taking care of her son — a man whose existence had been described by a doctor as a living death. She always slept in his room. That would have continued, explained the prosecutor, but for the sad fact that she was ordered to undergo an operation.

"She knew it would be a serious one," he continued, "and she said she would not mind but for Denis. What was to happen to him, was the problem. The mother, herself, suffered a good deal of pain, but her anxiety was about Denis. 'I don't like leaving him behind,' she said to her domestic help.



"I have just put Denis to sleep," she said.

"ON the morning of Sept. 18, Denis did not appear and when Dr. Holroyd, the family doctor, arrived at the house and asked Mrs. Brownhill what was the matter, she replied:

" 'I have just put Denis to sleep. I gave him 100 aspirins and then placed the gas tube in his mouth.' "

Denis was found dead in bed, the body covered with a quilt. There were no signs of a struggle and none of violence having been committed. A post-mortem examination revealed that he had died from coal gas poisoning.

Mr. Sutcliffe admitted that the story commanded the sympathy and pity of all. "But it is no answer," he declared, "to a charge of murder to say that life has been taken for love. Life is sacred. Doctors have no right to take it. It is not for a parent—even a mother—to judge that her son shall die."

Then two neighbors gave evidence for the prosecution, though it was more like evidence for the defense.

Miss Janette Sugden: "Mrs. Brownhill was a most wonderful mother. Denis was her only thought."

Miss Kate Suddick: "Mrs. Brownhill was devoted to Denis and had looked after him without relief, even sleeping with one eye and one ear open. She never took a holiday."

Next, Dr. Holroyd, the family physician, replying to Mr. Norman Birkett, K. C., counsel for the defense, said the form of death was painless. He agreed that Denis' life had been "a veritable living death." Without the operation which Mrs. Brownhill was ordered to undergo, he said, she would have died in about six months, and her only fear was what would become of Denis.

Police Inspector Foster of Knaresborough testified that when he first saw Mrs. Brownhill she said to him: "I will tell you the truth. I don't want any solicitor to defend me, but when Denis is laid out I want to see him."

When the Inspector charged her with "maliciously and wilfully" murdering her son, she replied:

"Not maliciously—I simply put my boy to sleep."

There was only one witness for the defense, Charles D'Oyly Grange, senior surgeon of Harrogate Royal Hospital. When he told Mrs. Brownhill she must undergo an operation she asked: "How long shall I live without an operation?" He told her six months.

"She seemed," said Dr. Grange, "to disregard her own pain. Her only concern was what was to become of her son."

THAT was the case for the prosecution. Then rose Mr. Norman Birkett, one of the most famous King's Counsels and trial lawyers in this country, to address the jury for the defense. He hitched his gown a little more over his shoulders, turned his keen face toward the "twelve good men and true" in the jury box and began:

"No such story, in its sadness and poignancy, has ever come before this court. This differs from all other murder cases.

"In place of hate, there is undying devotion. There was once a great plea, made to a court: 'Arrest the law a little, do a little wrong to do a greater good.'

"Seldom has human love and devo-

LONDON.

COUNTESS ELIZABETH DE PRET-ROOSE is back at her London mansion, recovering from the news—announced to her a few days ago in court — that she will have to give the use of her Leicestershire estate and nearly half of her $115,000 American income to her husband, whom she blames for the unsanctioned status of her relations with another man.

She had promised him all that, mostly for the support of their two children, in a separation agreement on March 6, 1933. But, with nearly two years for afterthoughts, she attempted to have the court set it aside on the grounds that she entered it "under the coercion, duress and undue influence of her husband."

The coercion, she testified, amounted to an ultimatum that she choose between her children and the "other man," later revised as, substantially, "You need not give up Major Clarke, and you need not give up your children, but you must make me a heavy payment." But now the court has held that she not only has to give the "heavy payment," but also must give up the children except for half the summer, Christmas and Easter vacations.

But let no one think the Countess Elizabeth de Pret-Roose will be impoverished by the decision. She has a life interest in a $5,000,000 trust fund established by her American grandfather, the late George F. Baker, Wall Street banker, and a life income from the $1,375,000 estate of her Anglo-American father, the late Charles T Garland, sportsman and turf enthusiast.

With the $55,000 payment to Count Jacques de Pret-Roose all squared up, she will still have $60,000 a year after all taxes are paid. With his hold on her country place, Gaddesby Hall, tightened by the courts, she still has Berkeley House in London. Plainly, then, it's no mere matter of beer and skittles that irks her. The rub is, that although $20,000 a year goes to each of her sons—John and Michael, respectively 8 and 9 years old—$15,000 a year goes to Count Jacques now and $…000 a year after February 1, 1937. His chief avocation is hunting and riding to hounds. And still he makes no move toward giving the Countess her divorce.

In the hearing her attorney coolly suggested his failure to do so was purely a matter of money. Quite as coolly, Countess Elizabeth admitted the state of affairs between her and Major Clarke of the British Army, acknowledged that, in the circumstances, they wouldn't provide the best sort of home atmosphere for the children, but deftly passed the buck to her husband, whose religion forbids divorce.

Michael and John de Pret-Roose.

"If I had been able to marry Major Clarke it would have been all right for my children," she said.

"Don't let us mince words," said her husband's lawyer, Gavin Simonds, K. C. "You think there is nothing wrong in continuing your adulterous association with Major Clarke?"

Her answer made it clear that to her the only wrong thing about the association was that it was illegal, and that she would have made it legal if her husband had given her the chance. For contrast, she related that Major Clarke's wife, formerly her friend, had done the friendly thing and divorced him.

TEN years ago, when Count and Countess de Pret-Roose were married, he was 32 years old, a widower and she was not yet 20 and a ward in chancery.

Right there, the Countess told newspaper men after the trial, her money began "penalizing" her. I took Gaddesby Hall because of my husband's interest in hunting and shooting," she explained. "I myself do not hunt or shoot.

"But I was very happy at first over the birth of my two little boys. There is just a year between them, and their baby days kept me very happy.

"Then, just after the older was 4, my husband and I began to drift apart. We found there was no big mutual interest between us.

"I fell deeply in love with Major Clarke. We had a great deal in common, as our five years' friendship has proved."

Opening the case in the Chancery Court, King's Bench Division, her attorney, Sir Patrick Hastings, waited for no disclosures, but laid his cards face up at the outset. His client, he said, was in this position: she had formed a very obvious attachment for a man other than her husband; and, therefore, it was essential to bear in mind that she was, at all times, in a very awkward predicament.

Taking the stand, Countess Elizabeth said she met Major Clarke in 1930, and they had been companions since then. Two years later Count de Pret-Roose—born a Belgian, but now an officer in the British Army—mentioned the affair to her.

It was in October, 1932, she specified, in the forenoon, and Count Jacques burst into her room in Gaddesby Hall before she was "half dressed." His words, as she recalled, were: "You must choose between your children and this man. If you choose him, you do not see your children again."

She explained that he threatened to take them to Belgium. She wanted the children and, therefore, in the following March, signed the deed.

Another view of the Countess.

Count de Pret-Roose denied he had ever threatened to take the children away. He admitted, in court that his wife was devoted to them.

He related that he had lived happily with her until she got acquainted with Major Clarke. The friendship became food for London gossip in 1931, he said, and on several occasions he remonstrated with her, with special emphasis on the fact that she was the mother of two boys.

HE TOLD of chasing "the fellow" out of the house, telling her that he would not allow him there, and instructing the servants at Gaddesby Hall that, if Major Clarke called again, he was to be thrown out.

The result was a bitter row, and the removal of the Countess de Pret-Roose to London, where she opened up her own establishment. But she returned occasionally to the Leicestershire place. On one such occasion, he said, she declared she could not continue that sort of life, that he could go on living at Gaddesby with the children and she would make proper financial provision for its maintenance. Next morning, he related, she said she intended to take the children with her to London, would see and entertain whom she wished, and he would have no place there.

"To my mind," added Count Jacques, "the inference was that this man Clarke, with whom she had been continuously associating, and who was the cause of all this, would be there, and that she meant to bring the children in constant contact with him.

"I considered this a monstrous suggestion, and I told her I would have nothing to do with it whatever. There has never been any suggestion on my part of consenting to such a proposal."

"You knew you had grounds for divorce?" Sir Patrick asked on cross-examination.

"No."

"You knew that, at your will, she was bound—if she so decided—to go on living with Major Clarke for the rest of her life and be unable to marry him unless you took divorce proceedings?"

"I was approached by her sister, and I said I would divorce her provided the children's welfare was safeguarded."

"Were you prepared to allow your wife to live with Major Clarke if she paid you, or did money come into it at all?"

His attorney, Simonds, provided a stir, when he announced a counterclaim—overdue payments for last year, which were discontinued in February. Simonds argued that it was hopeless for her to attempt to establish "undue influence" when she had been advised by "most eminent" legal counsel, and, for months before the execution of the deed, had been "free from influence of any sort."

Likewise, Simonds added, there was no proof of "coercion and duress." Even if there had been a threat to take the children to Belgium—which his client had denied—the Countess was not affected by it, for a few days before the date of the deed, she wrote to her husband: "I have as much right to the children as you. Legally you cannot take them away from me."

Perhaps that letter was not inconsistent with the validity of testimony to the threat, said Simonds, but certainly it wiped out the contention of duress.

Sir Patrick replied that plainly Countess Elizabeth had not acted of her own free and unfettered will and that, if he understood the term, was the meaning of duress. It had been made evident, he said, that Count Jacques had first offered her the choice of her children or her lover, and then agreed she need not give up either, provided she made a satisfactory settlement.

"I have not the faintest shadow of doubt," commented Justice Bennett, "that, when she promised to pay her husband sums of money, the Countess knew what she was doing, and that she intended to do it. In the preparation of the deed both the Countess and her husband were advised by solicitors.

"THAT she was influenced, on the other hand, by fear of losing her children, is also, I think, established. But I am by no means satisfied at present that this is duress."

He ordered her to pay $50,833 due for last year, $4166 for that month and the full $55,000 for 1935 by February 1. Countess Elizabeth returned to Berkeley House and called in the reporters who had covered the hearing.

"The children have never known anything about my love for Major Clarke," she said. "He has come to lunch like other guests, but he has never spent a night under the same roof with them. Major Clarke never once saw me when the boys spent last summer with me in Sussex. I would not for the world lessen their faith in their father.

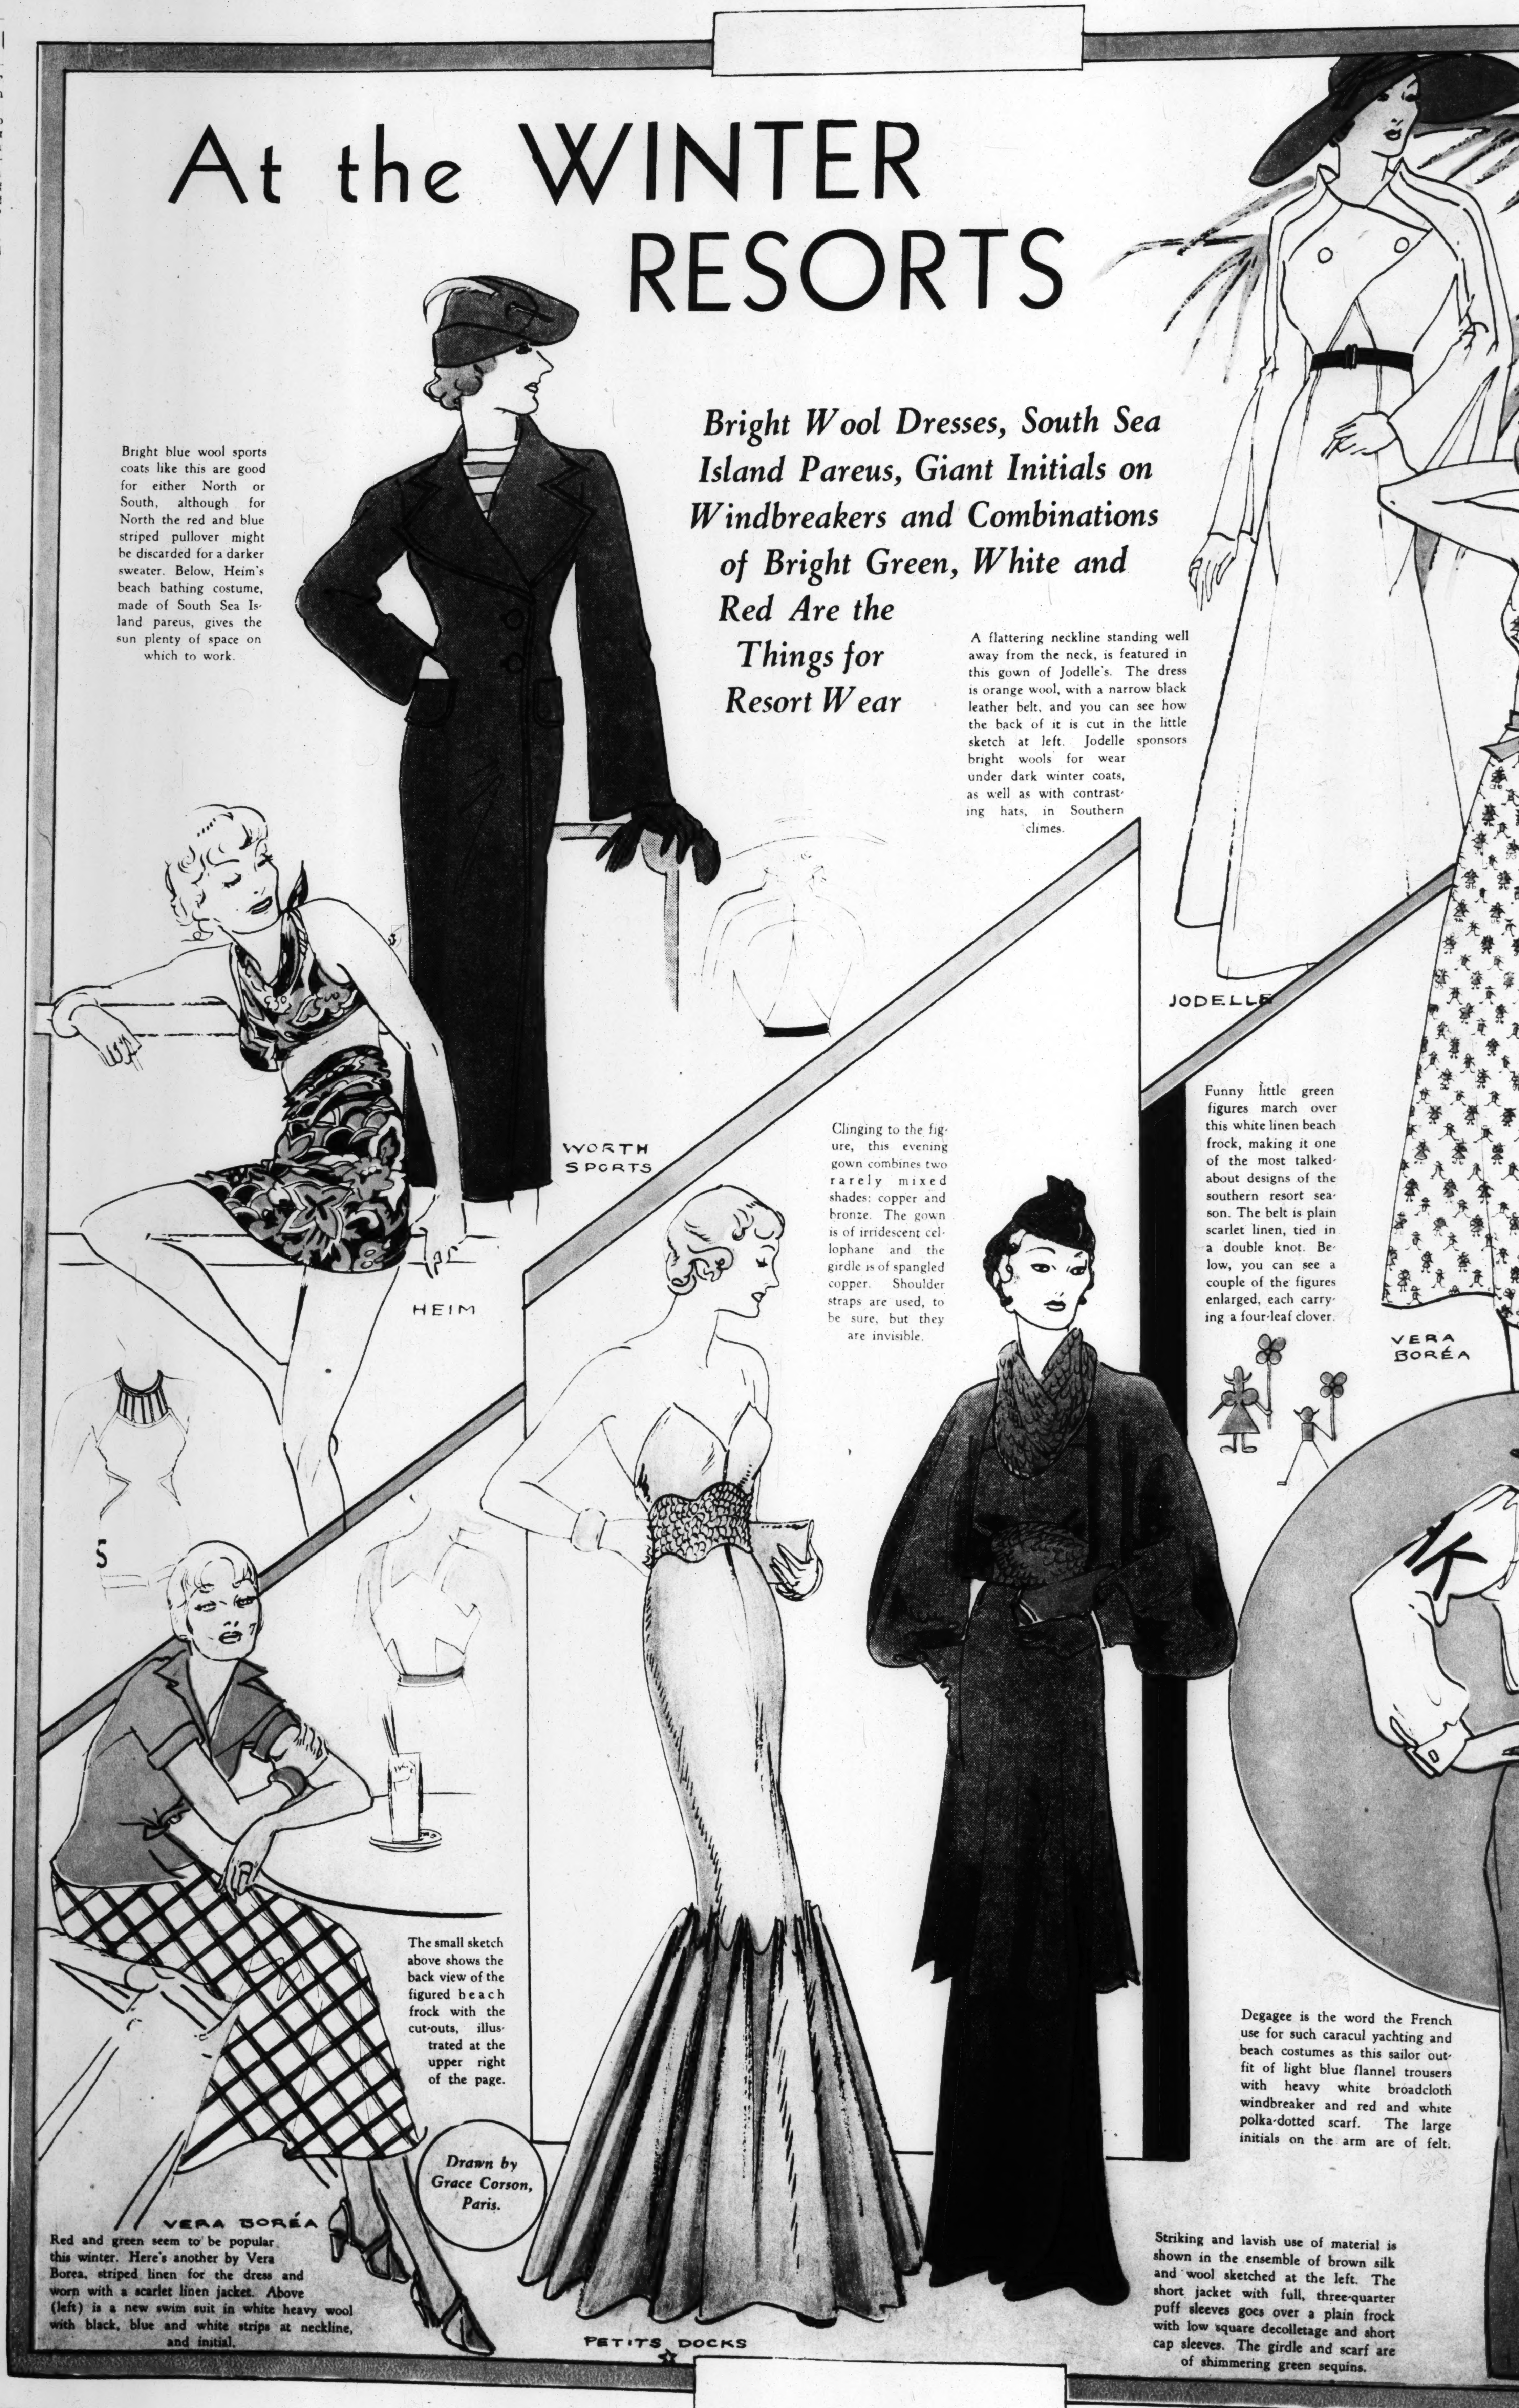
"At the moment the boys take it as natural that their father and mother should live apart. I like Sussex and the Count likes Leicestershire. Major Clarke would, of course, be a splendid second father to them. But this is denied me.

"My husband does not believe in divorce. If he had filed a petition against me I might, in spite of my being at fault, have won the custody of my children, because they are entirely dependent on me, and always have been for support.

"I am not defending the morality of my love for Major Clarke. I love him, that is all."

At the WINTER RESORTS

Bright Wool Dresses, South Sea Island Pareus, Giant Initials on Windbreakers and Combinations of Bright Green, White and Red Are the Things for Resort Wear



Bright blue wool sports coats like this are good for either North or South, although for North the red and blue striped pullover might be discarded for a darker sweater. Below, Heim's beach bathing costume, made of South Sea Island pareus, gives the sun plenty of space on which to work.

Clinging to the figure, this evening gown combines two rarely mixed shades: copper and bronze. The gown is of irridescent cellophane and the girdle is of spangled copper. Shoulder straps are used, to be sure, but they are invisible.

Funny little green figures march over this white linen beach frock, making it one of the most talked-about designs of the southern resort season. The belt is plain scarlet linen, tied in a double knot. Below, you can see a couple of the figures enlarged, each carrying a four-leaf clover.

Drawn by Grace Corson, Paris.

Degagee is the word the French use for such caracul yachting and beach costumes as this sailor outfit of light blue flannel trousers with heavy white broadcloth windbreaker and red and white polka-dotted scarf. The large initials on the arm are of felt.

Striking and lavish use of material is shown in the ensemble of brown silk and wool sketched at the left. The short jacket with full, three-quarter puff sleeves goes over a plain frock with low square decolletage and short cap sleeves. The girdle and scarf are of shimmering green sequins.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

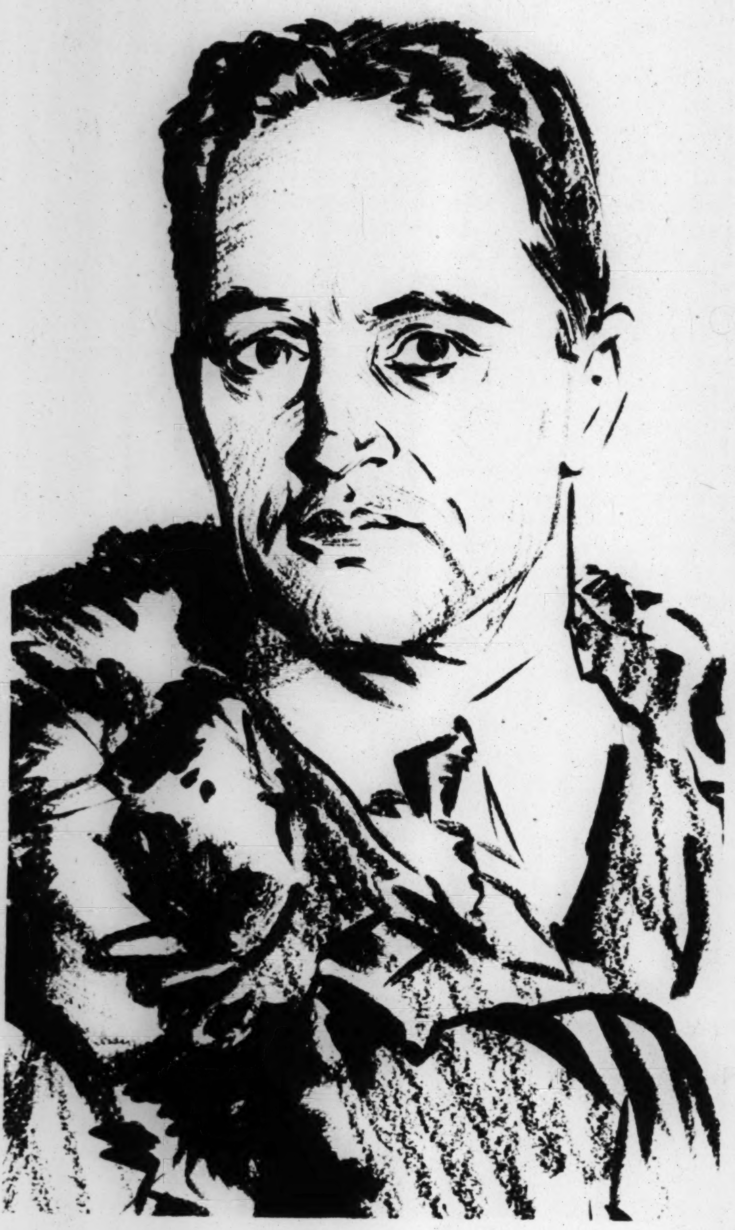
CAPTAIN HARRY MANNING
ELLIS PARKER

SEA HERO MANNING SAVES HIS OWN LIFE—In the AIR

IT IS Christmas Day, and a dull, brooding afternoon. The weather chart at Roosevelt Field promises Long Island a rainy or snowy day. It is good weather for aviators to be celebrating the day with their families. But early in the afternoon a short, dark, curly-headed man, handsome in fur-collared flying suit, goes out to a private plane after a chat with some friends around the hangar. He is well-known and liked around the field, for Harry Manning, Captain of the liner Manhattan, is considered a cool hand at the controls and a keen amateur. He never has any trouble picking up a plane when he wants to take a jaunt during shore leave in America, and he has 200 hours flying experience.

The plane Captain Manning takes off in is a little monocoupe with a 90 horsepower motor. It soars up from the field and circles out over Mineola. But suddenly Manning notices his plane is bucking and vibrating. An instant later he sees the cause: his propellor has split. Just then the tip of one blade breaks off. Meanwhile the plane is shuddering like a tortured bird. The shattered blade has severed the ground wire to the magneto, making it impossible to cut off the motor. Captain Manning looks down at the neat rows of houses under him. He feels for his parachute and finds it strapped on in good order. He notices that the unbalanced propellor has started to jerk the engine from its frame. The cowling buckles under its thump.



Captain Harry Manning.

MANNING is headed back, by this time, but long rows and little squares of houses stretch out in all directions under him. It is impossible to glide owing to the shattered magneto wire. Then the gas and oil lines are shattered and the man at the controls is covered with a dense spray from severed pipe ends. There seems to be no immediate fire hazard, but if there were a fire he would be a living torch in his saturated clothes. He looks down again; there isn't any question but that the wisest thing he could do would be to bail out. But Manning looks down and sees the neat clusters of houses; hundreds of quiet families are celebrating Christmas. . . . He decides to risk it.

It took an interminable half hour to get the plane down on the flying field. Manning made a perfect, three-point landing. Some air officials from the Department of Commerce were among the small crowd that watched his grim struggle. They all run out to greet him and marvel at his heroism.

"Forget it!" he tells them disparagingly, and starts walking towards the hangar. "I wonder where the plane would have landed if I'd used the 'chute,' " he remarks aside to a friend, taking his arm and leading him along faster. "Come on, let's get back to town." They drive away while congratulations are left hanging on the lips of the Department of Commerce men. Those who examined the plane, the motor hanging in its frame by two twisted bolts, said the flight couldn't possibly have lasted more than two minutes longer. It was almost a miracle that he made it.

The name of this indifferent hero has ceased to be a by-word for courage among the general public but a few remembered, when that story was talked around the other day, that Captain Harry Manning was the young chief officer who became the man of the hour when the S. S. America rescued the crew of the foundering Italian freighter, Florida, in 1929. It was only five years ago, but Manning's friend and superior, Captain Fried, had tried in vain to shift public adulation to his first officer, the real hero of the occasion. Still, Manning's part wasn't at all disregarded; it was only that Fried had other rescues to his credit, while his 32-year-old mate was practically unknown. The young officer was feted and lauded in the press and given over $3000 by admirers; he was officially welcomed, unofficially ticker-taped in best 1929 fashion; his owners cited him as "one of the most competent men we ever had"; the Secretary of the Navy (he is a Naval Reserve lieutenant) praised him in the terse language of officialdom; cigarette companies besieged him (successfully) with requests for ad testimonials. But six months later he came to a police court in Jamaica, a New York suburb, to "get off" a friend who had been caught speeding while rushing him to a hospital with a serious infection; and the judge seemed never to have heard of him. "I guess the keys to the city aren't good out here," Manning said as they walked out, $25 poorer.

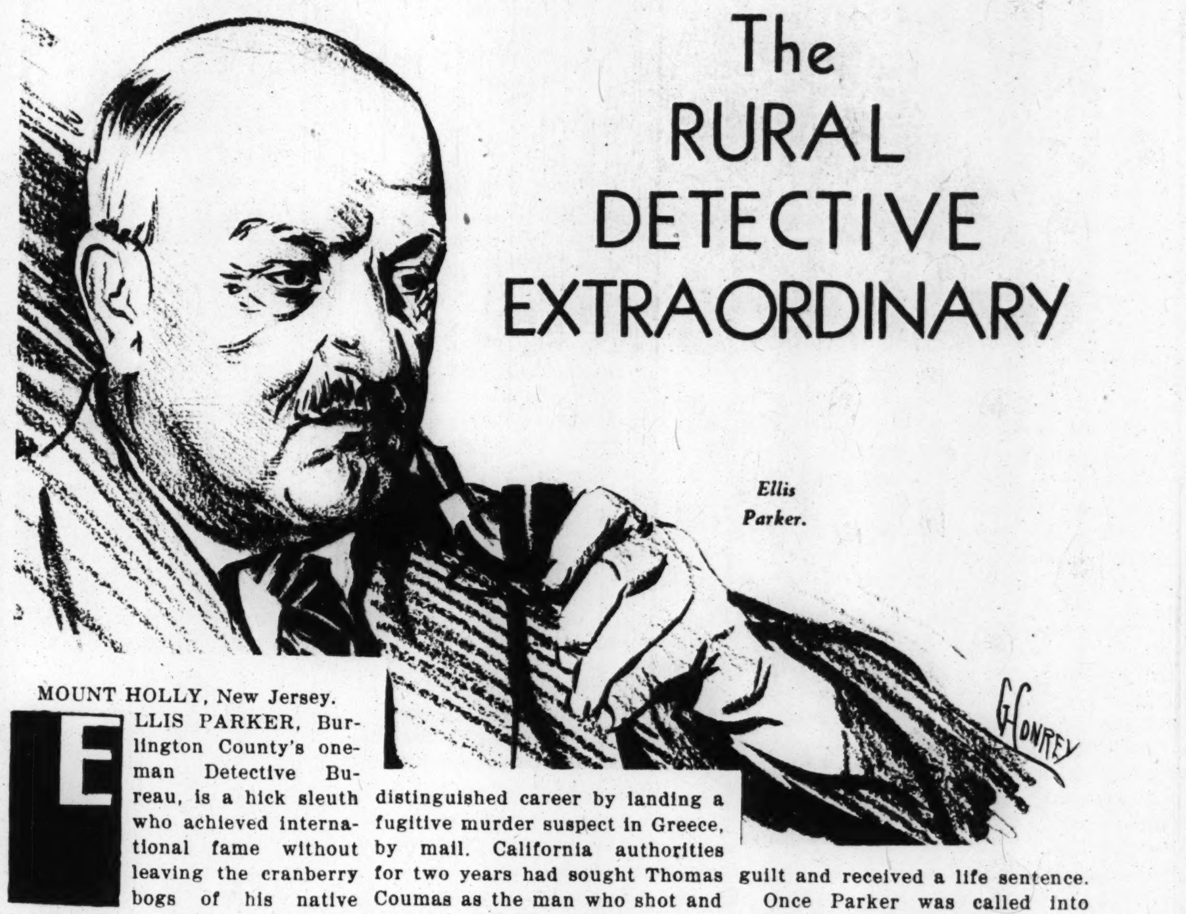
The America was heading for New York through a gale of 65-mile an hour velocity when she received an SOS from the little Italian cargo boat, distressed by a multitude of damages 700 miles off the Virginia Capes. The Florida's crew had lived for four days on fruit and were in horrible shape. When the America located her after 24 hours of brilliant navigation, the Italians had knives and poison ready for mass suicide. Captain Fried, who had referred to his amazing rescue of the Antinoe's crew in 1926 as "only one of the little things that happen at sea," proved himself a fine navigator by locating the slowly-moving Florida at all. But from that time on it was First Officer Manning's turn.

With a picked crew of eight volunteers, the young man put out into mountainous seas in a lifeboat. Even with the wind astern it wasn't possible to make the quarter mile to the Florida in less than an hour. Most of the time both ships were hidden behind the immense waves, whipped by a snowy wind; it was incredibly cold. They reached the exhausted, half-naked crew of 32, and a seaman in the lifeboat's bow ordered them in Italian to catch a line and make it fast. Then one man at a time was hauled aboard. Once the line broke and a second had to be thrown aboard the Florida. The rescued seamen were packed in the bottom of the lifeboat like sardines—for ballast. But afterwards some had to be drafted to help pull the oars. The gale had been increasing all the time and was a full-fledged hurricane. It was a long, discouraging return pull with an overloaded boat and overwhelming headwinds. Captain Fried watched tensely from his bridge. "It was a horrible thing to look at," he said afterwards. But in the end they got all the men aboard; the Florida's crew were so weak that not one could get aboard unassisted; three had broken bones and all were bruised and helpless as children. Manning himself was hurt when a scared Italian made a wild leap for a cargo net and fell back on him. When he tried to catch a ladder and pull himself aboard the America, he dropped powerless into the surging water and was rescued by a seaman.

He had gone to sea as a lark in 1914 when some friends urged him to join them at the Nautical Training School aboard the Newport. It didn't take long to persuade him that he hated the sea. He takes cold easily and is physically unfit to stand a wetting. After a storm he usually has to take to his cabin for a day or so, quite ill. He was trapped by the World War and afterwards he was so distinguished for his work as a transport officer sailing to Russia and Japan that he couldn't give up the career. On several occasions he was the youngest man to captain a passenger ship. After the war he was second officer of the Leviathan, first officer of the United States Line's President Harding and chief officer of the President Roosevelt. He became acting Captain of the America after the Florida rescue, and since then has become Captain of the Manhattan, his present berth.

Captain Manning has been an aviation enthusiast for a long time. In 1930 he got his private pilot's license after learning to fly at Roosevelt Field.

The RURAL DETECTIVE EXTRAORDINARY



Ellis Parker.

MOUNT HOLLY, New Jersey.

ELLIS PARKER, Burlington County's one-man Detective Bureau, is a hick sleuth who achieved international fame without leaving the cranberry bogs of his native heath. For years, as his fame for getting his man has spread, Parker, fat, witty and genial, has been deluged with offers to handle the investigations of big corporations at fat salaries. But in his 40 years of service he has never given in to the call of luxury. He has raised a family of nine children on a salary that has never exceeded $2500, roughly what a rookie patrolman in New York gets.

For a few summers he was lured to the University of North Carolina to lecture on the art of man-hunting to police officials from all over the country, but he gave that up. Too much spotlight. He laughs at the title of Sherlock Holmes in his hearty, rural way, puffs on a pipe (usually a corncob) and insists he merely tries to figure what a certain man would do in a certain situation and then puts the finger on him.

A few months ago he capped a distinguished career by landing a fugitive murder suspect in Greece, by mail. California authorities for two years had sought Thomas Coumas as the man who shot and killed Miss Olive Taylor, teacher, before her pupils in a grade school in Stockton, California.

Recalling the genius of Parker, the District Attorney of San Joaquin County wired him for aid. Parker sat down in his office, not with microscope and test tube, but with pencil and paper, and in a few weeks had traced Coumas to Athens, where the fugitive was arrested and extradited.

Parker says his most difficult case was the murder of Sergeant Michael Gregor of St. Louis, who disappeared from Camp Dix in 1921. Gregor's sister wrote from St. Louis that in a dream she had seen his battered body on the camp reservation, and an intensive search confirmed the dream and almost made Parker a spiritualist. Almost a year later Parker caused the sudden arrest of every man in Gregor's company. One soldier stammered in trying hastily to remember a long-forgotten alibi. Later he confessed his guilt and received a life sentence.

Once Parker was called into consultation in Camden, where officials had been foundering for months trying to solve a bank robbery in which a messenger had been killed. Inside three weeks the yap from Mount Holly had found the answer and started two murderers on their way to the electric chair.

IN ANOTHER instance he arrested the wife of a man he suspected of murder. Learning the woman was superstitious, he hauled out a deck of cards and pretended he could read her mind by the cards. She fell for the ruse, broke down and cried that her husband, a fugitive, was the killer. He was electrocuted.

Only Parker's children baffle him. Four have eloped without arousing a preliminary suspicion in the breast of their astute father.

tion been shown in a higher light. The act was not a long-premeditated one. It was the act of one suddenly confronted with the fact that death was very near to her and her thought was all of what was to become of her son."

No more. There was nothing more that Mr. Birkett could say. It was a plea for mercy to the jury.

Then Mr. Justice Goddard summed up. It was not suggested, he declared, that the charge could be reduced to manslaughter, nor could it be pleaded that it was an act of insanity.

"The time may come—we don't know," he continued, "when it may be the law of this country that an imbecile, an idiot, may be sent to merciful death. That is not the law at the present time, and neither you nor I have the right to make laws. We have to take the law as it is, always remembering that in other and higher hands mercy may be extended."

Here he was obviously referring to the Home Secretary's power to recommend to the King that a death sentence be commuted.

"No person in this country," the Judge concluded, "has the right to take the life of any other human being because he or she thinks it would be better for that human being to die."

That concluded the trial. The jury filed out to consider its verdict. Mrs. Brownhill was led gently away to another room to await her fate. But not for long. In five minutes the jury was back in the courtroom and the prisoner again facing it.

In a tense silence, the foreman pronounced the word "Guilty." Then he added: "We wish to add the strongest recommendation to mercy."

Mrs. Brownhill, who had been standing while the verdict was announced, then quietly summed up the whole of the defense, in five words:

The Judge stood up. He put on the dreaded "black cap" and pronounced sentence of death by hanging, adding: "I have nothing to say beyond the fact that the recommendation will be forwarded to the proper authorities."

Mrs. Brownhill was taken downstairs, walking without assistance, dignified and calm, despite the fate before her. But perhaps she knew then that she was not to die on the scaffold. For public sentiment throughout the whole country was insistent that the extreme penalty for murder was not meant for such as she. In any event, three days later, the Home Secretary announced that he had "advised" the King to reprieve Mr. Brownhill.

Now that same public sentiment is hoping that Mrs. Brownhill will not have to undergo penal servitude for life; that she may be released from prison. It is within the power of the Home Secretary to give her her freedom at any time he thinks fit. When that time comes, said her husband, "we hope to start life anew."

By curious coincidence, there came near to being a parallel case at the Old Bailey Criminal Court here but six days after Mrs. Brownhill's trial. Mrs. Harriet Cooper, aged 57, was sentenced to 12 months' imprisonment on her plea of guilty of attempting to murder her young daughter and of attempted suicide. It was stated during the trial that she suffered from an obsession that her daughter was going blind.

Mr. Justice Hawke, passing sentence, said he was sending her to prison in her own interest, so that she could be looked after and no doubt recover her health.

THE widespread public interest in (to give it a detective story flavor) "The Mercy Murder Case" has resulted in a revival of the perennial discussion of the "right to kill" under such circumstances.

Bernard Shaw, whose opinion is always sought on such occasions, is in favor of an extension of the law to include the right to kill.

"In the present case," he said, "this unfortunate woman did something which should have been taken off her hands by some public authority. When it comes to killing an individual, you cannot leave that to a private person. If the thing has to be done, it should be done quite carefully."

Dr. C. K. Millard, Medical Officer of Health for Leicester, recently drafted a bill, with expert legal advice, to give doctors the right to kill patients whom they consider are suffering from incurable diseases. Discussing the Leeds case, he admitted that it was a difficult subject, declaring:

"My bill is based on the consent of the person concerned. The operation would be entirely voluntary and therefore the question of imbeciles and idiots being put away would not arise. It might, however, be extended to include these sufferers. But in such a matter it would be wise, I think, to go step by step.

'Ole' Davil Sea' Still a Menace

navigator can "see" the hills and valleys of the ocean bed over which his ship is passing. In much the same way that an aviator guides himself across the country by studying the land beneath him, the navigator can ascertain his position providing the hills and valleys he has "seen" have been accurately charted.

With this in mind, the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey recently finished a sonic chart of the western terminus of the trans-Atlantic steamship lanes. Four surveying ships spent two years charting this Georges Bank region. The submerged plateau extends 200 miles past Nantucket and is 20,000 square miles in area. It marks the southern limits of the glaciers of the Ice Age.

Three outstanding "landmarks" were discovered on the southern edge of the bank, near the westbound trans-Atlantic lane. After passing the 100-fathom curve that marks the general off-shore limits of the bank, the depths decrease until they suddenly increase to 300 to 500 fathoms, giving notice of one of the valleys. They indicate the ship's position long before Nantucket Lightship is neared.

The gyroscope has added greatly to safety and convenience at sea. On warships, liners and yachts it is being used to stabilize the vessels and keep them from rolling. It is a part of the gyrocompass which keeps pointing to true north as long as the power to keep it spinning is maintained. Deviation of the compass, caused by the magnetism of the vessel or her cargo is eliminated.

Even the helmsman, until recently the man on whom the ship's safety always rested, has been supplanted. The "iron mike" now holds the course without human hands to guide it. Only when a liner is entering or leaving port is it necessary for human hands to hold the wheel.

On the liners the dread menace of fire is confronted by smoke-detecting apparatus so sensitive that the smoking of a pipe in forbidden parts of the ship can be recorded at once on the bridge.

IN engine rooms and other places where fire would be especially dangerous there are systems for flooding the spaces with carbon dioxide. Impregnated sand and high-pressure water mains and sprinkler systems also are available. Fireproof draft doors are located where they can be used to confine an outbreak to a small area.

Although science has put checks on most of the hazards of the ocean, a Vestris still goes to sea overloaded, a Titanic hits an iceberg and there are boats for only half the occupants of the ship, a La Bourgogne is rammed in a fog and the crew, panic stricken, takes to the boats, with one woman out of the 300 aboard being saved; a Morro Castle catches fire and 130 die, a Havana goes on a reef. The human equation is still the deciding factor.

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costumes correctly.

This week's star is Pat Patterson. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by her in these roles in the following movies: Valerie in "Love Time"; Pat Laurie in "Call It Luck," and Wanda Gale in "Bottoms Up."

Next week: Franchot Tone.

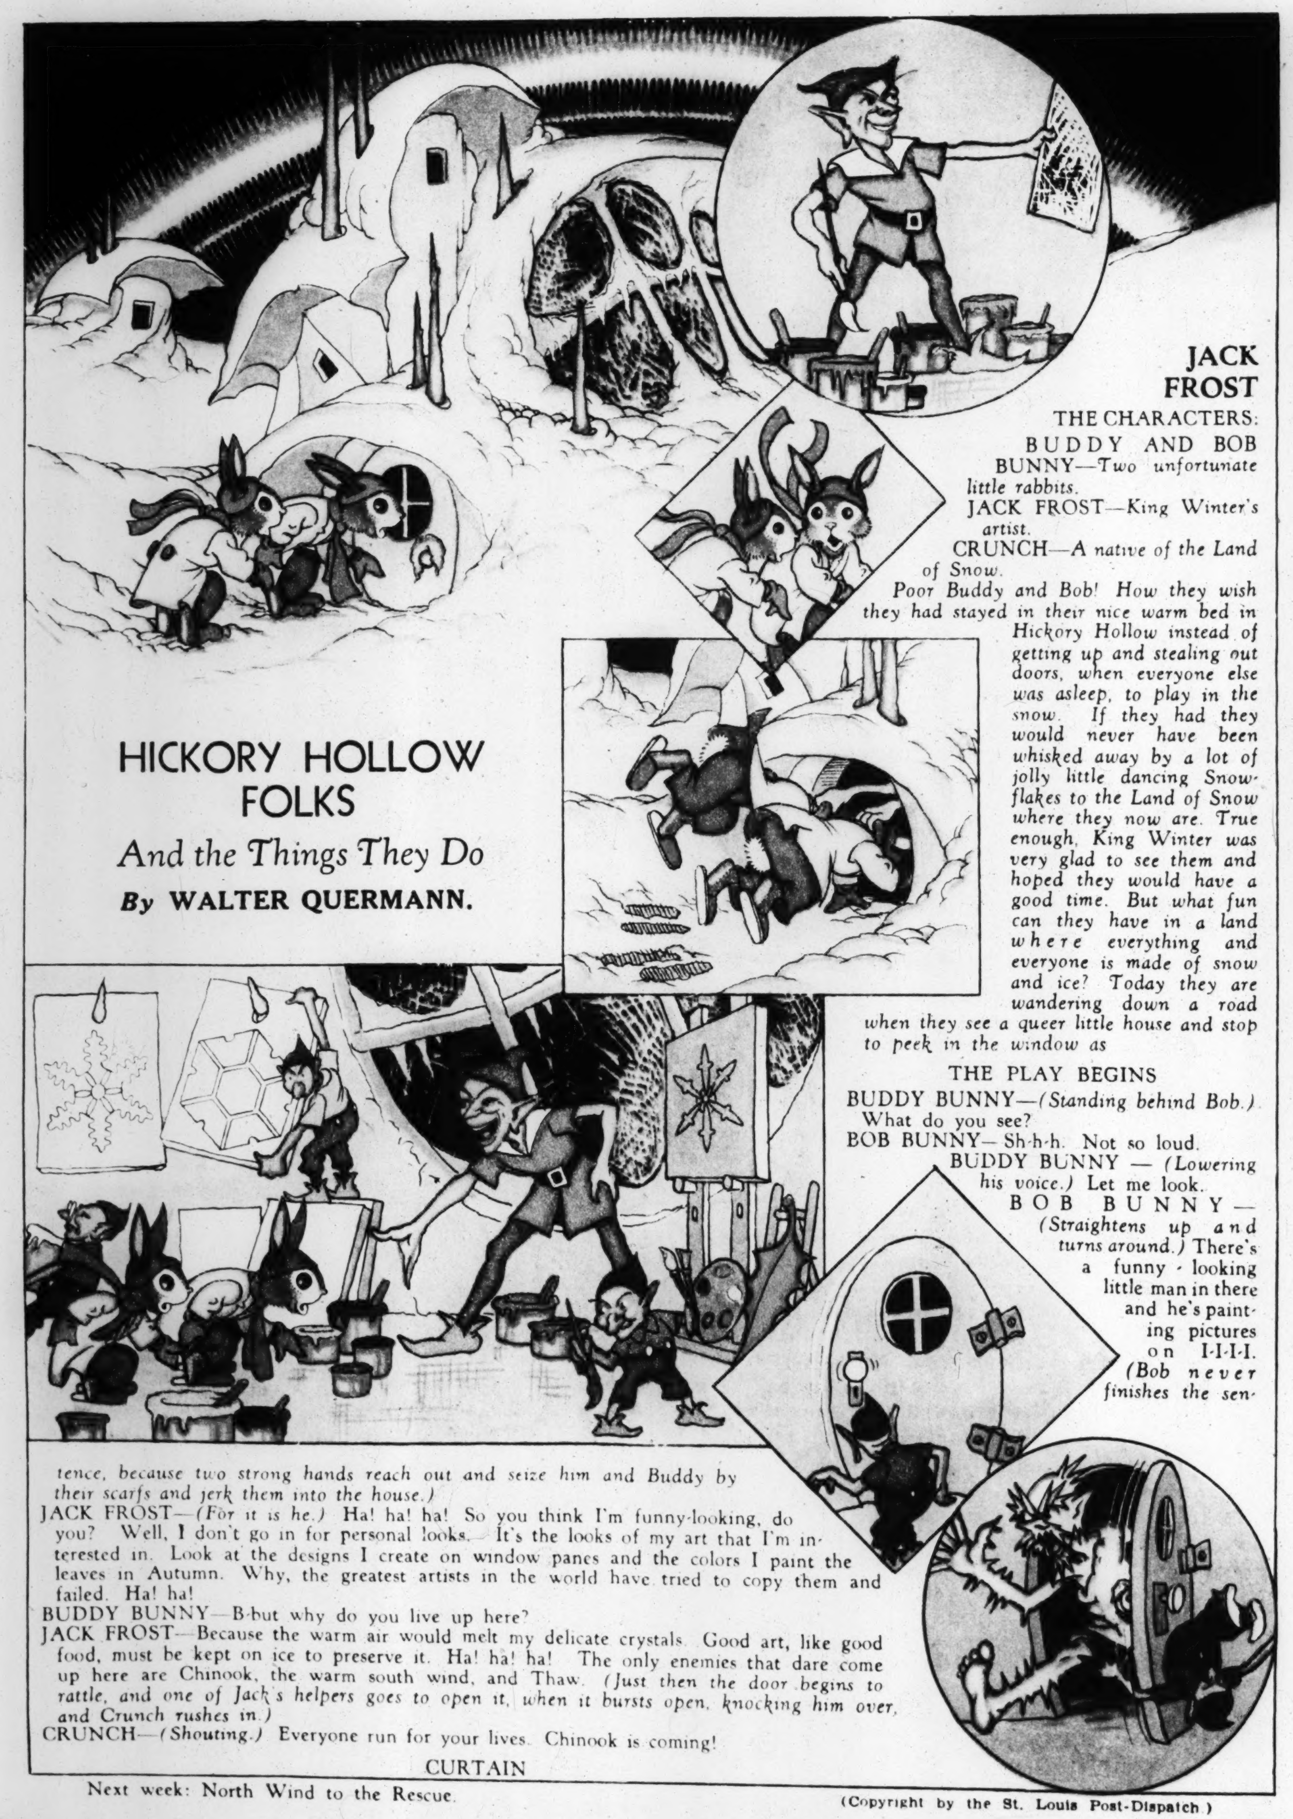
HICKORY HOLLOW FOLKS

And the Things They Do

By WALTER QUERMANN.



JACK FROST

THE CHARACTERS:

BUDDY AND BOB BUNNY—Two unfortunate little rabbits.

Poor Buddy and Bob! How they wish they had stayed in their nice warm bed in Hickory Hollow instead of getting up and stealing out doors, when everyone else was asleep, to play in the snow. If they had they would never have been whisked away by a lot of jolly little dancing Snowflakes to the Land of Snow where they now are. True enough, King Winter was very glad to see them and hoped they would have a good time. But what fun can they have in a land where everything and everyone is made of snow and ice? Today they are wandering down a road when they see a queer little house and stop to peek in the window as

THE PLAY BEGINS

BUDDY BUNNY—(Standing behind Bob.) What do you see?

BOB BUNNY—Sh-h-h. Not so loud.

BUDDY BUNNY — (Lowering his voice.) Let me look.

BOB BUNNY—(Straightens up and turns around.) There's a funny-looking little man in there and he's painting pictures on I-I-I. (Bob never finishes the sentence, because two strong hands reach out and seize him and Buddy by their scarfs and jerk them into the house.)

JACK FROST—(For it is he.) Ha! ha! ha! So you think I'm funny-looking, do you? Well, I don't go in for personal looks. It's the looks of my art that I'm interested in. Look at the designs I create on window panes and the colors I paint the leaves in Autumn. Why, the greatest artists in the world have tried to copy them and failed. Ha! ha!

BUDDY BUNNY—B-but why do you live up here?

JACK FROST—Because the warm air would melt my delicate crystals. Good art, like good food, must be kept on ice to preserve it. Ha! ha! ha! The only enemies that dare come up here are Chinook, the warm south wind, and Thaw. (Just then the door begins to rattle, and one of Jack's helpers goes to open it, when it bursts open, knocking him over, and Crunch rushes in.)

CRUNCH—(Shouting.) Everyone run for your lives. Chinook is coming!

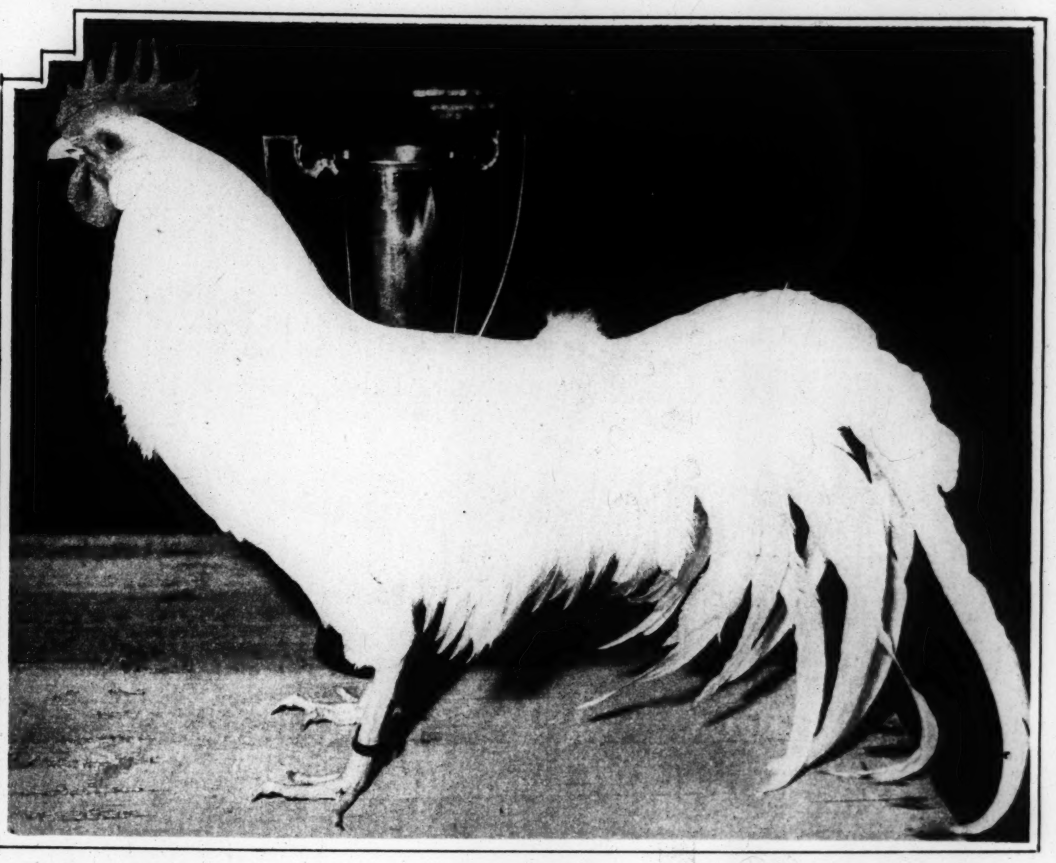
IT HAPPENED ON THE SAME DAY

A bevy of swimmers at Coral Gables, Florida, were taking a mid-January plunge while the citizens of Minneapolis, Minn., below right, were struggling with seven inches of snow. Trucks had to mount the sidewalk to carry on the work of snow clearance. —Associated Press Wirephotos.

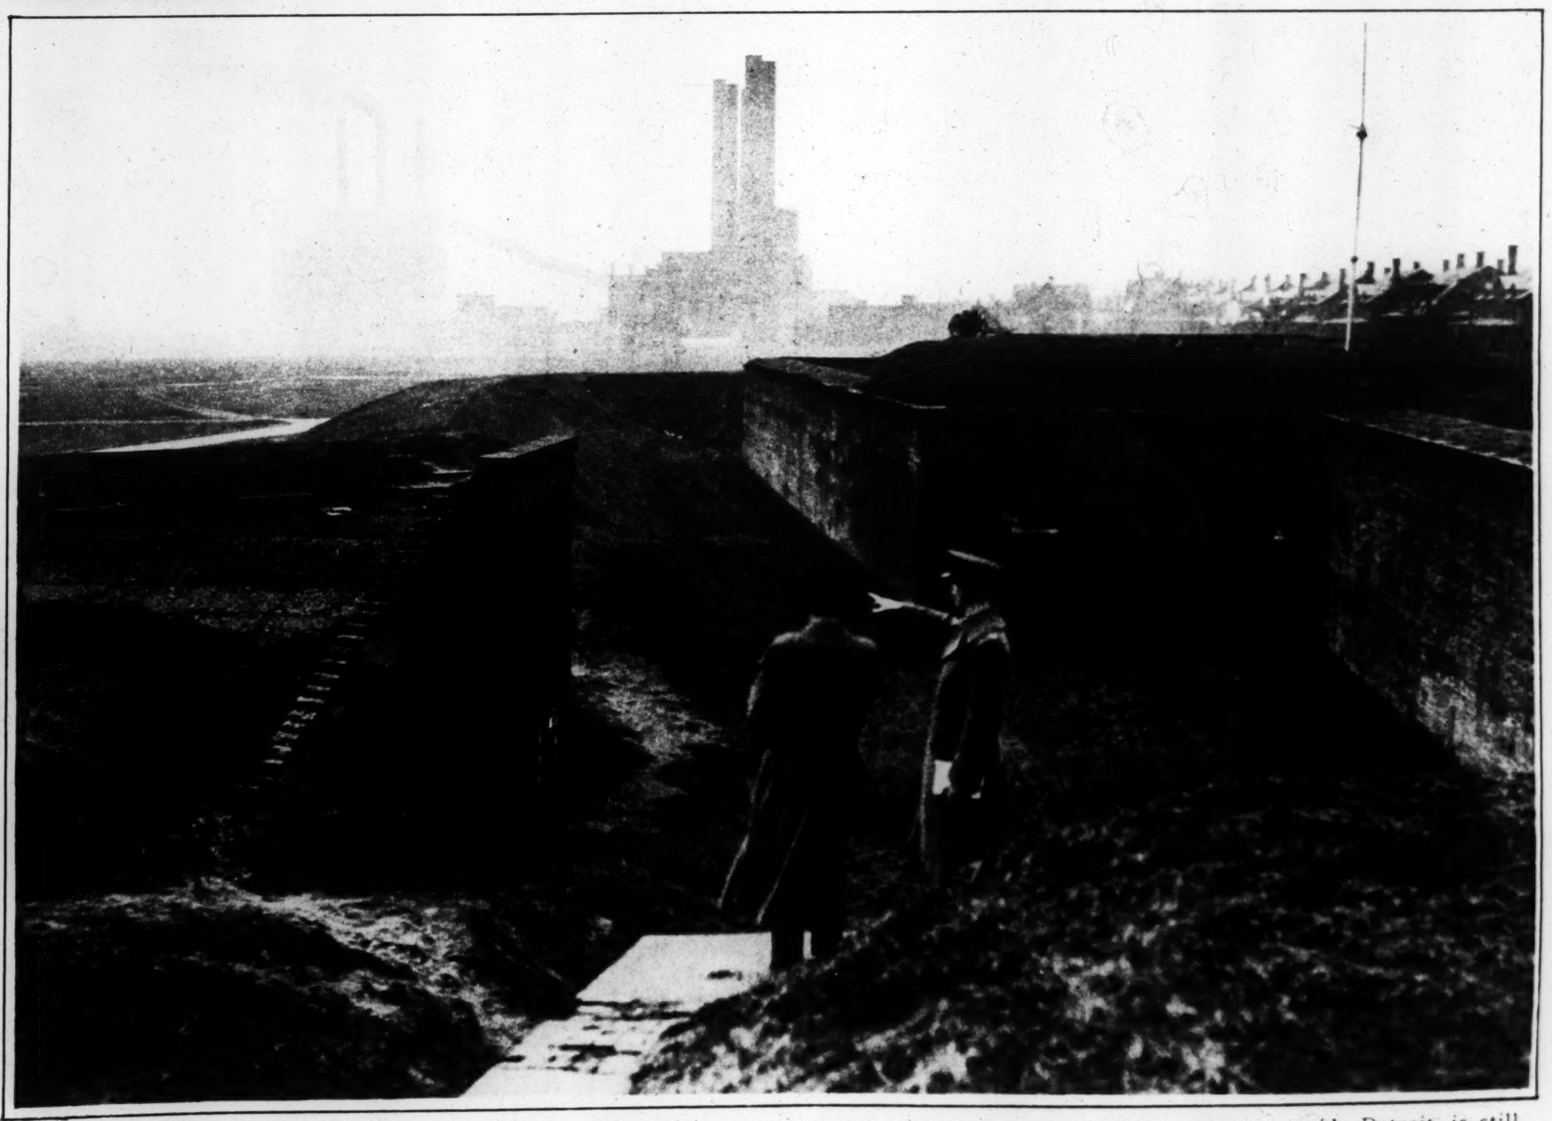


COCK OF THE WALK—A white leghorn bred by D. W. Young of Whitehouse, New Jersey, won first honors at the New York Poultry Show, being chosen as the best bird in any class.

ELECTRIC WIRE ACCESSORIES

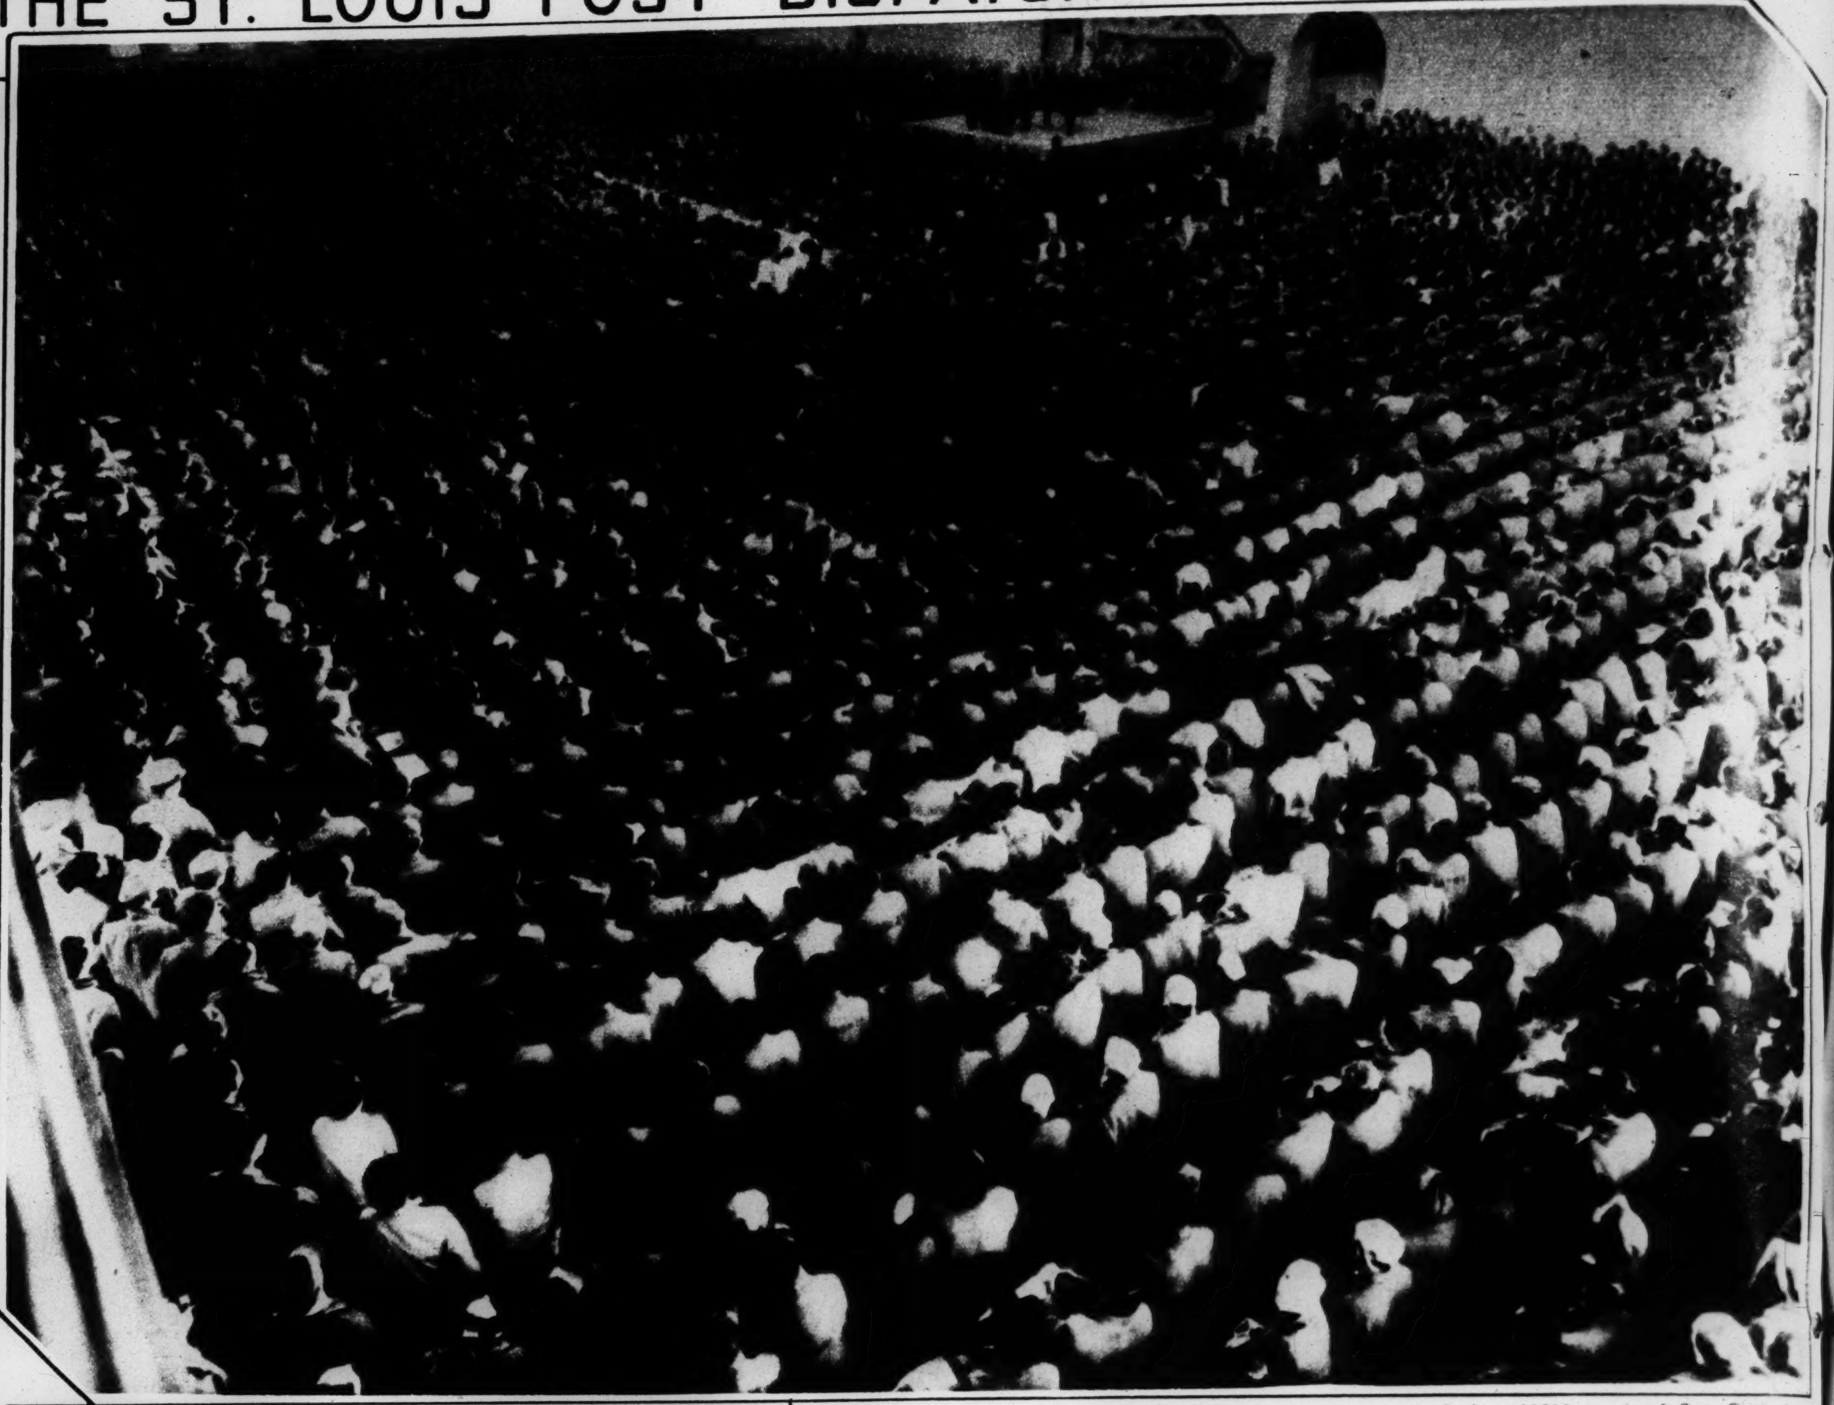
The belt and shoulder straps of the suit worn by Miss Catherine Wickham at Miami Beach, Fla., are a new wrinkle of the winter season in the southern bathing resorts.

EFUGE IN BUDAPEST—Old women from Yugoslavia, who were expelled by peremptory der intended to rid the country of Hungarians. Soon after their eviction they were forced become street beggars in the Hungarian capital.



A TRIUMPH OF MILITARY ENGINEERING—A large part of the fortifications at Fort Wayne, the army post outside Detroit, is still standing after more than a century. Army experts say the ancient walls were so well planned that they could still withstand a siege if modern guns were mounted in the ancient cannon emplacements.

PUTTING ART ON ICE—Hilda Ruckert brings the art of the dance to accelerated life by doing Hungarian ballet figures on skates. The performance was in St. Moritz, Switzerland.



"BAD MEN HAVE NO SONGS"—But the great population (5500 men) of San Quentin Prison near San Francisco sat and watched as intently as an audience of children while Harry Ettling put on a New Year's day program for them. Only one prisoner turned to watch the camera.

INSULTED

When school superintendent William F. Knox visited an FERA "life" class in a Jefferson City high school he was shocked to find Bernice Leuthen ("Miss Lake of the Ozarks") posing for art students without "sufficient clothes." The class refused to curtail its lessons and decided to move elsewhere.

MAKING GOLF A WINTER SPORT—Two young women on the Mineral Golf Course near Lassen Volcanic National Forest, California. They go from tee to green on skis and play with a black ball.

SAVED BY AIR COMPARTMENTS—One of the lifeboats carrying seamen and passengers from the stranded S. S. Havana was found by a plane in this condition, gunwales awash and only one oar manned. All were picked up several hours later. The liner struck a reef in the Bahamas.

"LONDON POSTMAN'S HAT"

A so-called pill-box turban of fine straw cloth. It is dead white, with brown cocardes at the sides and a short, wide mesh veil.

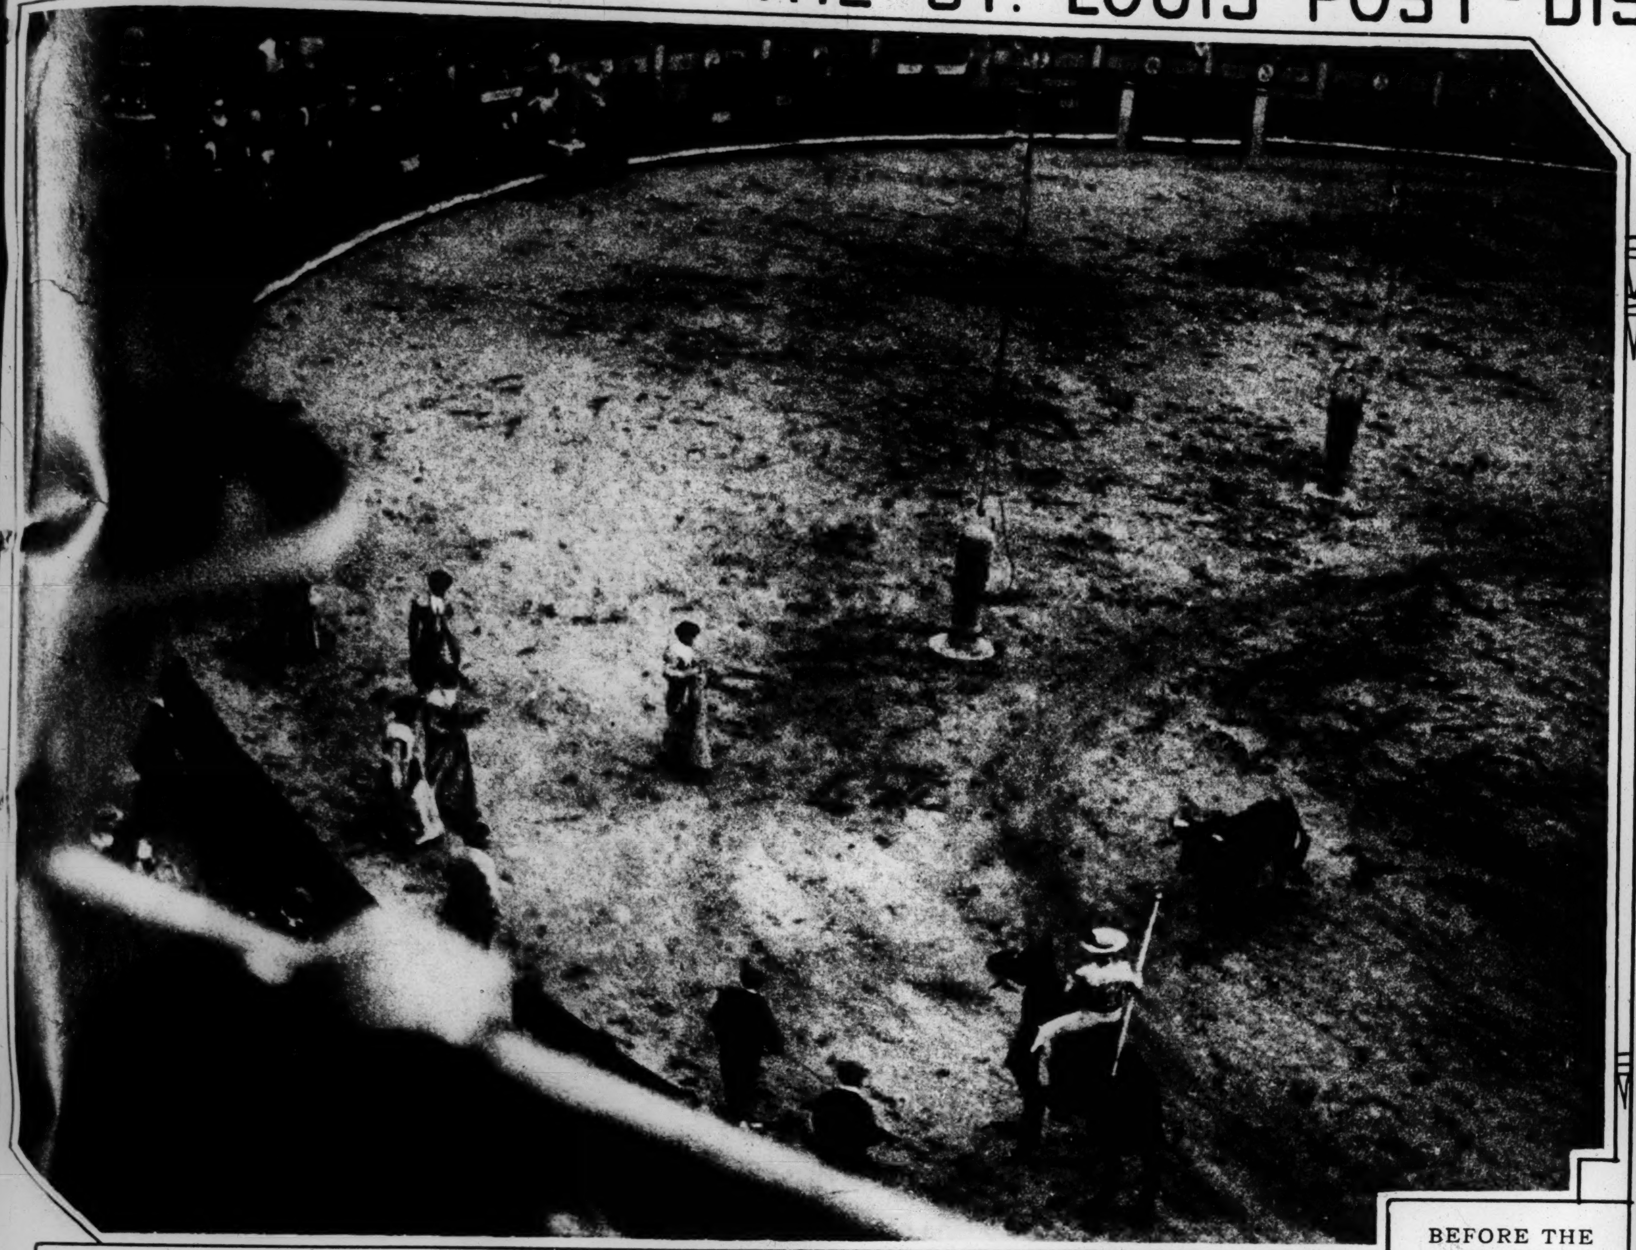
LONDON HAS NO MONOPOLY

New York sometimes sees fogs as dense as this one, which lasted for three days, stilling traffic sounds, clogging harbor traffic and keeping planes in hangars. The scene here is City Hall Park.

A PAGE OF PHOTOGRAPHS BY AMATEURS



BEFORE THE CHARGE

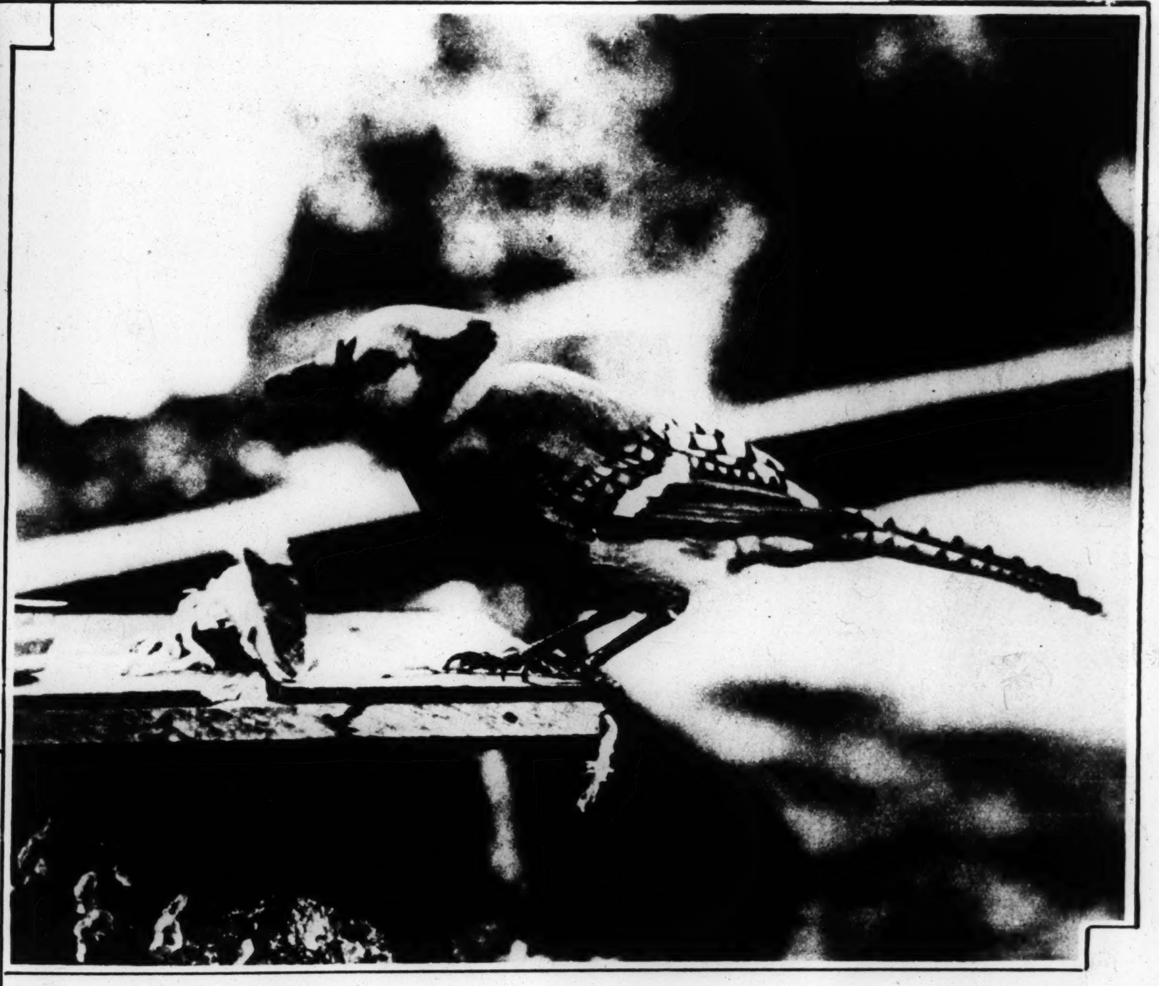
ANCHORAGE—A fleet of small racing yachts in the harbor of Barcelona, Spain, with a pattern on the surface of the water in the foreground and a hazy background of ocean shipping and the towering citadel.



BLUE JAY—Portrait of a young bird at breakfast by Oliver S. Imes of Webster Groves.

Contributions to this page are invited and those accepted will be paid for at regular rates. They should be addressed to the Sunday Editor, with return postage included. Full name and address together with a description of the photograph and the place where it was taken should be attached to each print. Only five-by-four-inch prints—or larger—can be considered.

N W MOON—Nocturne made in the Ozarks, just south of Round Spring, ssouri, by J. C. Edwards of St. Louis.

H. R. H. AGAIN TAKES THE LEAD—The Prince of Wales, once remarkable for the large number of style innovations he made, shows that he is not slipping by wearing a blue shirt with his cutaway. The occasion was the fashionable opening of the Royal Academy Exhibition in London; shown with the Prince are Sir William Llewellyn and John A. Milne, prominent academicians.

SUBMARINE GIGGING—Wearing waterproof goggles and swinging heavy five-pronged gigs, two Miami sportswomen demonstrate that it is possible to spear fish from under the water; the new sport is becoming popular in Florida.

KENTUCKY'S CHOICE
Miss Marian Conner Dawson of Owingsville was selected to be Queen of Beauty at the University of Kentucky.

ON WINGS OF SONG
Alfred Wallenstein, young first cellist in the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, will fly to Los Angeles to conduct the premiere of Robert Russell Bennett's new suite, "Maria Malibran". The whole trip will last a week. Wallenstein is shown standing over the composer getting tips on the score.

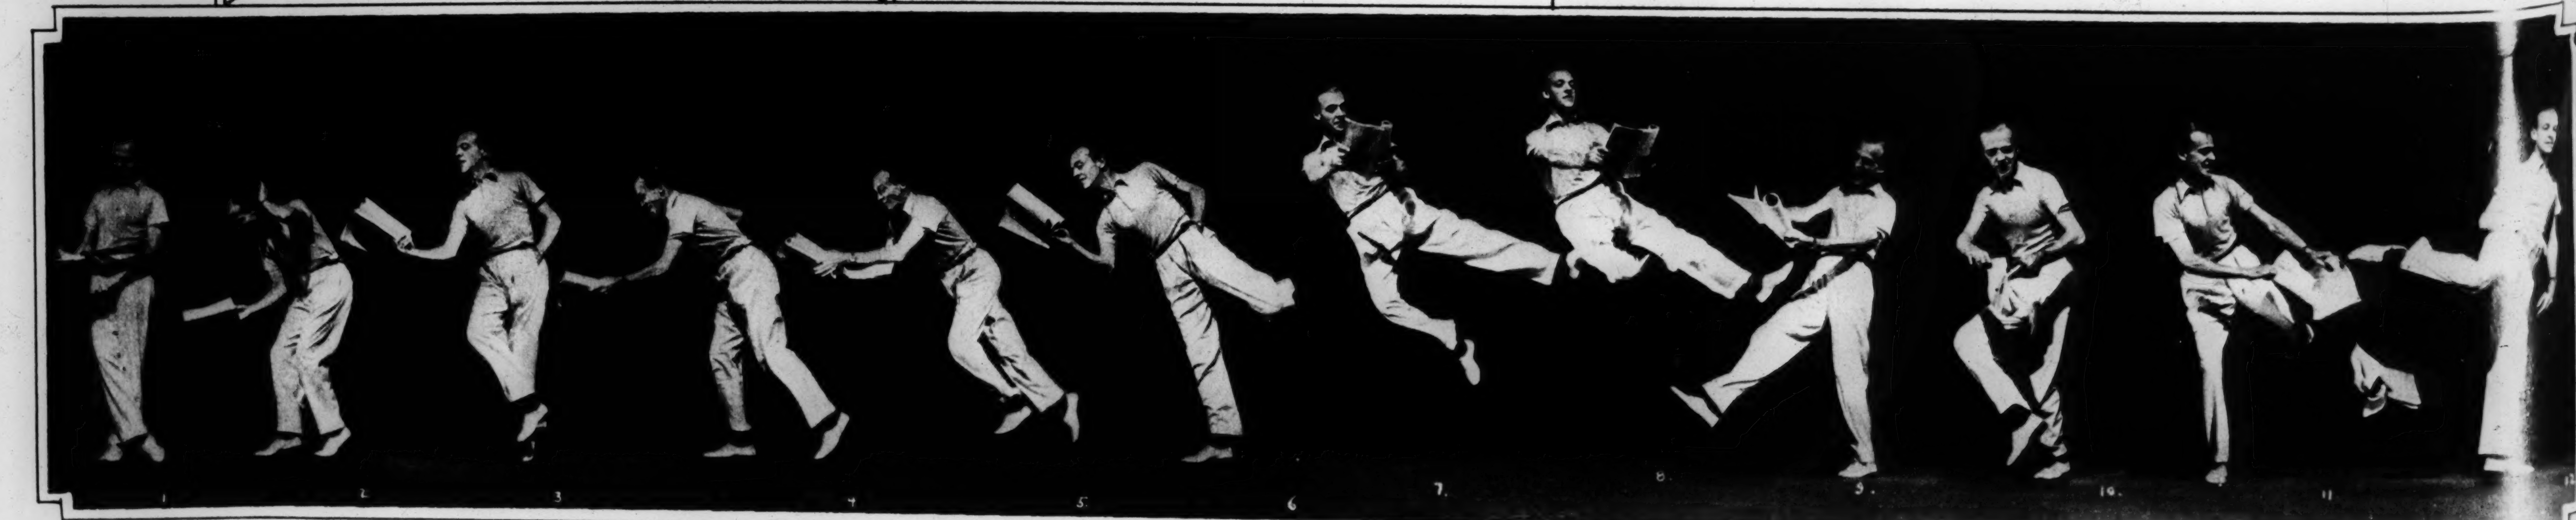
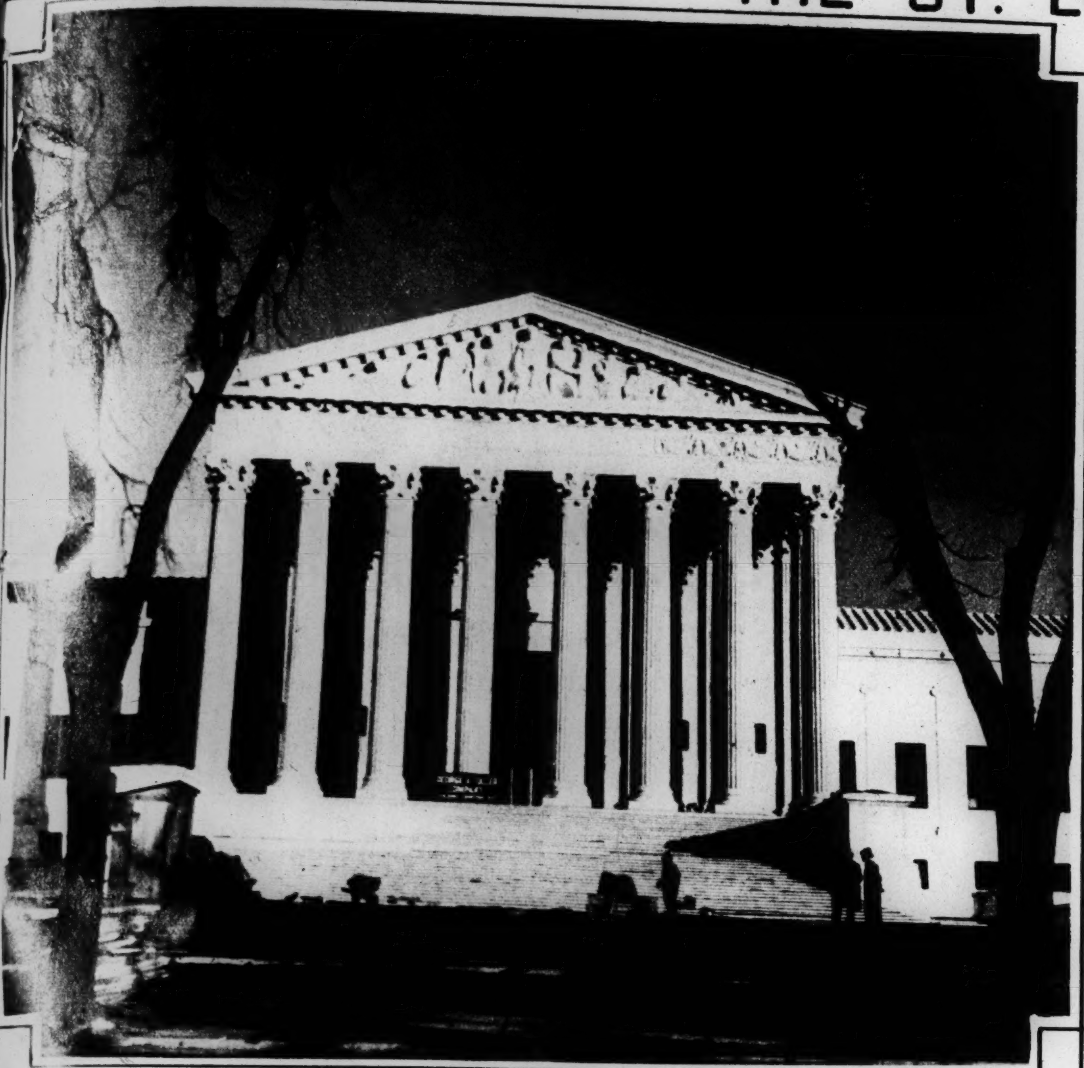
THE HEAD THAT WEARS THE CROWN—Bare-headed and at ease, King Leopold of Belgium and his Queen spent a few happy days vacationing at St. Moritz, Switzerland But a cabinet crisis brought a rude interruption to the winter holiday, and His Majesty had to rush back to Brussels.



"ONE EASY LESSON"—Fred Astaire goes over the rules while doing his "Script Dance," a feature of a new movie in which he plays the lead.



ANOTHER GREEK FACADE FOR WASHINGTON

SLAVES OF FASHION

Three Burmese Padaung women, enjoying solid comfort during a game of cards in London, where they were shown in a circus. The neck rings they wear are never removed and, having been worn since childhood, have resulted in their necks becoming about 16 inches long.

VIEW OF LONDON—The airplane shown here sees only this fantastic and beautiful scene as it crosses the Thames River on a cloudy day; the city is altogether hidden by one of its famous fogs.

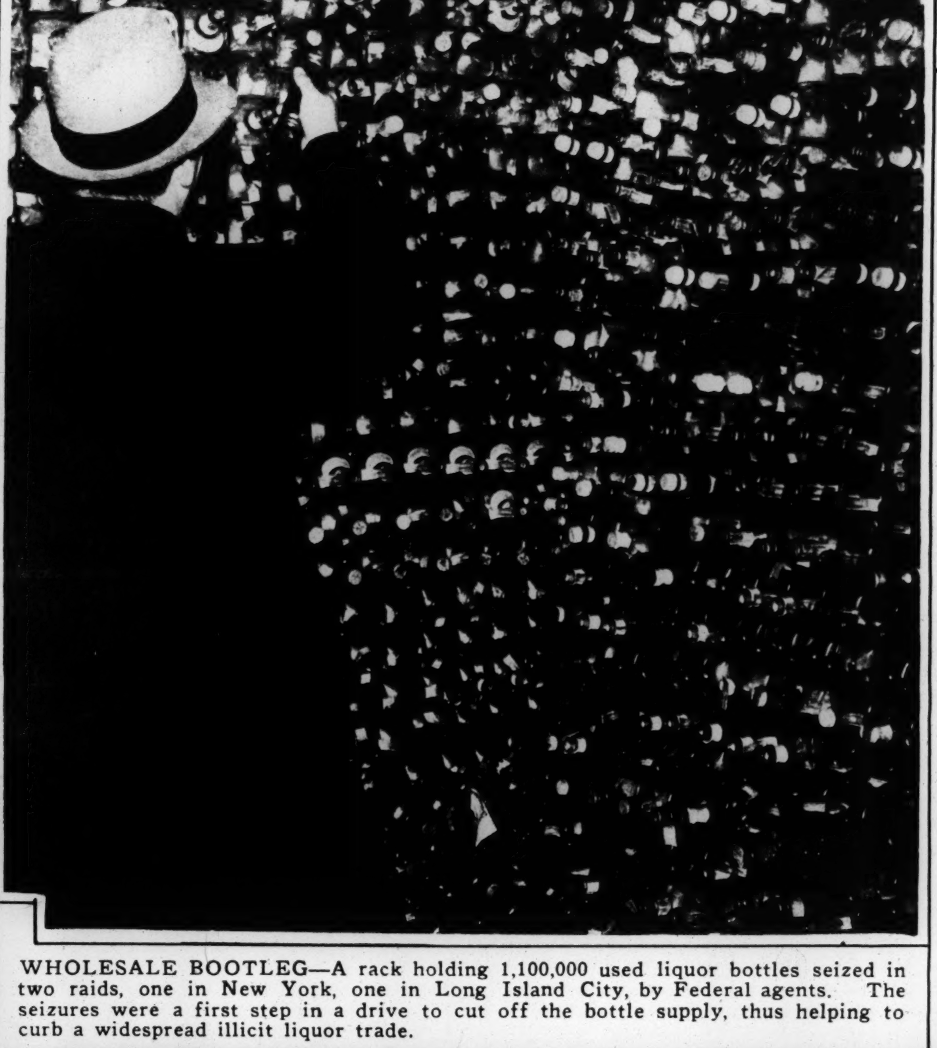
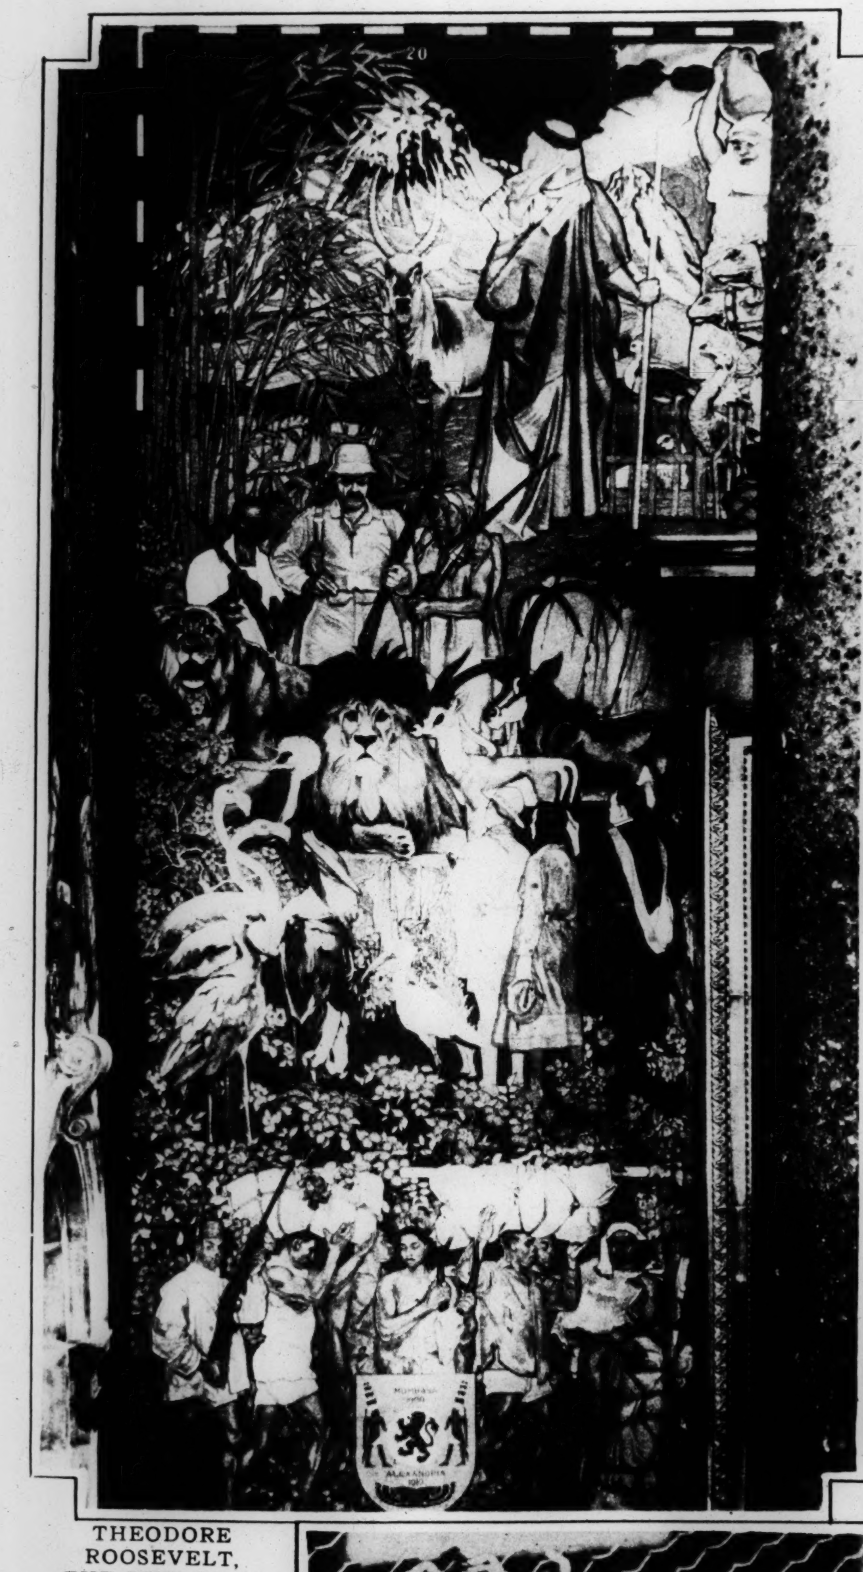
WINTER SCENE IN THE VALAIS—A charming landscape, as simple in its lines and planes as an oil painting. The photograph was made in Montana-Vermala, Switzerland.

IN EUGENE O'NEILL'S COMEDY—George M. Cohan (above) and Catherine Proctor, two of the principals in "Ah Wilderness," which will open at the American Theater on February 4.



WHOLESALE BOOTLEG—A rack holding 1,100,000 used liquor bottles seized in two raids, one in New York, one in Long Island City, by Federal agents. The seizures were a first step in a drive to cut off the bottle supply, thus helping to curb a widespread illicit liquor trade.



THEODORE ROOSEVELT, THE EXPLORER

One of the murals which have been installed in the Roosevelt Memorial Hall of the American Museum of Natural History in New York. It shows the late President as he appeared when on safari in the African jungle and is part of a series of panels by William Andrew Mackay.

RARE BIRD

A female Victoria crowned pigeon, the first in America to raise a brood. Natives of Dutch New Guinea, she and her mate are valued at $500 apiece by officials of the Catalina Island (Cal.) Bird Park.

MARIONETTE ARTIST

AND I REFUSE TO ANSWER THAT QUESTION FOR THE FOLLOWING NINE REASONS, SAID THE PLAINTITIFF AND...
PLAINTITIFF? THAT'S PRONOUNCED PLAIN-TIFF AND... THERE'S THE DOORBELL. I WONDER IF IT'S THOSE DIPPY FLOUNDERS?
ED FLOUNDER? THAT CUCKOO! LET'S TAKE NO CHANCES. OUT WITH THE LIGHT.
IN SPITE OF THE WAY SHE TRIED TO UNDERMINE ME AT THE FRIDAY CLUB, SHE PHONED TODAY AND CALMLY TOLD ME THEY INTENDED TO DROP OVER HERE SOON. I KNOW THAT'S HER NOW.
HEAR THEM LEANING ON THAT BELL. I WONDER IF THE DOOR IS LOCKED? HE HAS CRUST ENOUGH TO WALK RIGHT IN.
HEAVENLY DAYS! I KNOW THE DOOR IS UNLOCKED, BUT YOU'D BETTER JUST SIT HERE AND...
OOPS!
GEORGE!
NO, THERE IT GOES AGAIN. LISTEN TO IT!
TELL ME! I KNOW POSITIVELY HE'LL JUST WALK IN HERE. I'M GOING TO LOCK THAT DOOR RIGHT NOW.
EEEEEEK! GEORGE, YOU'RE ON MY FOOT!
OH! OH! THE IDEA! SUCH CLUMSINESS. OH! OH! MY FOOT!
SH-H! I THINK I HEAR THEM TURNING THE KNOB. WELL I'LL....
OH GEORGE BE CAREFUL. OH I KNOW THEY'LL HEAR THAT NOISE.
GEORGE ARE YOU HURT? HERE, LET ME HELP YOU UP. DON'T STEP ON MY FEET, GEORGE.
WHERE AM I? WHO TURNED THE LIGHTS OUT?.. I HEAR BELLS RINGING. OH YES, NOW I REMEMBER.
GEORGE NOT SO LOUDLY. GEORGE, ARE YOU ALL RIGHT?...BE CAREFUL...DON'T WALK ON MY FOOT AGAIN.
HEAR THAT BELL. LET'S MAKE SURE THAT DOOR IS LOCKED.
IT WAS LOCKED... THEY'RE STILL RINGING THAT BELL.... SH-H! WHAT WAS THAT NOISE? IT SOUNDED LIKE....
EEEEK! MY FOOT! YOU STEPPED ON IT AGAIN! EEEK! GET OFF, GEORGE!
OH, OH!
SH-H! I HEAR.....IT SOUNDED LIKE A DOOR CLOSING. I WONDER IF THEY WENT NEXTDOOR? LISTEN....
GONE! THOSE NOSY PEOPLE NEXTDOOR SAW THE FLOUNDERS AT OUR DOOR AND INVITED THEM IN TO PUMP THEM ABOUT US. OH HOW DUMB WE WERE NOT TO JUST MAKE THE BEST OF THINGS AND LET THOSE FOLKS IN HERE.
YES SIR! THEY'RE NEXTDOOR. WELL WHY BE CHICKEN-HEARTED? LET'S GO AFTER THEM NOW.
SOMEBODY RINGING YOUR DOORBELL? NO I DIDN'T SEE NOBODY. I'M ALL ALONE AND....
ALONE? WELL...
GEORGE! LISTEN! THERE GOES OUR DOORBELL AGAIN!
RINGING! AND NOBODY IS RINGING IT, EH? OUT OF ORDER. OURS GETS THAT WAY NOW AND THEN TOO.
HEAR IT! ALL THAT HULLABALOO FOR NOTHING. IMAGINE!
LET'S SEE....WHERE WAS I? OH YES.....AND I REFUSE TO ANSWER THAT QUESTION FOR THE FOLLOWING NINE REASONS, SAID THE PLAINTITIFF AND.....

DON'T YOU USE A GUN WHEN YOU HUNT RABBITS?
WHAT FOR? I JUST WAIT 'TIL A RABBIT RUNS INTO A HOLE, THEN I STICK THIS BARB WIRE DOWN THE HOLE, AND TWIST!
DO YOU GET A RABBIT EVERY TIME?
WELL! DOWN IN KANAB THE RABBITS GOT WISE TO ME! AND WHEN I TWISTED THE WIRE, THEY TWISTED WITH IT! BUT I FOOLED 'EM!
HOW?
I SENT FOR MY LEFT-HANDED BROTHER TO COME UP FROM TEXAS!
DON'T YOU EVER USE A GUN WHEN YOU HUNT?
ONCE I DID! AND IT CAME IN HANDY! I BUMPED SMACK DAB INTO THE BIGGEST GRIZZLY I EVER SAW! I KNEW I COULDN'T KILL HIM WITH A LITTLE BULLET!
– SO I RAMMED A CARTRIDGE INTO THE WRONG END OF THE GUN BARREL, STUCK THE CARTRIDGE BETWEEN MY TEETH AND BIT HARD!
THE CARTRIDGE EXPLODED AND FIRED THE GUN, INSTEAD OF THE GUN FIRING THE CARTRIDGE! THE GUN HIT THE GRIZZLY BETWEEN THE EYES!
DID YOU HAVE HIM STUFFED AND MOUNTED?
I COULD ONLY GET THE HEAD!
HOW COME? COULDN'T YOU GET THE SKIN TOO?
NOPE! WHEN I SHOT THAT GRIZZLY, PART OF HIM FELL INTO ANOTHER STATE WHERE THE BEAR SEASON WASN'T OPEN!
WHEN I BROUGHT THAT GRIZZLY'S HEAD HOME ON A FLAT CAR, MY PARTNER WAS EATING ALPHABET SOUP! HE COULDN'T BELIEVE HIS EYES, AND HE GASPED!
HE WOULDA STRANGLED ON THAT ALPHABET SOUP, BUT I POUNDED HIM ON THE BACK AND MADE HIM COUGH. I SAYS TO HIM, I SAYS: "JIM I SAVED YOUR LIFE!"
AND HE SAYS, "YOU TOOK THE WORDS RIGHT OUTA MY MOUTH!"

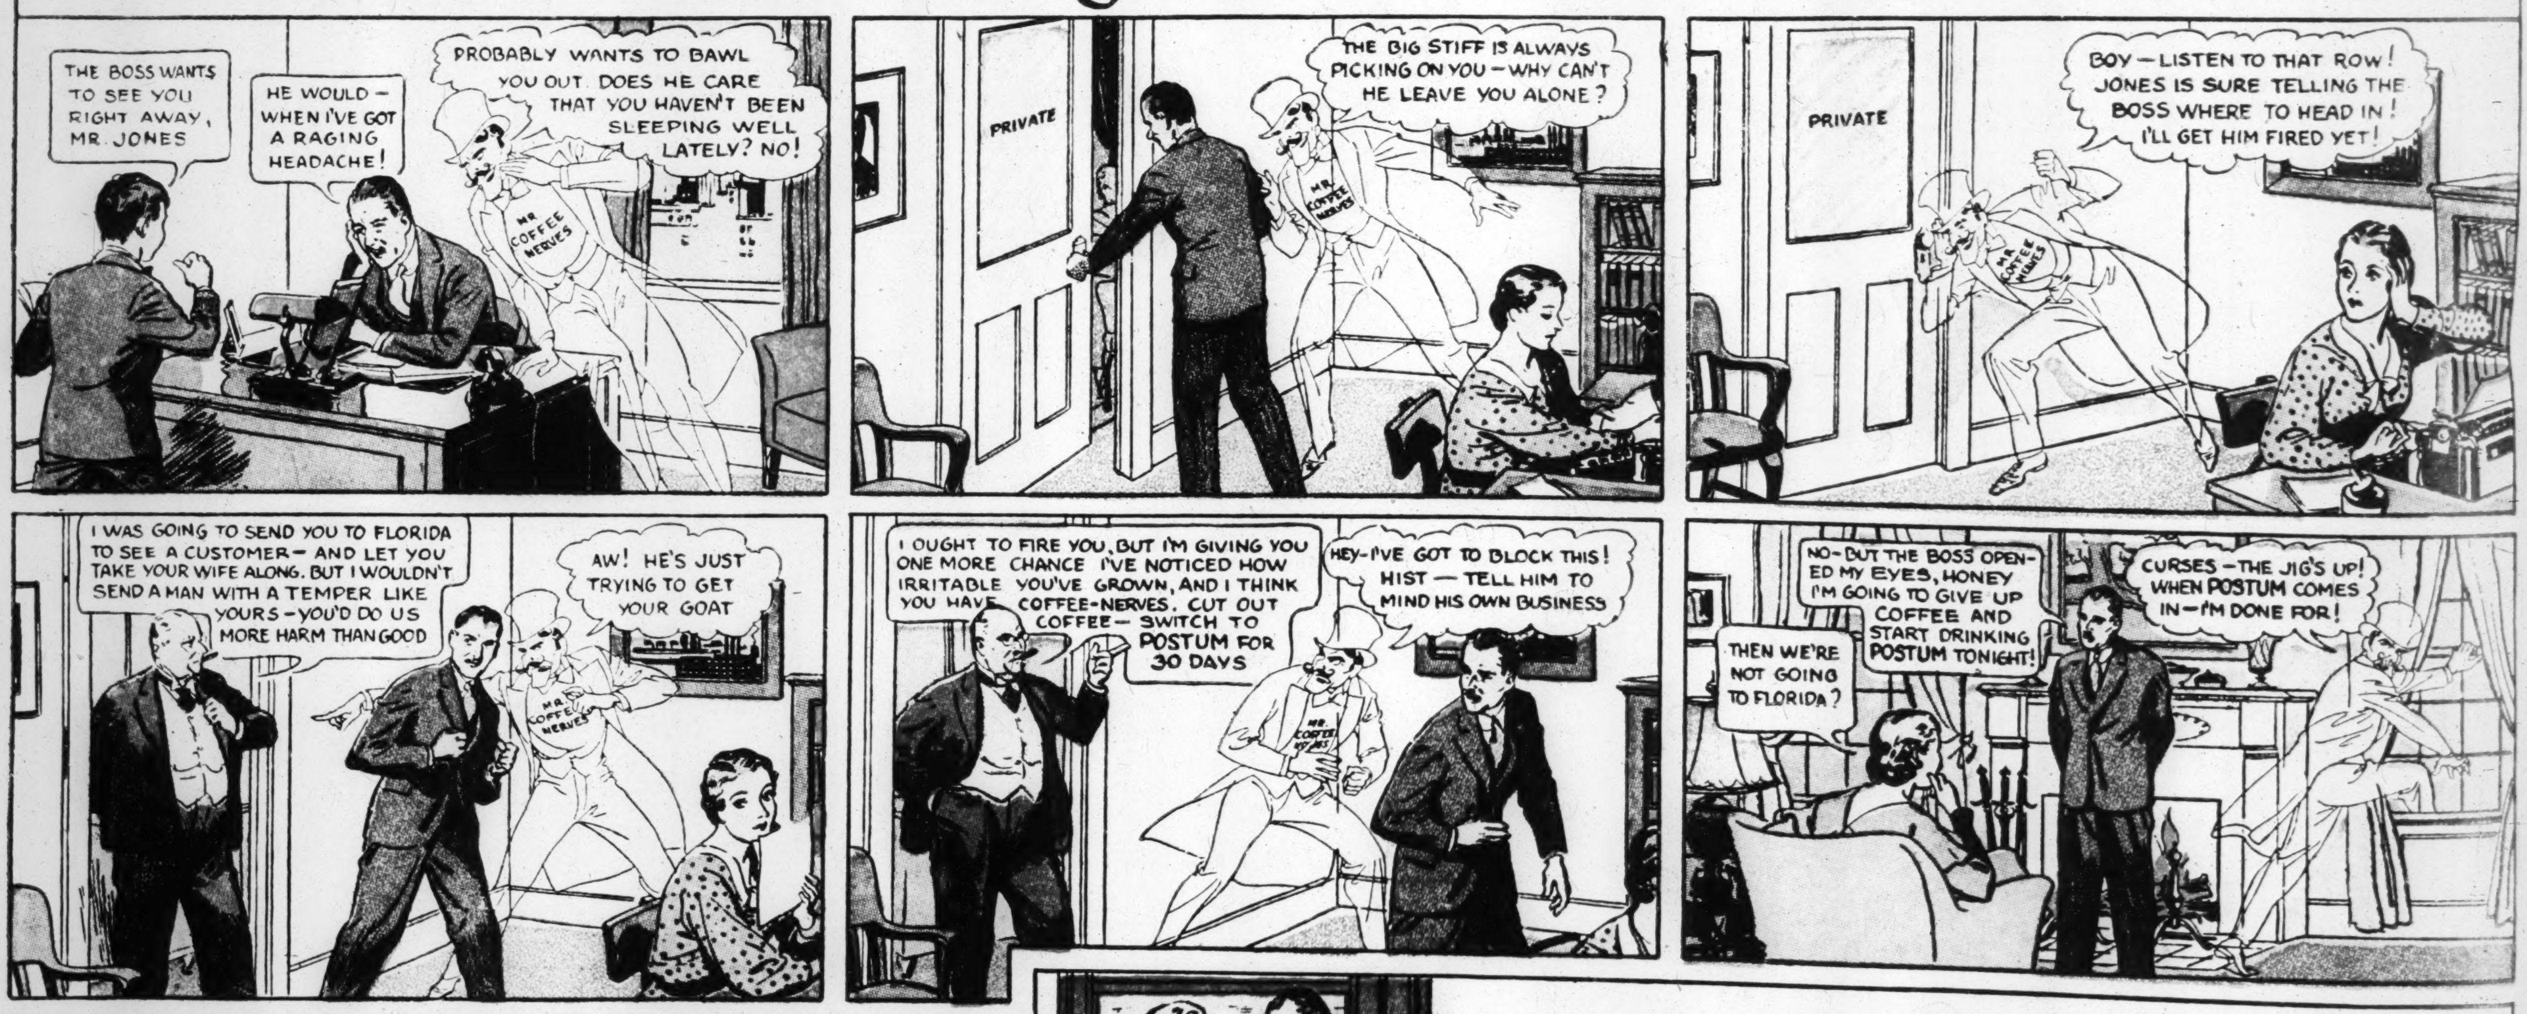
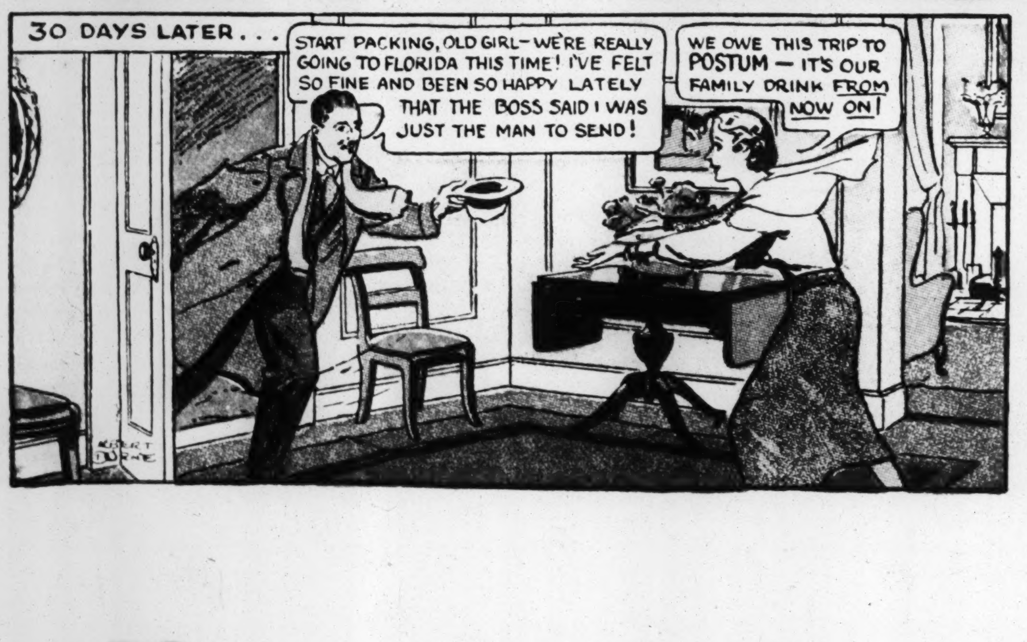
Mr. COFFEE-NERVES..gets left behind

AN ADVERTISEMENT of GENERAL FOODS



THE BOSS WANTS TO SEE YOU RIGHT AWAY, MR. JONES
HE WOULD— WHEN I'VE GOT A RAGING HEADACHE!
PROBABLY WANTS TO BAWL YOU OUT. DOES HE CARE THAT YOU HAVEN'T BEEN SLEEPING WELL LATELY? NO!
MR COFFEE NERVES
PRIVATE
THE BIG STIFF IS ALWAYS PICKING ON YOU—WHY CAN'T HE LEAVE YOU ALONE?
PRIVATE
BOY—LISTEN TO THAT ROW! JONES IS SURE TELLING THE BOSS WHERE TO HEAD IN! I'LL GET HIM FIRED YET!
I WAS GOING TO SEND YOU TO FLORIDA TO SEE A CUSTOMER—AND LET YOU TAKE YOUR WIFE ALONG. BUT I WOULDN'T SEND A MAN WITH A TEMPER LIKE YOURS—YOU'D DO US MORE HARM THAN GOOD
AW! HE'S JUST TRYING TO GET YOUR GOAT
I OUGHT TO FIRE YOU, BUT I'M GIVING YOU ONE MORE CHANCE. I'VE NOTICED HOW IRRITABLE YOU'VE GROWN, AND I THINK YOU HAVE COFFEE-NERVES. CUT OUT COFFEE—SWITCH TO POSTUM FOR 30 DAYS
HEY—I'VE GOT TO BLOCK THIS! HIST—TELL HIM TO MIND HIS OWN BUSINESS
NO—BUT THE BOSS OPENED MY EYES, HONEY. I'M GOING TO GIVE UP COFFEE AND START DRINKING POSTUM TONIGHT!
THEN WE'RE NOT GOING TO FLORIDA?
CURSES—THE JIG'S UP! WHEN POSTUM COMES IN—I'M DONE FOR!



30 DAYS LATER...
START PACKING, OLD GIRL—WE'RE REALLY GOING TO FLORIDA THIS TIME! I'VE FELT SO FINE AND BEEN SO HAPPY LATELY THAT THE BOSS SAID I WAS JUST THE MAN TO SEND!
WE OWE THIS TRIP TO POSTUM—IT'S OUR FAMILY DRINK FROM NOW ON!

"WHY DO YOU suppose coffee was making you so irritable?"

"The boss told me that coffee is as bad for many adults as it is for all children. You see, the caffein in coffee robs them of sleep, causes headaches or indigestion, and makes them nervous."

"But why did Postum make such a change in you?"

"There's no caffein in Postum—and cutting out this drug gave my nerves a chance to rest. I started sleeping soundly, and my headaches and indigestion quit plaguing me."

• • •

While lots of people can safely drink coffee, everyone knows that there are many others with whom it disagrees. You yourself may belong to this group—without realizing it.

The caffein in coffee may be undermining your nerves, robbing you of sleep, or upsetting your digestion.

If you suffer from indigestion, nervousness, headaches or loss of sleep—try Postum for 30 days. It is a delicious drink—and may be a real help. It is very easy to make—and costs less than half a cent a cup. A product of General Foods.

FREE—To start you off in your fight against coffee-nerves, let us send you your first week's supply of Postum—FREE! Simply fill in and mail the coupon.

HERE'S A TREAT FOR CHILDREN!

Give them Postum-made-with-hot-milk. A delicious, fragrant, steaming drink... golden-brown and "grown-up" looking. Children love it... even those who don't like plain milk. It's a very wholesome drink... and nourishing, too.

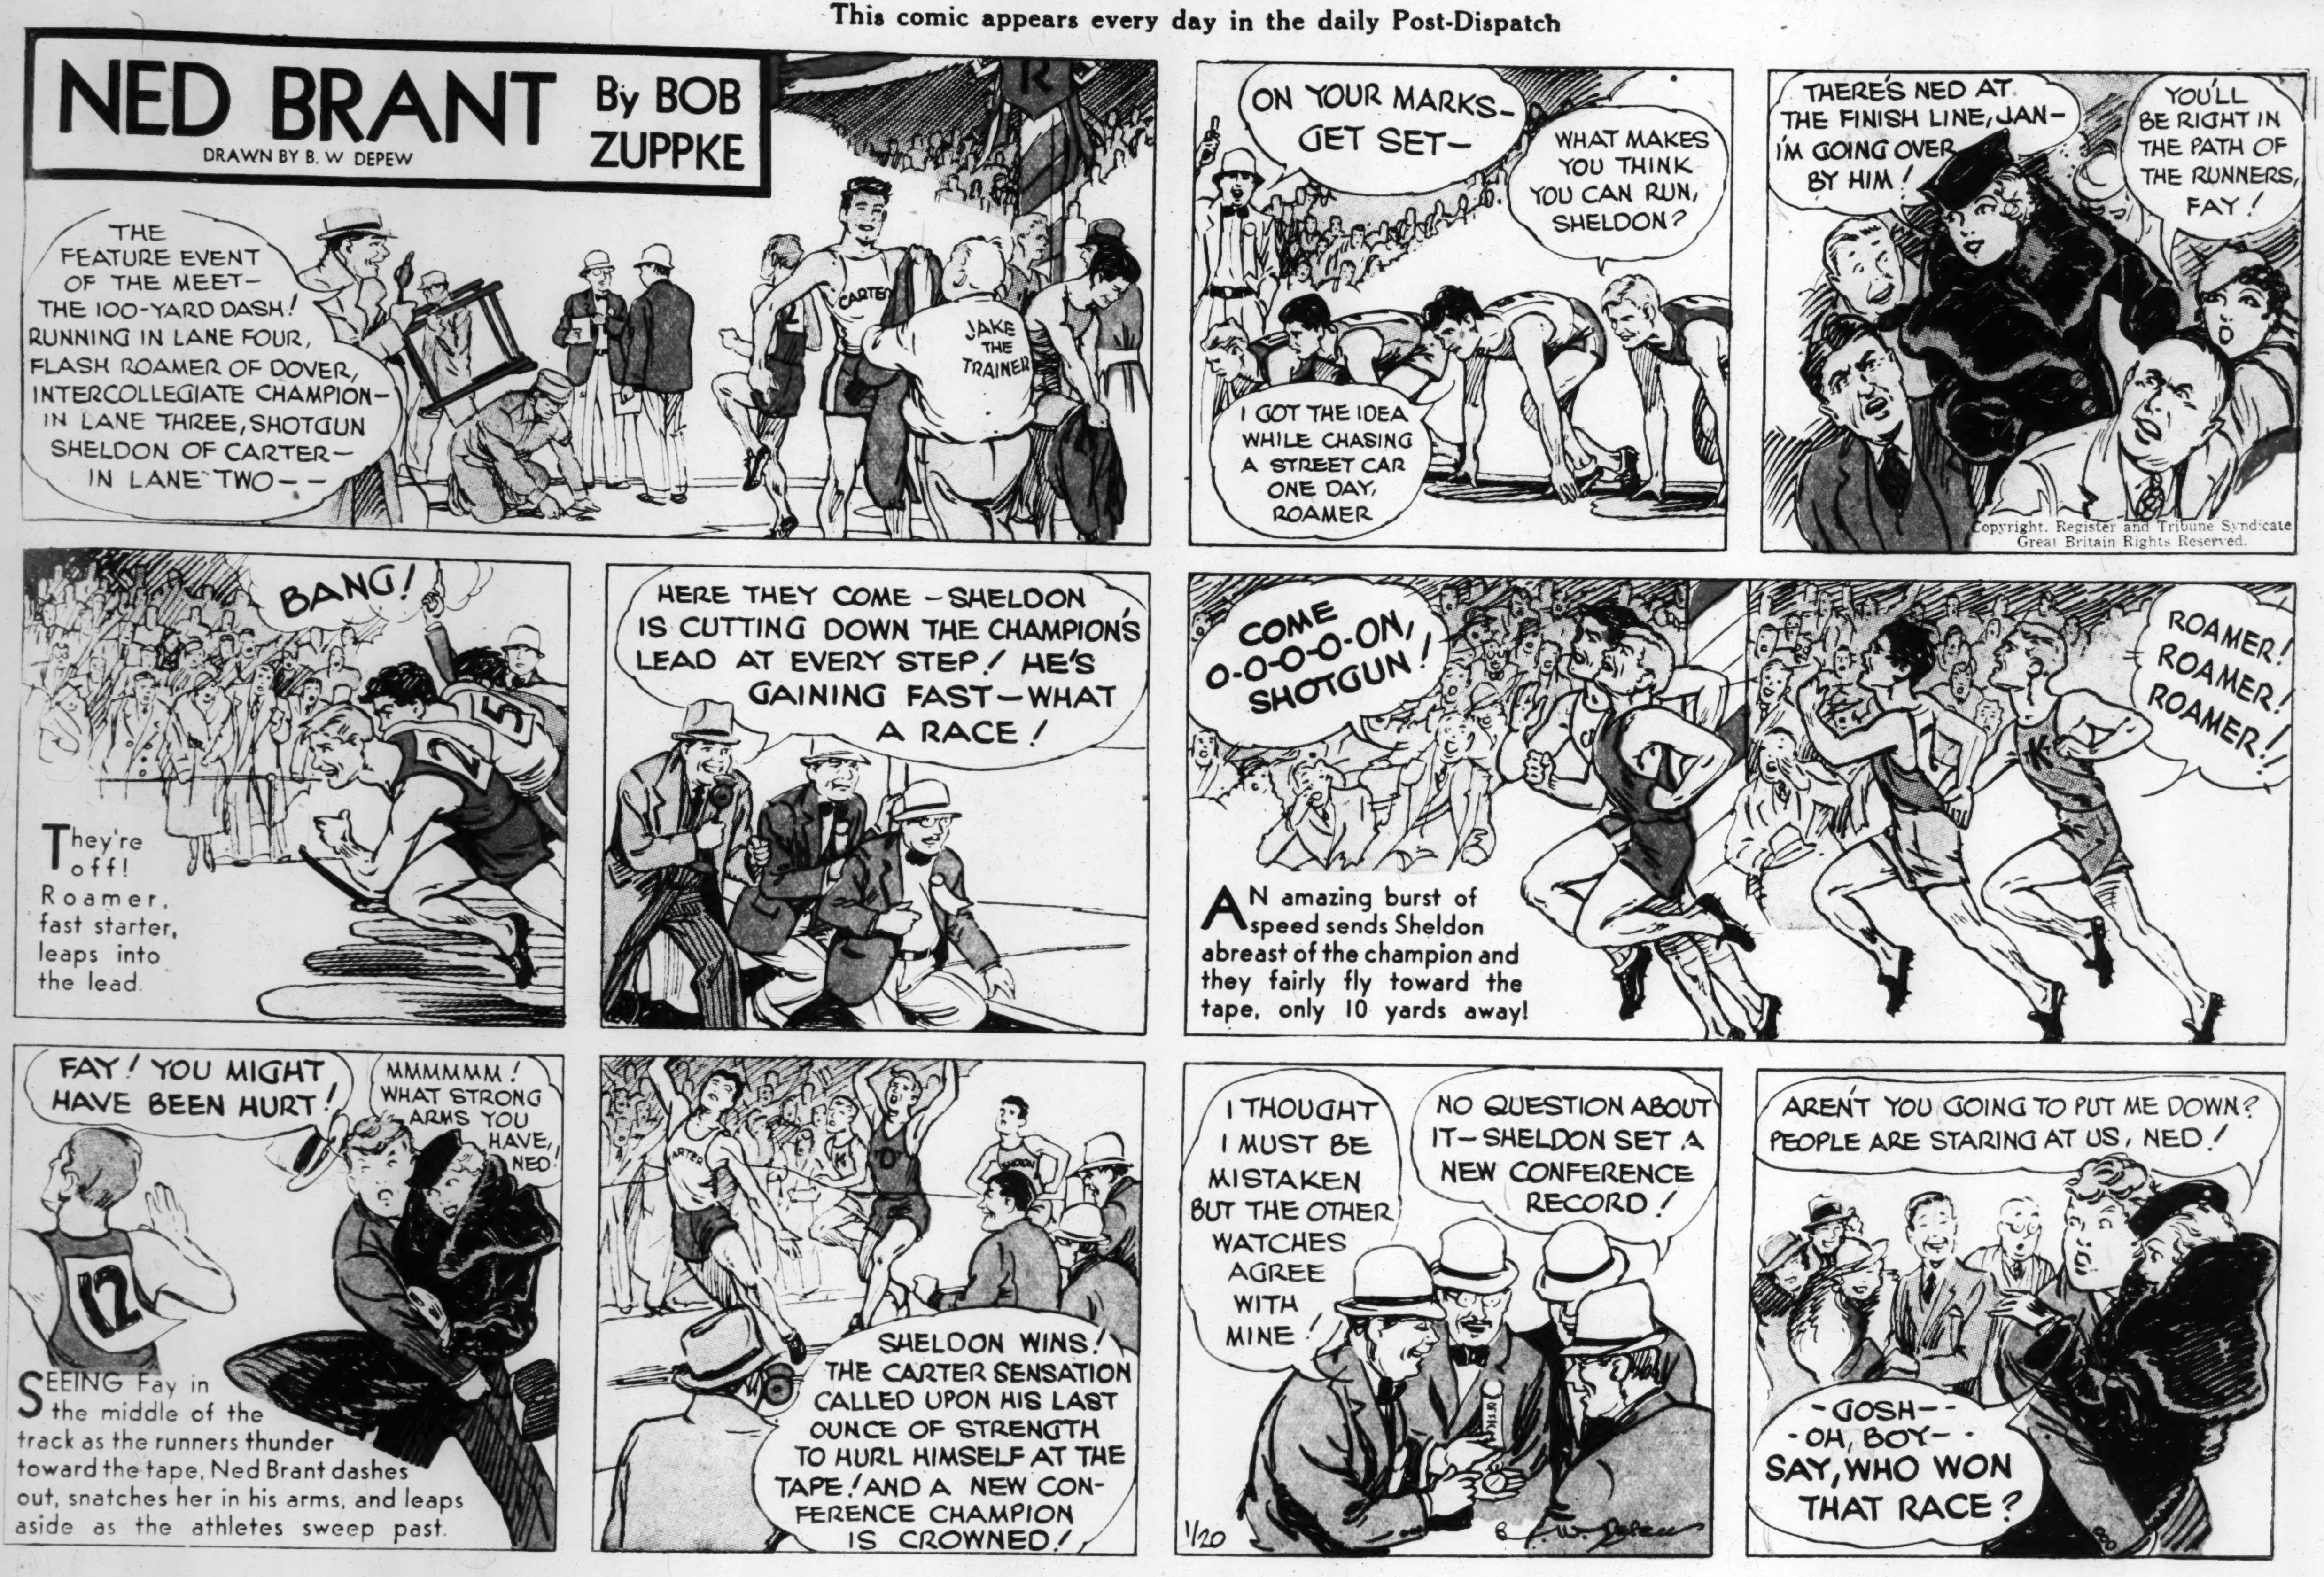
NED BRANT By BOB ZUPPKE

DRAWN BY B. W DEPEW



THE FEATURE EVENT OF THE MEET— THE 100-YARD DASH! RUNNING IN LANE FOUR, FLASH ROAMER OF DOVER, INTERCOLLEGIATE CHAMPION— IN LANE THREE, SHOTGUN SHELDON OF CARTER— IN LANE TWO— — CARTER
JAKE THE TRAINER
ON YOUR MARKS- GET SET—
WHAT MAKES YOU THINK YOU CAN RUN, SHELDON?
YOU'LL BE RIGHT IN THE PATH OF THE RUNNERS, FAY!
BANG!
HERE THEY COME—SHELDON IS CUTTING DOWN THE CHAMPION'S LEAD AT EVERY STEP! HE'S GAINING FAST—WHAT A RACE!
COME O-O-O-O-ON, SHOTGUN!
ROAMER! ROAMER! ROAMER!
An amazing burst of speed sends Sheldon abreast of the champion and they fairly fly toward the tape, only 10 yards away!
FAY! YOU MIGHT HAVE BEEN HURT!
MMMMMM! WHAT STRONG ARMS YOU HAVE, NED!
12
Seeing Fay in the middle of the track as the runners thunder toward the tape, Ned Brant dashes out, snatches her in his arms, and leaps aside as the athletes sweep past.
SHELDON WINS! THE CARTER SENSATION CALLED UPON HIS LAST OUNCE OF STRENGTH TO HURL HIMSELF AT THE TAPE! AND A NEW CONFERENCE CHAMPION IS CROWNED!
I THOUGHT I MUST BE MISTAKEN BUT THE OTHER WATCHES AGREE WITH MINE!
NO QUESTION ABOUT IT—SHELDON SET A NEW CONFERENCE RECORD!

OH, JAKE— COME DOWN AND FIX THE LAUNDRY ROOM LIGHT FOR ME, WILL YOU?
IT KEEPS GOING ON AND OFF— HERE, STAND ON THIS BOX
THAT WILL BE EASY— DIDN'T I MAKE A SPEECH BEFORE THE ELECTRICIANS' UNION?
CAREFUL NOT TO TOUCH THE BARE WIRES!
OOOOOOOCH!
JAKE!
JAKE'S perfect one point landing churns up the water like a rhinoceros threshing about in a lagoon.
BLUING
SORRY I'M TOO LATE FOR THE LAUNCHING, JAKE!
YOU GUYS SHUT UP AND HELP ME OUT OF HERE!

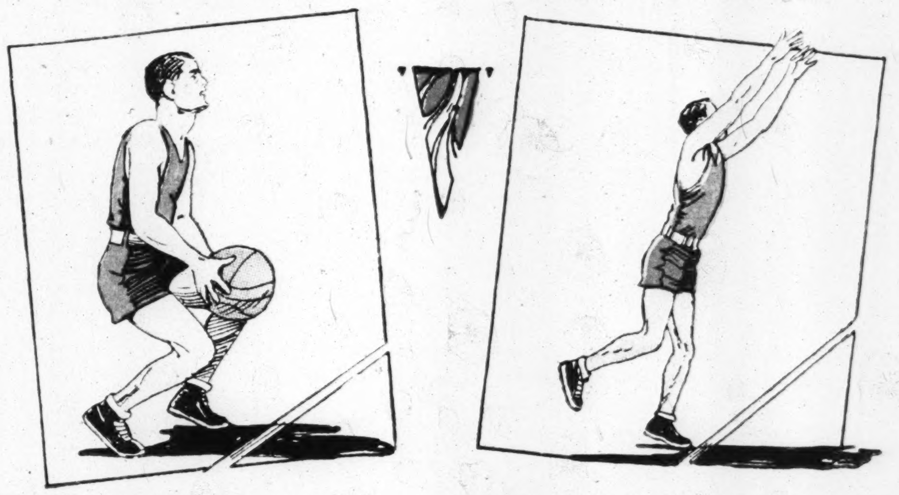
The Free Throw

THE UNDERHAND SHOT

First Movement — Final Movement

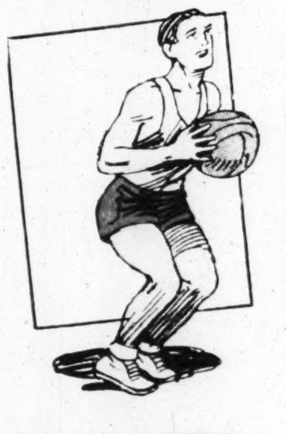


THE player should squat slightly, bending the knees to get leverage for the shot. Ball should be held by the tips of fingers and the thumbs at its axis. Eyes focused on rim of basket and body relaxed.

BALL should follow a medium arc toward basket when tossed by flexing wrists, hands and arms. Legs, arms, hands and body should follow through in path of ball.

THE POISED CHEST SHOT

First Movement



BALL held chest high, fingers and thumbs held slightly behind axis of ball Palms free.

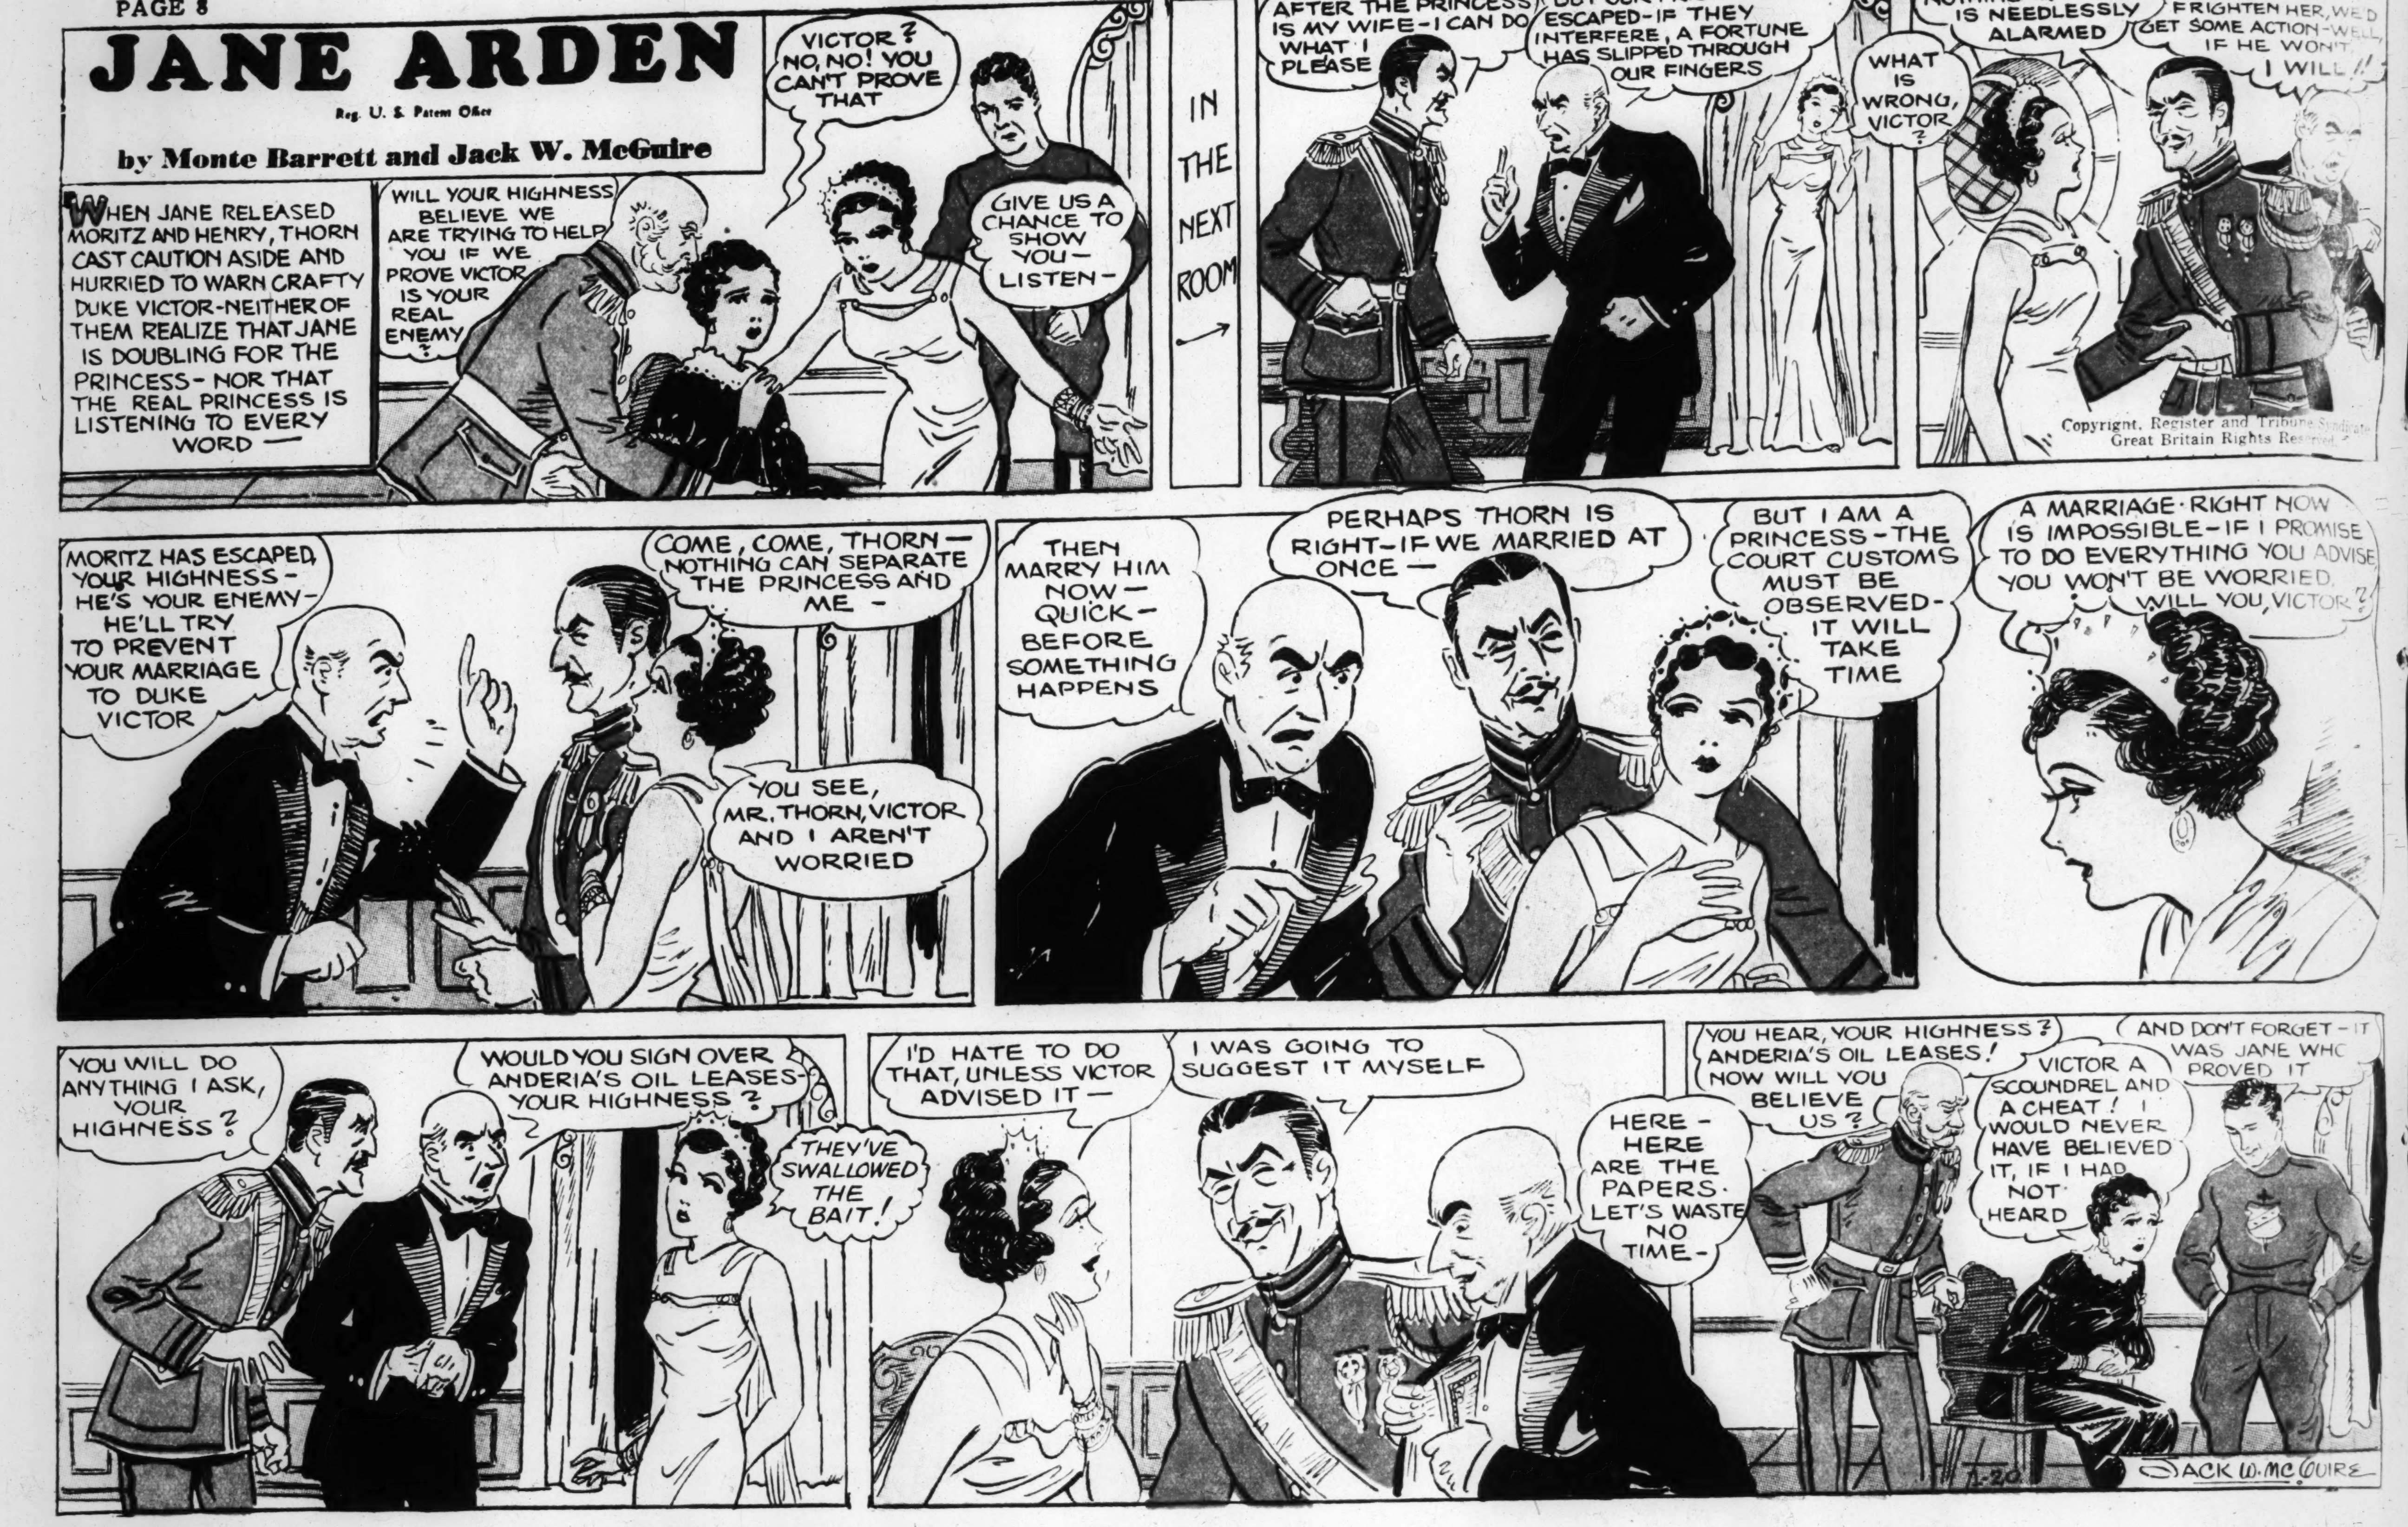
by Monte Barrett and Jack W. McGuire



WHEN JANE RELEASED MORITZ AND HENRY, THORN CAST CAUTION ASIDE AND HURRIED TO WARN CRAFTY DUKE VICTOR-NEITHER OF THEM REALIZE THAT JANE IS DOUBLING FOR THE PRINCESS- NOR THAT THE REAL PRINCESS IS LISTENING TO EVERY WORD —
WILL YOUR HIGHNESS BELIEVE WE ARE TRYING TO HELP YOU IF WE PROVE VICTOR IS YOUR REAL ENEMY ?
VICTOR ? NO, NO! YOU CAN'T PROVE THAT GIVE US A CHANCE TO SHOW YOU— LISTEN—IN THE NEXT ROOM
AFTER THE PRINCESS IS MY WIFE-I CAN DO WHAT I PLEASE
BUT OUR PRISONERS HAVE ESCAPED-IF THEY INTERFERE, A FORTUNE HAS SLIPPED THROUGH OUR FINGERS
WHAT IS WRONG, VICTOR ?
IT'S NOTHING— NOTHING-MY FRIEND IS NEEDLESSLY ALARMED
NEEDLESSLY ALARMED BAH! IF HE'D FRIGHTEN HER, WE'D GET SOME ACTION-WELL, IF HE WON'T, I WILL!!
MORITZ HAS ESCAPED, YOUR HIGHNESS— HE'S YOUR ENEMY— HE'LL TRY TO PREVENT YOUR MARRIAGE TO DUKE VICTOR
COME, COME, THORN— NOTHING CAN SEPARATE THE PRINCESS AND ME —
YOU SEE, MR. THORN, VICTOR AND I AREN'T WORRIED
THEN MARRY HIM NOW— QUICK— BEFORE SOMETHING HAPPENS
PERHAPS THORN IS RIGHT—IF WE MARRIED AT ONCE —
BUT I AM A PRINCESS — THE COURT CUSTOMS MUST BE OBSERVED- IT WILL TAKE TIME
A MARRIAGE · RIGHT NOW IS IMPOSSIBLE—IF I PROMISE TO DO EVERYTHING YOU ADVISE YOU WON'T BE WORRIED. WILL YOU, VICTOR ?
YOU WILL DO ANYTHING I ASK, YOUR HIGHNESS ?
WOULD YOU SIGN OVER ANDERIA'S OIL LEASES- YOUR HIGHNESS ?
THEY'VE SWALLOWED THE BAIT!
I'D HATE TO DO THAT, UNLESS VICTOR ADVISED IT—
I WAS GOING TO SUGGEST IT MYSELF
HERE— HERE ARE THE PAPERS. LET'S WASTE NO TIME-
YOU HEAR, YOUR HIGHNESS ? ANDERIA'S OIL LEASES! NOW WILL YOU BELIEVE US ?
VICTOR A SCOUNDREL AND A CHEAT ! I WOULD NEVER HAVE BELIEVED IT, IF I HAD NOT HEARD
AND DON'T FORGET - IT WAS JANE WHO PROVED IT

FACTS TO HELP YOU WIN

This amazing opportunity for you to win as much as $2500 in cash is offered solely to induce you to try Pepsodent Tooth Paste for yourself . . . and see what a difference it makes in your teeth.

Some of Pepsodent's advantages are:

Recommended by thousands of dentists.

The easiest contest ever! Everyone has an equal chance to win grand first prize of $2500. And every entry gets Amos 'n' Andy's funny map free. Contest closes midnight, February 3, 1935. Hurry! Read directions for winning one of 14,493 cash prizes!

JUST IMAGINE! All you need do is to write not more than 50 words on "Why I Like Pepsodent Tooth Paste" . . . and follow the directions for winning printed at right! And you may win $2500, or $700, or one of the many other real cash prizes in this great Amos 'n' Andy contest! In all, $30,985 in cash awards.

Could anything be easier? It doesn't make a bit of difference whether you're ten years old . . . or seventy. Everybody has the same chance. The very answer you jot down in a moment's time may be the big winner! It's just as simple as that! And really fun!

Tips on winning

A little boy could write: "Pepsodent tastes so good and it keeps my teeth so bright." A mother could say: "I like Pepsodent because I've never found anything so safe for my children's teeth." Or a man could write: "Pepsodent certainly takes off tobacco stains like nothing else I've tried." See how simple it all is? You can do as well or better than these without half trying, can't you? The main thing is to keep your answer clear. Read the column on the left carefully. It tells about Pepsodent . . . and may give you a bright idea. And ask your dealer, too, what he thinks about Pepsodent.

And here's good news! You can't possibly lose in this contest! Because everyone who enters gets a prize . . . absolutely free. Yes sir . . . it's Amos 'n' Andy's own funny map. BUT DON'T WAIT! Just thinking about it won't win! Read the directions for winning at right. Write your letter and send it in AT ONCE. Your entry must be mailed before midnight, Sunday, February 3! Think what you can do with real cash . . . and get busy!

Watch your dealer's windows! Dealers are selling new 10% larger Pepsodent Tube—at a new low price.

DEALERS! and clerks who assist

Duplicate prizes of all winners to you dealers . . and cash prizes for clerks, too. Just assist entries in their answers. Attach your sticker label on carton purchased. When your customer wins a prize, you as dealer, will win duplicate prize. If clerk's name is on sticker he will win a cash prize, too.

Everybody Wins Something!

FUNNY MAP

The laughingest map you ever saw! Prepared by Andrew H. Brown, map maker, and Amos Jones, assistant map maker. Shows "inside facts" on Weber City . . . including the city hall, Andy's office, the homes of all the characters, the famous well where Andy was to be buried . . . every complete detail of Weber City as it stands today, with all their new construction as only Amos and Andy would build it. Screamingly funny! Will keep the entire family amused for an hour. Size 20" x [illegible] Six colors on heavy bond paper.

"Directions for Winning"

1 Read all about the contest on this page. Look particularly for clues to why Pepsodent is a good tooth paste . . . and ask your dealer about it.

2 Write not more than 50 words on the subject, "Why I Like Pepsodent Tooth Paste," on any sheet of paper—and include your name and address, printed on it.

3 Mail your statement, together with the complete cardboard box from a tube of Pepsodent Tooth Paste, to the Pepsodent Co., Dept. 38-1-20, 919 N Mich. Ave., Chicago, Ill.

4 Each person may send as many different statements as he likes, but each statement must be on a separate sheet, with name and address, and accompanied by complete Pepsodent cardboard box. No entries will be considered without the Pepsodent cardboard box.

5 In the event of a tie, identical awards will be made. Judges are Hildegarde Fillmore, Beauty Editor of McCall's Magazine; Professor James W. Young, University of Chicago; and Katharine Clayberger of Woman's Home Companion. The judges' decision is final.

6 Winners hereby permit use of winning statements and their own names and addresses in radio and printed advertising. Prize winners will be notified by mail as soon as possible after contest closes. No entries returned.

8 Anyone can enter this contest except employees of The Pepsodent Co., their families, and advertising agents.
